4 BOYS KILLED AS TRAIN HITS AUTO AT GRADE

C. & O. Freight Demolishes Car in Crash Near Manassas, Va.

THREE DIE INSTANTLY; OTHER FATALLY HURT

Reason for Tragedy Mystery; Railroad May Demand Official Inquiry.

Special to The Washington Post.

Manassas, Va., March 10.—Four youths, all of Prince William County, are dead as the result of a grade crossing accident near here this afternoon. Three were killed outright while the fourth died several hours later at the hospital at Alexandria, Va.

The accident occurred at Bristow crossing when a C. & O. freight train demolished an automobile in which the quartet was riding.

The dead:

Frank Whetzel, 18 years old, of Aden, Va.

Grant Whetzel, 16 years old, brother of Frank, also of Aden, Va.

Hampton Kerlin, 17 years old, of near Nokesville, Va.

Amos Smith, 15 years old, also of Aden, Va.

Just how the accident occurred has not been learned. Although the smash-up occurred within 50 yards of a house and wreckage of the demolished automobile tore down the fence around the front yard, none of the occupants witnessed the crash.

Three Killed Instantly.

The two Whetzel boys and Kerlin were dead when members of the train crew and occupants of the house reached them. Smith was unconscious, and appeared to be dying. He was placed in a passing automobile and hastened to Manassas, whence he was carried in an ambulance to Alexandria.

The trip to the hospital was negotiated in about 45 minutes. When he reached the hospital doctors made a thorough examination of him, but decided that death was only a matter of hours. His skull was found to be fearfully crushed and he also was suffering from a number of other injuries. He died at 7:45 o'clock tonight without regaining consciousness. His body will be returned here.

Force of Crash Shown.

Smith's injuries indicate the force of the impact when the train hit the automobile. Persons who went to the scene shortly after the accident reported that bits of the wreckage were strewn for more than 300 feet down the track.

The train was reported to have been making its average speed on the track. The speed of the automobile could not be determined since all its occupants are dead.

Bristow Crossing is not considered a dangerous one, being well protected by lights. At the time of the accident the red danger light showing that the train was approaching, was lighted, and continued to show after the accident until the train had gotten well away, it was stated.

Official Inquiry Expected.

It could not be learned tonight whether the coroner would hold an inquest, but it was thought likely that the railroad would request an official inquiry.

All the youths involved in the accident come of prominent Prince William County families. Samuel Whetzel, father of the Whetzel boys, operates one of the largest country stores in this section of Virginia, and has prominent family connections in this and other parts of the State. William Kerlin, father of Hampton Kerlin, is a well to do farmer and is a brother of the sheriff of the county. Smith's father also is well known.

Funeral arrangements had not been made late tonight.

Monkeys Escape; Kill 350 Canaries in Store

New York, March 10 (A.P.).—Two monkeys released themselves from their cage in a downtown animal store today, and before their escape was discovered they had wrung the necks of 350 canaries and a rare parrakeet and killed a half dozen fantail gold fish.

A policeman who saw one of the monkeys in the act of slaying the parrakeet in a display window forced the door open and saw turtles crawling on the floor through a layer of bird feathers, frantic songsters beating their wings in terror against the walls, gold fish wriggling on counters and a large baboon working hopefully on the door of his cage, which had been partly opened by the monkeys.

Doctor Expresses Hope For Recovery of Foch

Paris, March 10 (U.P.).—Dr. Heitz-Boyer remained for three hours today beside the bed of Marshal Ferdinand Foch, administering several serums and inhalations of oxygen.

"The patient's resistance is extraordinary," the doctor said. "We may yet place him on his feet, but any talk of convolescence is premature."

Kitty Costello, Terror Of Bootleggers, Held

Undercover Dry Assistant of Varicolored Hair Arrested in Capital on Bench Warrant as Witness After Defying Baltimore Court.

Kitty Costello, former special prohibition agent, who has terrorized bootleggers in Washington and Baltimore, was herself in the hands of the law last night.

Arrested here at midnight Saturday in an apartment at the Cambridge Apartments, 921 Nineteenth street northwest, she passed the night there under guard of two women deputy United States marshals, and last night she slept on a hospital cot in the infirmary ward of the Baltimore City Jail.

This morning she will face Judge William C. Coleman in United States district court at Baltimore on a contempt of court warrant, sworn to by court attaches after she had repeatedly refused to appear as a witness for one of the alleged bootleggers whom she helped to trap in Baltimore City. After the court has disposed of the contempt proceedings the case in which she was subpenaed as a witness and which was postponed until she was found will be resumed, and she will be forced to testify.

The arrest of the woman, who is variously known as Kitty Costello, Esther Holden and Esther Wolf, has many unusual features.

Following the issuance of the bench warrant in the Baltimore court Friday, the paper was sent over to the District to be served. United States Marshal E. C. Snyder turned the matter over to Deputy Marshals John J. Clarkson and Elmer Graves. Both officers immediately began tracking the woman, and after some undercover work located her at the Nineteenth street apartment, where they allege she was in hiding. Both deputies had worked all day on the case and it was not until 11:45 Saturday night that they located her and served the warrant.

When apprehended, the woman had retired and asserted that she was too ill to get out of bed. Deputies Clarkson and Graves, confronted with this unexpected problem, aroused Chief Deputy Marshal Stephen B. Callahan at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, submitted the facts in the case and asked for further direction. He directed that the woman be guarded during the night and dispatched two women deputies, Mrs. Lillian Trammel and Mrs. Margaret Ferris, to the apartment to re-

GIRL IS GRAVELY HURT IN FALL FROM MOUNT

FRACTURED BACK FEARED

Thrown from a horse she was riding in Rock Creek Park yesterday afternoon near dusk, Miss Catherine Healy, 18 years old, a student at Trinity College and a resident of Atlantic City, N. J., was at Emergency Hospital last night in what doctors described as a serious condition.

Physicians believe she has a fractured back and a fractured hip but stated that definite decision could not be reached until after thorough X-ray examination today.

Miss Healy was riding on Ross drive in the park when her horse became skittish and tossed her. Police of the park department were unable to learn whether the horse was running away at the time.

The girl was placed in an automobile driven by Policeman Scoville of the Thirteenth Precinct and removed to Walter Reed Hospital. She was given emergency treatment at that institution by Lieut. Charles McIntyre, M. C., and later carried to Emergency Hospital in the latter's ambulance.

Trinity College authorities could not be reached last night for a statement. It was understood, however, that the young woman is one of the advanced students at the institution.

Both hospital and police report that they informed the college authorities of the young woman's accident and that they understood her parents had been informed.

FIRE KILLS SLEEPER ON ROAD IN VIRGINIA

Youth Rolls Into Blaze He Built to Keep Warm; Companion Unhurt.

SEEKING WORK IN CAPITAL

Lying close to the fire he had built along the roadway near Dumfries, Va., early yesterday morning in an effort to keep from freezing, Walker Kilgore, 21, went to sleep, unaware he had built his funeral pyre. Kilgore, whose home is in Snowflake, Va., died at noon yesterday in the post hospital at Quantico, Va.

Kilgore, in company with another youth whose name authorities at the Marine Corps base were unable to obtain, left his home in Snowflake several days ago to obtain employment in Washington.

Early yesterday morning, Kilgore and his companion tried to get shelter in several garages near Dumfries, but were unsuccessful. Moving up the road about half a mile, toward Quantico, the two youths decided to spend the night sleeping on the frozen ground. Kilgore built a fire to keep them warm.

Kilgore and his companion, nearly exhausted from the their travels, fell asleep in a few moments, despite the biting wind and cold. Flames from the glowing embers singed Kilgore's clothing. Sparks set it afire. Kilgore's screams awakened his companion—too late, however, to keep him from being burned fatally. Kilgore rolled over the frozen ground in an effort to smother the flames which were burning his life away, while his companion tried to pull the blazing garments from his body. As Kilgore screamed in pain, his companion ran to Dumfries for medical aid. The Quantico post ambulance was summoned.

Kilgore, his body terribly burned, died at noon yesterday. His body was taken to the post morgue while military authorities tried to get in touch with his relatives in Snowflake. His companion is believed to have returned to his home to notify his companion's parents of the tragedy.

Legations Deny Dry Intent As 2 Speakers Assail Wets

Foreign Diplomats Here Disclaim Knowledge of Any Plans to Abolish Importation of Liquors; Kelly and Howard Hit Drinking.

While foreign diplomats were busy yesterday denying a report that they will discontinue the practice of importing liquors into the United States for their personal use, Representative Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, told an audience at a law and order meeting in Foundry M. E. Church, that the "time is coming when foreign legations in the Capital will be asked to respect the laws of the United States, including the eighteenth amendment."

"President Hoover's inaugural address was a declaration of war on the outlaw liquor interests," Representative Kelly declared. "I believe he will give us a 'reasonable' enforcement. I believe he will make Washington a model for the rest of the Nation.

"The majority of Washington's citizens earn their bread and butter from the Government," he continued, "and they have a solemn obligation to support the eighteenth amendment."

Viscount D'Alte, Minister of Portugal and a veteran in the Diplomatic Corps here, said there was "not a word of truth" to the report that he would no longer import whisky and wines for the legation. The story was "invented," he added.

At other legations and embassies secretaries denied knowledge of any such movement.

While Representative Kelly was holding the attention of the audience at Foundry, Dr. Clinton N. Howard, chairman of the United Committee for Law Enforcement, was telling another audience at the Memorial United Brethren Church that "the rum power is attempting to take the wet Northern States out of the Union."

Dr. Howard said there could not be "prohibition in the Nation unless it is given a practical demonstration here in Washington." He called upon the citizenry to support the President in his war upon bootleggers.

"Failure to support President Hoover," he declared, "will result in a moral reaction in favor of rum in the next election. It is a choice between obedience to law or rum revolution."

After the meeting Dr. Howard issued a statement reading:

"Without reflecting on Maj. Hesse, who so suddenly seeks retirement, his successor should be a known total abstainer. No man who violates the law himself or countenances its violation for his accommodation by another can

BILL IS DRAWN MAKING WALES BRITISH RULER

Selection of Prince Seen as Mental Recovery of King Lags.

MEASURE PREPARED TO GO TO PARLIAMENT

Cabinet and Crown Council Face Inevitable When Doctors Despair.

London, March 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The latest reports from the royal doctors have determined the cabinet and the council which now exercises the powers of the crown during the king's illness, that the appointment of regent is inevitable.

Accordingly, Edward, Prince of Wales, will probably be created regent of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and northern Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the seas by act of parliament early next month. In addition, he will have to decide within the coming ten weeks whether a conservative or a labor government is to hold the reins of power in this country.

In creating the Prince of Wales regent for his father the precedent established during the reign of George III will be followed. An offical report from the royal doctors that his majesty is unable to discharge his functions during his illness will be followed by an act of parliament creating the prince regent until the physicians certify that King George is able to resume his duties.

Reason Largely Political.

The real reason why a regency now seems inevitable is, in point of fact, largely a political one. Were it not for the approaching general election, the commission which now executes most of the powers of the crown would be permitted to continue. But parliament will dissolve and the country will vote a new House of Commons not later than the end of May, probably in the middle of the month.

Betting on the stock exchange seems to indicate that the Conservative and Labor parties will be returned in approximately equal strength, with Lloyd George and his liberals holding the balance of power.

Should either the Tories or the Labor party prove to have a clear majority, Stanley Baldwin or Ramsay MacDonald will take office as premier as a matter of course, and the royal approval will be merely a matter of form.

But the equally possible situation—with neither party holding a real majority—will compel the crown to choose the next premier on its own initiative. There is no escape from this under the British constitution, and apart from the fact, that the commissioners now exercising the royal powers would very likely be divided on general principles, some of them are party politicians, and a hopeless tangle might result if the choice were left to them.

Must Face Responsibility.

This is why it has been decided that unless the king fully recovers his mental, as well as his physical, powers during the next two months, which is now considered impossible, the responsibility of selecting the party that is to rule must devolve upon the Prince of Wales.

The New York World News Service understands from reliable sources that a regency bill has been prepared within the past few days. King George, in 1924, found himself faced with just such a situation as his son is likely to meet this spring. The Tories came back from the general election of that year with more members in the house of common than Labor, but less than the forces of Labor and the Liberals were able to muster together.

Great pressure then was brought to bear on the king to put Baldwin back in office, or else to send for Asquith, the head of the Liberal party, but he refused and installed Ramsay MacDonald and the Labor party in power. This was on his own initiative and represented really the most important act of his reign.

It is only when such a deadlock occurs that the king actually, and not in form only, chooses the prime minister, who must, however, obtain the support of the majority of the house of commons or again dissolve the house and appeal to the general electorate.

Despite reassuring semiofficial reports from the royal invalid, it is understood that the doctors have informed Premier Baldwin that even if the king's mental weakness due to his long illness shows signs of abatement, King George could not be asked to decide such a momentous issue in May or June. It was this verdict that led to the decision that a regency must inevitably be established.

College Paper Gives Coolidge His Privacy

Springfield, Mass., March 10 (A.P.).—Calvin Coolidge's frequently expressed wish to be allowed to return quietly to private life was respected in the current issue of the college paper of his alma mater. The Amherst Student carried among the alumni notes for the class of 1895:

"Calvin Coolidge has returned to his home at Northampton after an extended stay in Washington."

The paper carried no other comment on the career of the distinguished alumnus.

POLICE QUEST FOR NEW CHIEF BEGINS TODAY

Commission Hints Hesse Successor May Be Outside Man.

VACANT POST SOUGHT BY PRATT AND OTHERS

Dougherty Says No Present Official Is Outstanding; Choice Seen in Week.

The District Commissioners today will begin, "with open minds," a search for a new chief for Washington's troubled police force.

In looking for a successor to Maj. Edwin B. Hesse, who, pleading illness, has requested that he be retired March 31 as superintendent of police, Proctor L. Dougherty, president of the District Commissioners, yesterday said the search for a new chief of police would not be confined to present members of the force.

Hope beats high in the hearts of at least half a dozen police officials, who personally feel they would make the ideal leader for Washington's police force, which, during the last several years, has seen its officials and members attacked both by Congress and in the courts.

Inspectors Are Hopeful.

That these half a dozen officials, including Inspector Henry G. Pratt, chief of detectives and senior assistant superintendent; Inspector Albert Headley, and other inspectors and captains, may be passed over for an "outsider," as was done in the case of the late Raymond W. Pullman, was indicated yesterday by Dougherty, who said that at the present time no one among the police officials stood out preeminently as the likely successor to the mantle now worn by Hesse. It is entirely possible some outstanding citizen might be offered the post, Dougherty said.

Dougherty added, however, that three weeks remain for the Commissioners to decide on a successor to Hesse, and that before one is picked, the retirement board will have to act on Maj. Hesse's request for retirement. During the next few days, however, the Commissioners are expected to have got fairly started on the selection of a group of "possibilities" and within the next ten days or two weeks will have arrived at a tentative choice.

Hesse Retirement Likely.

Maj. Hesse's plea for retirement on the grounds that his health has been broken as a result of the strenuous demands made upon it as a result of his duties, is expected to be acted upon favorably by the retirement board.

Speculation as to whether the Commissioners would name a member of the force or pick a civilian as Hesse's successor, was rife among members of the force yesterday. Those who believe that some other than one who has "pounded the bricks" will be chosen, base their contention that Maj. Hesse, himself, had never worn the uniform before his elevation from the chief clerkship to the position of head of the force and that Raymond Pullman had never had any connection with the Police Department before he was selected as its head.

U. S. Father, Daughter Decorated by France

New York, March 10 (A.P.).—A New York lawyer and his daughter today were both entitled to wear the bit of r ribbon which shows the wearer to be a chevalier of the Legion of Honor of France. They are said to be the only father and daughter in America so honored by the French government.

Charles Robinson-Smith several years ago was decorated for his work with the Belgian relief commission and today the French government office here announced that Gertrude Robinson-Smith, his daughter, had been made a chevalier of the legion. Miss Robinson-Smith's award was made for her work in raising funds for ten ice-making units for the French army in 1914.

Adverse flying weather held Capt. Maxwell at Camp Borden all day Saturday. He left this morning in a Moth plane, planning to stop at Dudbury.

Quila, Sinaloa, Mexico, March 10 (A. P.).—Mexican revolutionary soldiers, who sang as they marched, trooped through Quila tonight in their advance upon Mazatlan. A scouting line worked far ahead of the column, led by Gen. Moises Jordan and the Sixth Battalion, which was accompanied by Yaqui Indian cavalry.

Gen. Jordan had with him a Red Cross unit, organized for the expedition upon Mazatlan, where a clash with Federal troops under Gen. Jaime Carrillo appears inevitable.

Quila is 30 miles south of Culiacan and 100 miles north of Mazatlan, the present objective of the rebel march. It lies on the Southern Pacific of Mexico Railroad at a junction point, from which a spur line branches to Eldorado, on the Gulf of California coast.

GEN. AGUIRRE SENDS OFFER TO SURRENDER

Forces in Revolt Are Joined by Troops in Southern Baja California.

(By the Associated Press.)

The Mexican government last night claimed a strategic victory in the revolutionary war in Central Mexico which would open two of the chief rebel states to federal invasion.

Rebel Gen. Urbalejo was reported to have fled from Canitas, railroad junction in the state of Zactecas, with an escort of only 30 men. The main federal army of 18,000 men pushed northward and the government predicted that both Torreon and Durango, rebel centers, would be in its hands within 48 hours.

All indications pointed to an impending conflict on a large scale in the Durango-Torreon sector. The rebels announced movement of 2,000 soldiers from the southwestern coast to Chihuahua to support the already large army in that section.

Rebel leaders announced that they had been joined by the southern section of Lower California. Three trains with troops that had captured Juarez last week moved southward to reenforce the rebels at Torreon. The rebels also claimed possession of Fresnillo, Zacatecas, but this appeared to be contradicted by the fall of Canitas. General headquarters for the rebel cause were established at Chihuahua City.

Aguirre May Surrender.

Federal forces continued to "mop up" the state of Vera Cruz. The rebel commander, Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre, was reported willing to surrender if granted safe conduct out of the country and one of his officers, Gen. Vidal Lagunes, was captured and executed at Alvarado.

Mexico City, March 10 (A.P.).—Defeat of Gen. Urbalejo and his rebel detachment at Canitas, State of Zacatecas, was officially announced here tonight. The rebel general was said to have fled with an escort of 30 man before the victorious advance of the federal troops, whose campaign was under the personal direction of the provisional secretary of war, Plutarco Elias Calles.

The capture of Canitas, a strategic rail junction, opened the way for a federal northward push toward Torreon, where one of the largest rebel bodies is concentrated. Meanwhile, federal Gen. Juan A. Almazan ordered an advance of his command from Monterey westward toward Torreon. If this movement is carried out successfully, the rebels would face attacks from two sides.

Quick Captures Foreseen.

The government announcement said that Torreon and also the City of Durango were expected to fall to the federals within from 24 to 48 hours.

Presumably Gen. Calles plans to send part of his force to attack Durango, where Urbalejo has additional forces, while the main body moves against Gen. Gonzalo Escobar at Torreon.

The government said that Gen. Jesus M. Aguirre, rebel commander, who fled Vera Cruz in defeat, had telegraphed an offer to surrender if the government allowed him safe passage out of the country. The government replied that his surrender must be unconditional. It promised to be "benevolent" toward his troops and minor officers, but declared that the leader would be sub-

WORLD COURT MOVE RESTS WITH HOOVER

Plans Formed for Acceptance by Senate of Formula Approval by League.

BORAH STAND IN QUESTION

Plans have been formed for the acceptance by the United States Senate of the modification suggested by Elihu Root of the reservation that kept us out of the World Court.

It now rests with President Hoover to put us in or keep us out, and as he was party to the going abroad of Root on his unofficial mission of getting the league powers to agree on a method under which the United States could join the court, it is assumed that he will favor the plan. He discussed the matter with Root previous to the sailing of the veteran statesman. After the publication of the Root modification, he had a conference with Senator Borah, who was the most consistent opponent to our going into the court. At the same session were Senator Walsh, of Montana, the chief Democratic advocate of our joining, and Senator Swanson (Democrat), Virginia, the author of the fifth reservation—the one the powers would not accept, inasmuch as it forbade any advisory opinion by the court in any question in which the United States has or claims an interest.

It is understood that at this confer-

1,300 QUIT CHURCH WHEN FILM BLAZES

An elderly woman fainted and 1,300 other persons walked to safety when fire destroyed six reels of a feature film that was being shown last night at the First Congregational Church, Tenth and G streets.

The film was about half completed when the lurid glare from the flames that shot out from the projection room lighted up the darkened auditorium. The Rev. Jason Noble Pierce, pastor of the church, hurriedly took the pulpit and with extended arms pronounced a benediction in an effort to reassure the audience.

The lights were immediately thrown on, blotting out the lurid flare and averting a panic. The ushers also took their station and held back those who attempted to rush from the building. Miss F. Mallory, 942 I street northwest, fainted in the excitement. Physicians from Emergency Hospital revived her in the church reading room.

One of the stained windows in the church was broken out by a young man who became fear-stricken and tried to open it to leap out. This was

Woman Kills Priest at Door Of Church as Mass Is Ended

Catholic Cleric Shot and Slain After Baptizing Baby; Mother of Girl, 5, Seized as She Tries to Flee; Ohio Prosecutor Grills Her, But Is Silent on Motive.

Canton, Ohio, March 10 (A.P.).—Shot down by a woman as he stood in the doorway of St. Anthony's church here where he had just concluded 9 o'clock mass this morning, the Rev. Father Joseph A. Riccardi, 34, parish priest, died at a hospital late this afternoon.

Bullets entered his neck and abdomen and death was caused by loss of blood from the wound in the abdomen.

No motive was given. Mrs. Mamie Guerrieri, 27, arrested and denied bail, was questioned by Prosecutor Henry W. Harter, jr., of Stark County, but she would make no statement. The priest, just before he died, is said to have told the prosecutor that he "could not understand what the motive was."

No charges have been filed.

The woman, during mass sat near the rear of the church with her 5-year-old daughter. After mass, the priest went into the church vestibule to baptize a baby.

The woman followed, according to witnesses, and exchanged a few words with him. She then drew a revolver and fired five shots. Three went wild. Hurrying into the street, she was arrested, and the revolver taken from her.

The theory was advanced by Bishop Joseph Schrembs, of Cleveland, who during the day conferred with church officials here, that the shooting resulted from dissatisfaction over removal of the church from its old location. A dispute over the removal had caused some bitterness.

A charge of murder in the first degree will be filed against Mrs. Guerrieri tomorrow, the prosecutor said. According to the prosecutor, she signed a confession to the shooting while unaware that the priest had died.

jected to a court-martial, whose verdict would be carried out to the letter.

The government statement declared that the advance of the Sonora rebels under Gen. Roberto Cruz in the State of Sinaloa had been checked.

Hold Troops Were Duped.

In explanation of the victory at Canitas, it was said that the troops of Urbalejo had been duped into thinking themselves fighting for the government and they promptly turned on their leader when they found he was a rebel.

An advance guard of the Calles army, with the help of these unwilling rebels, routed the Urbalejo forces.

The main army tonight was moving up to consolidate the Canitas position, which Calles will make the base for his advance on Torreon.

Government circles were jubilant at the news. President Emilio Portes Gil wore a broad smile when he received the foreign correspondents at Chapultepec Castle. Marte R. Gomez, secretary of agriculture and official spokesman for the government, said, "The revolution is over in Vera Cruz and just about over in the north."

Urbalejo Cuts Way Out.

Laredo, Tex., March 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Official information received in Nuevo Laredo this afternoon stated that Gen. C. Urbalejo, federal commander at Durango, revolted Saturday afternoon. One battalion of infantry, numbering 388 officers and men, under command of Col. Alfredo Lamont, remained with their commanding general, but the three regiments of cavalry, the Twenty-eighth, under command of Brig. Gen. J. A. Dominguez Amaro; the Thirty-ninth, under command of Col Juan A. Mexias, and the Fifty-ninth, under Gen. Encarnacion Vega, refused to join the revolt, and a sharp fight ensued for about two hour. Finally Gen Urbalejo, at the head of his battalion of infantry, left Durango last night, going in the direction of Torreon to join forces with Gen. Escobar, commander in chief of the rebel army. The three regiments of cavalry that remained loyal to the government numbered 1,280 officers and men. A decisive battle between federal and rebel forces is expected in the vicinity of Torreon within the next 24 hours.

Juarez, Chihuahua, March 10 (A.P.)—Victorious rebel troops who conquered Juarez in a sanguinary five-hour skirmish last Friday, were en route today to reinforce the revolutionary army near Torreon in southern Chihuahua, where a decisive clash is expected within a few days against a large government force.

Three troop trains departed for the south during the night to join the concentration, under command of Gen Miguel Valley, the rebel chieftain who led the assault on Juarez. Reports received through Mexican National Railway sources in Juarez declared that two trains of rebel troops were en route to this city to replace those assigned to duty in the south.

Few American Visitors.

Quiet reigned Sunday in Juarez, "key city" of the conflict in Chihuahua, where bullets whizzed down the principal thoroughfares in the battle for possession Friday. A large vacant lot which quartered cavalry forces yesterday was the scene of a baseball game today. Streets were crowded, but few Americans were seen mingling with the Mexicans.

The historic Guadalupe Mission, in which no services have been held for more than two years, was visited by many Mexicans and some American sightseers. There were no services. Rebel officials in control of the city announced they were not opposed to services being held, but one authority declared today that the clergy would be required to comply with certain regulations before the resumption of services is permitted.

Revolutionary authorities today were reorganizing the official staff of the city. Albino Frias, former colonel in the forces of the late Pancho Villa and former chief of police here, was appointed collector of customs. Francisco Pares was appointed director of National Railways.

Rebels Opposite Columbus.

Word reached here that the rebel forces took possession of Polomas, Chihuahua, the border town opposite Columbus, N. Mex., which was made famous by the raid of Francisco "Pancho" Villa in 1916. Automobiles carrying about 40 men rode in from the south last night and captured the place. No resistance was offered and not a shot was fired. Federal customs officers moved across the line into the United States.

The departure of the troop trains for the south today was marked by the beating of Yaqui Indian drums and a general demonstration. Soldiers shouted, apparently enjoying the prospects of the forthcoming battle. Whistles blew and army bugles added to the tumult. About 250 soldiers left on the trains and it was estimated that an equal number remained in Juarez.

Before his departure, Gen. Valle was asked whether he was in favor of opening the churches, and his reply was that he had nothing to do with that question.

Will Redress Grievances.

"The churches are there and if the people want to go to them, that is their privilege," he said. "If any persons have any grievance as a result of treatment under the old regime we will be ready to do what we can to remedy it."

Aurelio Manrique, former Governor of Sonora, arrived last night as a liaison representative between rebels in northeastern and northern Mexico. He predicted that within three weeks the rebels will have taken Mexico City. Manrique left for the south soon after his arrival.

A message was made public at military headquarters here from Gen. J. G. Escobar, the rebel candidate for president, charging that Gen. Mathias Ramos, federal commandant, who was driven from Juarez, sought to draw the ire of the United States by taking up a troop position so that revolutionary fire would fall into El Paso during the attack on the city. Gen. Ramos and his command of approximately 300 men still were interned today at Fort Bliss, across the border.

10,000 to Attack Calles.

When the city was attacked, the federal forces fled to the bank of the Rio Grande, a bare 100 yards from the city limits of El Paso, Tex., and rebels were unable to train their guns in their direction for fear of menacing the American city, where great crowds lined the border to watch the battle.

Rebel leaders announced that 10,000 revolutionary soldiers would join the concentration movement at Torreon, from where an attack will be delivered against the federal army headed by Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, in an offensive aimed to end at Mexico City.

Federal and rebel forces are expected to clash within a few days at San Luis Potosi. If this engagement occurs, it probably will take shape as the first important fight of the rebellion. Revolutionary leaders said that if the rebels were successful at San Luis Potosi, they would try to press the federals back toward the capital.

Gen. Lagunes Executed.

Vera Cruz, March 10 (A.P.).—A dispatch to El Dictamen from Alvarado today says Gen. Vidal Lagunes, who launched an uprising against the government on the Sotavento coast, was captured and executed by government forces commanded by Gen. Cejudo Juzgada. Gen. Lagunes, the dispatch states, was caught at Alvarado, south of here, and convicted by a court-martial of having conspired to aid Gen. Aguirre, now fleeing southward after retreating from Vera Cruz.

Federal troops are continuing their pursuit of Gen. Aguirre's band, the newspaper declares, and have captured some prisoners.

The port of Vera Cruz again is open to international shipping and foreign vessels are beginning to arrive here.

An army supposed to number 2,000 men under the rebel general, Roberto Cruz, was reported to be advancing south along the Southern Pacific Railroad in the State of Sinalo from Culiacan toward Mazatlan.

Mazatlan Critical Point.

Federals were said to be strongly intrenched and ready for battle at the latter city. A federal victory there would be a severe blow to the rebel western campaign, but should Gen. Cruz be victorious and continue on to Guadalajara the federals would be placed in a serious position. Cruz could then threaten the capital and force the federals to use for its defense troops needed in the northern campaign.

Secretary of War Calles is in the field in personal command of the largest federal army, which is centered around Zacatecas and Aguas Calientes. He apparently continued today to prepare these forces for a movement northward toward Canitas and Torreon. The rebel general, Urbaljo, holds Canitas, a railroad junction of strategic importance, while the rebel general, Escobar, holds Torreon, a similar junction farther north.

20 BOMBING PLANES BOUGHT BY MEXICO

American-Trained Aviators to Pilot Them; Eleven Fliers at Nuevo Laredo.

600 BOMBS ARE EXPECTED

New York, March 10 (U.P.).—Twenty bombing planes have been purchased here by the Mexican government and will be flown from New York to the Mexican border next Saturday, the Daily News will say tomorrow. Mexican fliers, trained by United States naval aviators, will be at the controls of the planes, which are similar to those used by United States marines in Nicaragua.

Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, March 10 (U.P.).—Eleven young Mexican aviators, who have consecrated their lives to the federal government, arrived here today to await the arrival of nine bombing planes from the United States.

The arrival of the planes will inaugurate the first serious aerial attack upon the rebels. The squadron will swing southward over the deserts and mountain ranges, seeking out the insurgent forces and spreading terror from the skies. The aerial attack, federal authorities predict, will make short work of the revolution.

Six hundred bombs are expected with the planes. Nothing definite has been learned of the whereabouts of the shipments and it is believed the United States and Mexican governments are concealing its route to prevent capture of the planes and munitions by the rebels.

Secretary of War Calles is relying on Almazan as one of his chief supports in a northwestern battle designed to crush the rebels and should Almazan actually change allegiance, the government outlook would be dark. Reports from Monterey brought here today by railroad passengers said government troops were massing in the vicinity of Torreon, hoping to force the issue near there with Gen. Escobar.

So difficult is it to differentiate between federal and rebel soldiers, with troops changing their allegiance from one side to the other, and with no distinguishing uniforms, that the government troops have adopted a red hat band.

REST AND WORSHIP MARK HOOVER'S DAY

President's First Sunday in Office Finds Him at Quaker Services.

OLD FRIENDS AT DINNER

President Hoover yesterday abandoned the strenuous program which has characterized the opening of his administration and devoted his first Sabbath in the White House to worship, relaxation and the company of a small group of close friends.

With Mrs. Hoover, he motored in the morning to the small, old Quaker meeting house at Thirteenth and Irving streets, where he heard a sermon on overcoming the obstacles of life through faith and divine grace, preached by Augustus Murray, the minister of his own church in Palo Alto, Calif. During the afternoon he rested at the White House, read for a while and took a short automobile ride about Washington, and in the evening some of his old neighbors from S street were invited in for Sunday night dinner.

Accompanying the President.

The President was accompanied to the church by his son, Herbert Hoover, jr., and the latter's wife; his sister, Mrs. Mary Leavitt, of Long Beach, Calif.; Mrs. Hoover's sister, Mrs. Eugene Large, of Palo Alto, and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Requa, of San Francisco, all of whom have been house guests at the Executive Mansion since the inauguration.

Informality prevailed throughout the day. In respect to the tenets of his Quaker faith and their insistence upon avoiding display or showiness, Mr. Hoover left behind him the high silk hat and formal morning clothes which form the customary presidential attire for church attendance, and instead wore a dark business suit and slouch hat.

The same lack of formality also characterized last night's dinner. For some time it had been customary for Mr. Hoover's friends and neighbors to drop in at his S street house for dinner on Sunday evening, but last night they came at the President's invitation, as though he wished to assure them that this practice was not to be discontinued because he had become Chief Executive. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Kellogg and Mr. and Mrs. Mark Sullivan.

Busy Week at Hand.

Another busy week will begin for the President today, filled with conferences with members of the House and Senate, political leaders and members of his Cabinet. Mr. Hoover also will delve thoroughly into the routine affairs of the various departments in a succession of conferences with the Cabinet officers.

In addition, he is expected to begin considering soon the personnel of the commission which is to make a study of Federal law enforcement and court conditions. Mr. Hoover regards legal and judicial experience as the essential qualifications for membership on the commission and intends to take plenty of time in making his selections.

Orthodox in Roumania Oppose Western Easter

Bucharest, Roumania, March 10 (A.P.).—What was described as mutiny against the church took place in Bessarabia today when 500,000 communicants of the Greek Orthodox Church announced through their spokesman they would not observe Easter Sunday on March 31 as fixed recently by the Holy Synod.

Archbishop Kishinev leader of the protest, announced his flock would observe Easter on May 5, in accordance with the Byzantine calendar, as has heretofore been the custom in the Orthodox Church. The new date for the observance has aroused much agitation throughout Roumania since it was fixed by the Holy Synod.

Helicopter Plane Built For British Government

London, (Monday) March 11 (A.P.).—The Mail today says that a flying machine called a "helicogyre," is being built at the order of the British air ministry and is nearly ready for tests. It is a development of the helicopter and was invented by Vittorio Isacco, who in 1917 collaborated with Pescara in making five helicopters.

The new machine is designed to ascend and descend vertically and to hover motionless in midair.

Chin Blow Causes Death in Quarrel

Man, Accused of Attacking Woman, Fights; Felled by Opponent.

Ogden, Utah, March 10 (A.P.).—Edward A. Spellman, an engineer employed in the construction of Echo Dam at Coalville, Utah, is dead and Dan Rowlands, employe of a can company, is held under $10,000 bond as a result of a midnight encounter between the two in a downtown hotel here as the annual convention of the Utah Canners Association was coming to a close.

County Attorney Samuel E. Blackman said today his investigations showed that Rowlands accused Spellman, who is said to be known also as Stillman, of attacking Mrs. Lawrence Russell, wife of a fellow can company employe. The accusation led to words and finally a blow on the chin, following which, a few moments later, Spellman died.

The county attorney declared he may press an involuntary manslaughter charge against Rowlands.

Father of U. S. Envoy To Bolivia, 77, Is Dead

Kaufman, New York bankruptcy referee; Joseph Kaufman, of Towanda; Mrs. Pauline Levey, of Niagara Falls, N. Y., and Mrs. Jennie Goldstein, of Canton, Pa. A brother, Barney Kaufman, also survives. Services will be held in Wilkesbarre, Pa., tomorrow. Burial will take place there.

DOCTORS ARE SILENT ON FATAL OPERATION

Coroner Says Men, Charged With Murder of Boy, Were Drunk and Negligent.

APPENDIX FOUND NORMAL

Elizabethton, Tenn., March 10 (A.P.).—D. W. H. Longmire and Dr. Murrel Pinson, under bond on charges of murder, today reiterated that they had no statement to make "until the proper time" about the death of 12-year-old Elbert Grindstaff, of Sciotha, near here, who died after an operation.

Coroner W. T. Ferguson announced he had evidence that an operation for appendicitis was performed on the boy by the two physicians and that they were intoxicated at the time. His report was supplemented by statements of two physicians who he had called in to help with an autopsy. They said they found evidence of an operation for appendicitis and took from the viscera of the body, which was exhumed Thursday, an appendix which they said was normal.

The boy's father, Jim Grindstaff, said the two physicians had told him his son needed an operation for appendicitis and that after operating they said they were "unable to find" his appendix.

The formal charge of the coroner is criminal negligence and intoxication. The physicians who aided in the autopsy are Dr. J. B. Shoun and Dr. J. L. Cottrell.

The two accused physicians will be arraigned Tuesday before Magistrate R. T. Johnson, jr., and meanwhile are at liberty under nominal bond.

Norway Bomb Is Held To Be Work of Joker

Oslo, Norway, March 10 (A.P.).—The police admitted today they were not much aroused over the findin yesterday of an infernal machine near Oscar's Hall, prospective residence of Prince Olaf when he marries Princess Martha of Sweden late this month.

As the bomb was arranged with a candle fuse exposed to the wind and unlighted when found, they are inclined to believe it was the work of a joker or one way of expressing some one's dislike of the idea of using Oscar's Hall for a royal residence.

LINDBERGH ENDS HOP; FIANCEE GREETS HIM

Flier Lands at Mexico City Completing Inauguration of Air Mail Line.

15,000 APPLAUD TAKE-OFF

Mexico City, March 10 (A.P.).—Miss Anne S. Morrow waited with her mother in a stiff, cold wind and light rain at Valbuena Aviation Field this evening to see her fiance, Col. Charles Lindbergh, land after completing a round-trip flight in two days to Brownsville, Tex. The young couple smiled at each other but exchanged no salutation that was audible to spectators before they entered an automobile to drive to the embassy residence.

About 200 persons braved the unpleasant weather to await the arrival of the aviator. With his flight today, Col. Lindbergh set in motion both northward and southward airmail service on the Mexico City-Brownsville route. He had flown north without incident on Saturday.

Leaving Brownsville at 10:32 this morning, he landed at Tampico for a brief stop at 1 p. m. and finished his flight here at 3:50 p. m.

After landing, the colonel turned to George F. Rihl, president of the Mexican Aviation Co., which holds the contract for the route, a passenger, and asked, "Anything else, Mr. Rihl?" Rihl answered "No; thank you, very much, Colonel," and the party dispersed.

Brownsville, Tex., March 10 (A.P.).—Going back along the new international trail he blazed yesterday, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh took off from the Brownsville Airport at 10:32 o'clock this morning with the first southbound load of mail in the new Brownsville-Mexico City service. He opened the route officially yesterday when he brought a heavy load of mail and passengers from Mexico. Today twelve passengers road to the south with him.

15,000 Cheer Take-off.

The cheers of about 15,000 persons drowned the roar of the motors of the huge Ford trimotored plane when Lindberg swept into the air. It was a new ship, 1,350-horsepower, received from the Detroit factory only yesterday.

An entirely gracious, smiling Lindbergh thrice left the ship to say goodby to friends and Army officers before taking off over revolt-ridden Mexico. He came to the airport ten minutes before the scheduled leaving time—10 o'clock—and his plane was delayed 30 minutes awaiting the arrival of passengers and Mexican and United States mail. During the interval Lindbergh laughed and chatted and posed for photographers.

The flier's take-off was the final event in a two-day celebration incident to dedication of the new 580-acre airport and the opening of the Mexico City-Brownsville-San Antonio air mail and passenger routes.

Reticent About Plans.

Lindbergh was reticent, as usual, about his personal affairs, but was voluble in praise of the new principal airport. He said it is destined to become one of the United States greatest, and already had appointments marking it an airport of the highest class.

The new line operated by the Mexican Aviation Co. is part of the general system of the Pan-American Lines, of which Col. Lindbergh is technical adviser.

The dedication of the airport was considered a great success in spite of the omission of one outstanding event on the program; the departure of Capt. Ira C. Eaker, on a dawn-to-dusk flight to Panama. Capt. Eaker's flight was ordered postponed indefinitely because of the unstable conditions in Mexico. There was hope, however, that Eaker would obtain permission to fly by the middle of the week. His light, fast plane could be put in readiness on a few hours' notice.

U. S. Border Aids Forced to Resign

11 Immigration Inspectors Accused of Consorting With Rum Runners.

Detroit, March 10 (A.P.).—Eleven inspectors of the immigration border patrol here resigned yesterday after they had been warned by John L. Zurbrick, district director of immigration, that unless they resigned charges would be preferred against them for consorting with down-river liquor runners.

In announcing the resignations Zurbrick said that all were accepted "with prejudice" and none of the men would be reinstated.

The inspectors had been confronted individually with evidence gathered within the last three months by special investigators. The inspectors are Roy Thurwachter, senior patrol inspector; George H. Block, Emmett A. Hunt, James W. Spears, Francis J. Watson, Clyde S. Ingram, Clarence H. Bandeau, Francis W. Sargent, David R. Philips, Gilbert H. Griffith and Earl E Mullen.

Detective and Bandit Wounded in Holdup

Minneapolis, Minn., March 10 (A.P.).—A police detective and a bandit were shot and wounded last night in a gun fight during a holdup in the Hawthorne Pharmacy. Oscar Hollison, the detective, was wounded in the left leg and the bandit, who gave his name as William Nelson, 28, of Kansas City, was shot in the stomach. Both were taken to the City Hospital.

Two bandits entered the drug store and held up the clerk, one taking the contents of the cash register. Hollison, "planted" in the store, opened fire at the invaders, who returned the shots. Nelson fell wounded, but his companion escaped.

Sheriff Captures 2 Who Fled Prison

Third of Auburn Fugitives Still at Large; Men Hid in Locomotive.

Watertown, N. Y., March 10 (A.P.).—Two of three prisoners who escaped from Auburn Prison last Sunday night, were captured here last night and taken immediately to the county jail by Sheriff Eugene L. Burton, who made the capture. The men taken are Henry Sullivan and Ernest Pavesi. Edward Larkman, the third man, has not been located.

Sullivan and Pavesi were surprised in a locomotive in the New York Central yards, into which they had climbed to keep warm, neither was armed and neither resisted arrest.

They said they had hidden in a swamp 3 miles southwest of here Thursday night and Friday. It was near this swamp that an automobile stolen in syracuse was found overturned Thursday. Water in the swamp is nearly 15 feet deep and the sheriff, his men and others seeking the escaped convicts had given it little attention, believing it impossible for any one to live in it under the conditions.

Gambler's Slaying Is Laid to Quarrel

Woman Reported to Have Said Thomas Walsh's Banter Stirred Ire.

New York, March 10 (A.P.).—The New York Daily News tomorrow will say that a woman witness to the fatal shooting of Thomas (Fatty) Walsh, in Miami, Fla., was located by their representative here today and that she told them the shooting was the result of a sudden quarrel between Walsh and one of his gambler associates.

The Daily News will quote Demaris Dore, night club hostess and entertainer, as saying she was spirited out of Miami twelve hours after the shooting and taken by auto to Palm Beach, where she boarded a train for New York.

The paper will say that under questioning she said the killer was one of three of Walsh's associates in a gambling syndicate who had become angry because Walsh and Arthur L. Clarke, who was wounded joked about his manner of speech.

Sisters, Traced by Pet Cat, Jailed on Hotel Complaint

Two Chicago Women With $900,000 Claim Against United States Government, Held for Trial on Board-Beating Charges.

New York, March 10 (A.P.).—Two Chicago sisters, who are seeking to collect $900,000 from the Government for the alleged illegal use of a patented emergency ration, were held in jail under default of $1,500 bail on a charge of attempting to defraud the Hotel Ambassador out of a $681.90 hotel bill.

The sisters, Dr. Grace Osborne, 45, and Mrs. Lorena Ferson, 47, were arrested last night on complaint of the hotel manager, who said they had sneaked their clothes out of their room after promising to pay the bill. They were located in another hotel, traced largely because they carried a small black kitten with them.

The two women, once wealthy, worked for years and spent much of their money, they said, in perfecting a small biscuit, said to contain enough food to sustain a grown person for 24 hours. The Government used their invention, they charged, in perfecting its emergency ration used during the World War and they have been trying to obtain $1,000,000 for the alleged infringement of their patent. They said Senator Royal S. Copeland introduced a bill last May which would direct the Treasurer of the United States to pay them $900,000, but the bill had not been passed.

When the sisters appeared in court today four other hotel managers were present to testify against them, and the William J. Burns Detective Agency said it had 25 complaints against them, charging them with "jumping" hotel bills. The magistrate set bail at $1,500 each and when they were unable to arrange it, remanded them to Jefferson Market Prison to await trial in special sessions. The women only had $30 between them.

3 HELD IN DRUG RING FACING INDICTMENT

Stager, Williams and Stein, Bailed by Rothstein, to Know Fate Today.

CONSPIRACY IS CHARGED

New York, March 10 (A.P.).—Assistant United States Attorney Blake announced today that the Federal grand jury tomorrow will return indictments against three alleged members of an international narcotics ring who at the time of their arrest here last July were bailed out by the late Arnold Rothstein, slain Broadway gambler.

The three men, Sidney Stager, George Williams and Abraham Stein, will be charged with conspiracy and with violation of the Federal narcotics act, Blake said. He said the ring of which they were alleged to be members relayed narcotic orders and information throughout the United States and Europe.

According to Blake, Stager was a close friend of Rothstein. The assistant Federal attorney said Stager made frequent trips to Europe to arrange for narcotic shipments, and that in November, 1927, when he was arrested in Paris, Rothstein sent him a large sum of money.

Incidental to the investigation which led to the indictment, it is alleged, was the seizure before Rothstein's death of a trunk containing narcotics which had been consigned to Chicago from New York. Blake said that it was after this seizure that Rothstein parted company with Thomas (Fatty) Walsh, recently slain in Miami, Fla.

Dr. Wilson, who spoke before a session of the ninety-third New Jersey Methodist Episcopal Conference, urged public school instruction against alcohol. He also congratulated Senator Walter Edge, of New Jersey, for voting for the Jones bill to sustain what he now thinks is the verdict of the people.

REBELS SHIFT TO CHIHUAHUA; FEDERALS MAY QUIT MAZATLAN

Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, March 10 (A.P.).—Advices outlining activities of the rebel forces that are bestirring themselves to meet the northward advance of Gen. Calles' federal army from Mexico City via Aguas Calientes and into the state of Zacatecas reached revolutionary headquarters here today. A rapid shifting of 2,000 rebel troops from the southern west coast sector of Mexico to Chihuahua was announced by Gen. Francisco Borquez, rebel chieftain here, as under way.

Word that the revolutionary movement has enveloped the southern district of lower California also was received at rebel headquarters here today. Thirteen hundred troops from the southern section of lower California were reported aboard ship on their way to Guayamas to join the revolutionary forces of Gen. P. R. Manzo, now stretched out in a long line from Navajoa, in southern Sonora, to Culiacan, Sinaloa. What definite assignment would be given the new troops from across the gulf Gen. Borquez was not able to say definitely. That, he said, would remain in the hands of Gen. Manzo.

The lower California southern district, reports here said, swung into the rebel column at midnight last night, and almost immediately troops were started for the potential battle zones.

Amada Aguirre is governor of the southern district of Lower California. The northern district of the peninsula state, governed by Abalardo Rodriguez, still remains loyal to the federal cause, with Rodriguez concentrating such troops as are at his command on the Sonora border at San Luis, 30 miles south of Yuma, Ariz. Any clash between Rodriguez and soldiers of the southern district of Lower California appeared highly improbable. Mountainous country separates the two districts, and there are practically no lines of communication or transportation by land between the troops en route across the gulf which were expected to reach Guayamas late today or tonight.

Change Seen in Plans.

The shifting of rebel troops from the west coast to Chihuahua was a surprise move. It was interpreted by observers to indicate that Gen. Calles' advance by way of Aguas Calientes and into Zacatecas rather than toward Mazatlan, in which direction the main push of the rebel forces had been directed, had caused a shifting of revolutionary plans.

Gen. Borquez today, however, discounted all alarmist rumors concerning the movement of the troops. It amounted merely to a strategic move, he said, put into effect because the rebel chieftains found they had more men than they felt they needed on the west coast to cope with federal forces under Gen. Jaime Carrillo, now reported somewhere in the vicinity of Mazatlan, Sinaloa. Last reports received here from the rebel army on the west coast indicated the revolutionary troops to be massing at Culiacan, Sinaloa, in preparation for a battle to dislodge Carrillo from the Mazatlan territory and clear the way for an advance upon Mexico City.

The movement of troops from the west coast to Chihuahua gained significance from the fact that only last Thursday 2,000 rebel soldiers were sent south from Nogales by rail to support the advance toward Mazatlan of Gens. Manzo, Roberto Cruz and Ramon F. Iturbe. At that time Gen. Calles had not started his federal army rolling northward by way of Aguas Calientes.

May Evacuate Mazatlan.

A dispatch to the Nogales Herald from Culiacan, Sinaloa, late today, said Gen. Jaime Carrillo has his troops aboard trains at Mazatlan, Sinaloa, ready to evacuate the town as soon as the advance guard of the approaching rebel forces comes within sight.

Gen. Leopoldo Rabatte with the Tenth Rebel Battalion, Gen. Vicente Torres with the Thirty-eighth Battalion, Gen. Moises Jordan with the Sixteenth and Gen. Crisoforo M. Vasquez with the Sixty-second, are advancing rapidly on Mazatlan, the dispatch said. Yaqui Indians, it added, are en route to the scene and a new unit of 500 men has come down out of the hills under command of Gen. Simon Jago, to join the rebel troops.

The State of Nayarit was reported by the dispatch as up in arms against Gen. Carrillo and if he retreats it is likely that he will have to fight his way through a hostile state.

Colima, capital of the State of Colima, to the south, is reported in the hands of the rebels. In Culiacan rebel troops are parading the streets, singing. Churches there were crowded during the day.

Twenty-five hundred cavalrymen under Gen Roberto Cruz, former chief of police of Mexico City, were reported advancing 20 miles to the north of Culiacan. Infantry was arriving in Culiacan by truck.

Palomas Government Reorganized by Aguirre

DUCE HOLDS PAPAL ACCORD EQUITABLE

Premier Mussolini, in Speech to Packed Assembly, Sees Lack of Strife.

NO VICTOR OR VANQUISHED

Rome, March 10 (A.P.).—There is neither victor nor vanquished in the settlement of the Roman question, Premier Mussolini told the quinquennial assembly in the packed opera house this afternoon, "but only absolute equity which led to the accord, restoring reciprocally the de jure situation which had become dangerous and irksome."

This, his first public pronouncement on the conciliation of church and state, was the principal point in his speech and attracted the most attention and the loudest applause.

The premier emphasized that peace between the Italian government and the Vatican is an event of supreme importance not only for Italy but for the entire world. He pointed out a date which will remain famous in history when on February 11, 1929, by the Lateran treaty the Holy See "at last solemnly recognized the Italian Kingdom under the House of Savoy with Rome as its capital."

Asked Small Territory.

Giving the other side of the picture the premier went on, saying: "We, on our part, loyally recognized the sovereignty of the pontiff and the Holy See, which in reality already existed de facto." The premier especially pointed out the generosity of Pope Pius XI, who, he said, asked for the smallest possible territory, because territory, no matter how tiny, took nothing away from the greatness of another nature which was characteristic of the supreme head of a universal religion in which capacity he could not be a subject of any state.

After having recognized the preeminence of the Catholic Church in the religious life of the Italian people, which, he said, was perfectly natural for Catholic people and under a regime like Fascism, the premier said it was superfluous to affirm that all other cults which heretofore were, according to the constitution, only "tolerated" would be neither persecuted, suppressed nor simply annoyed.

"A Catholic state does not mean that citizens will be submitted to any pressure to follow a given religion or determined faith, even though that be the same as that professed by a majority of the people," the premier said.

Duce in Excellent Health.

Mussolini appeared in excellent health and his voice was strong. He walked on the stage after all the members of his cabinet and the grand council were seated and 400 candidates for the lower House of Parliament had been placed. He was immediately the object of a monster demonstration from the packed house. Smilingly, he allowed the vivas and handclapping for five minutes and then raised his hand in an imperious gesture for silence.

Reading rapidly and in a matter of fact manner, Il Duce could be likened to a chairman presenting a report to his board of directors. He seldom rounded his periods in oratorical fashion, using few gestures, all with his right hand, holding his manuscript with the left, a good reading distance away. He was attired in a cutaway, with a black tie and a large white handkerchief in his breast pocket. He displayed no jewelry save the Fascist badge in the right lapel of his coat. The speech lasted 40 minutes.

Scene Was Unique.

The whole scene was unique in the history of political rallies in Europe and so different from similar gatherings in the United States as to be almost totally foreign.

Probably for the first time in the history of a modern state all candidates for the nation's lower house of parliament were assembled on the same stage—a single nation-wide ticket for a single-party—going to the polls as such on March 24. There was only one speech and that was by number one of the list—Mussolini. There was no band or orchestral music but some impromptu singing by groups in the orchestra pit. This, incidentally proved that Fascist songbirds are considerably better at singing their own songs than the majority of the delegates to the Republican or Democratic conventions in the United States.

Soviet Frees Trotzky From Turkish Durance

Constantinople, March 10 (A.P.).—Leon Trotzky, former Soviet war lord who is now in exile, and his wife and son have left the Soviet Consulate, where they have been confined since their arrival from Russia, and now are living in a hotel in Pera. No reason has been made public for lifting the restrictions, which had hitherto been opposed by Soviet authorities.

While he now enjoys most of the privileges accorded any foreigners residing in Turkey, it appears that Trotzky has pledged himself not to organize any demonstration. The transfer from the consulate to the hotel was attended by the same secrecy that marked his arrival in Turkey.

Aviator Carries Furs On 1,600-Mile Flight

Edmonton, Alta., March 10 (U.P.).—"Punch" Dickens, noted aviator, who recently flew in through a blizzard to carry aid to a stricken northern outpost, today completed a flight of 1,600 miles from Fort Good Hope, upon the rim of the Arctic Circle, bringing with him a valuable cargo of furs, this season's catch.

Ordinarily these furs would not reach here until July or August.

Veteran Pilot Forced By Storm to Cross Sea

New York, March 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—For 25 years Capt. Frank T. Egan, a Government pilot, has boarded the incoming liners at Sandy Hook and guided them up the bay. For 25 years, after piloting the largest vessels down the bay, he has quit them at Sandy Hook and watched them out of sight in the direction of foreign ports.

Today Capt. Egan is on the high seas bound for Bremen. He returned from a four weeks' vacation Thursday and his first job was to nose the North German Lloyd Liner Dresden out of port. This he did, but arriving off Sandy Hook the weather was so bad and the wind so high that he was unable to put off for the pilot ship. Thursday night his wife, at their home at Leonia, N. J., received a radiogram with the information that her husband was making an enforced trip abroad.

AERIAL GOLD QUEST STARTS THIS WEEK

Canadian Flier to Hop Off on Search for Modern El Dorado in North.

WILL LEAD SEVEN PLANES

New York, March 10 (U.P.).—Search for a new El Dorado starts this week when Capt. Charles Sutton, chief of Canada's flying gold hunters, takes off for the Canadian Northwest.

Capt. Sutton was to spend Sunday at the Fairchild Airport, Farmingdale, Long Island, grooming his specially equipped Fairchild cabin monoplane for a take-off Monday or Tuesday. The aviator will lead the Dominion explorers in a seven-plane hunt for gold and copper claims begun last summer. The expedition, when completed, will have cost $2,000,000 during four years' time.

The trip north will be made via Montreal, Ottawa and Winnipeg. At Montreal, Capt. Sutton will replace landing wheels with wide skis of his own design. There he also will install a special long-wave radio set imported from England. His objective is Tavane Bay, 1,200 miles north of Winnipeg, the expedition's base.

With Capt. Sutton when he hops off will be his wife and A. J. Milne, chief mechanic of the Dominion explorers.

The plane is one of five Fairchilds owned by Capt. Sutton and is a sister ship of the Stars and Stripes, in which Commander Byrd flew over the Antarctic.

Painted maroon and red, the Sutton ship is a high wing cabin monoplane and powered by a 4.10-horsepower Pratt & Whitney "wasp" motor. There are seats for five persons. The ship is equipped for use of wheels, skis or pontoons. Cabin heaters, an electric motor starter, extra insulation devices for tanks and a sun compass are part of the equipment.

KITTY COSTELLO HELD AFTER DEFYING COURT

main during the rest of the night with the prisoner.

After daylight the woman still declared she was too ill to be moved, and United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage and Assistant United States District Attorney William Gallagher went to the apartment and prepared to hold a commissioner's hearing on removal proceedings. A physician, whose name was not divulged, also was called in.

Not Too Ill, Doctor Says.

He found that the woman was not too ill to move and the hearing proceeded. After considerable argument pro and con between the assistant district attorney and Joseph Kelly, the woman's lawyer, the prisoner consented to be removed to Baltimore. More than two hours were consumed by the hearing.

She was escorted to Baltimore by Deputy Clarkson and Deputy Mrs. Ferris. Arrived at the jail, the two deputies delivered the prisoner, obtaining a receipt showing her safe delivery, and then returned to Washington. When he reported back at the marshal's office here at 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Deputy Clarkson had been on duty continuously for almost 36 hours.

Miss Costello is the woman who gained considerable notoriety here some time ago when she trapped several persons into making deliveries of alleged liquor to an apartment in which she and several other prohibition agents were secreted. The woman telephoned for whisky and when the deliveries were made the agents arrested the person or persons who delivered it. The same system also was worked successfully in Baltimore.

The Baltimore case in which she was sought as a witness is an outgrowth of the arrest of Clarence Morseberger and William Cecil on a charge of violating the prohibition law. While she is said to have been instrumental in bringing about their arrest, she was wanted as a witness for the defense. The case was up for trial Thursday, but the woman did not appear.

Judge Orders Appearance.

Judge Coleman ordered her appearance in court Friday. When the trial was resumed on that date, John J. Quinn, deputy prohibition administrator for Washington, told the court he had located the woman in Washington and instructed her to be in court for the trial.

Prohibition Administrator John F. J. Herbert told the court that the woman's employment with his bureau ceased Thursday. John Phillip Hill, attorney for Morseberger and former representative, declared in a statement to the court that the woman tore up the subpena when it was handed to her by a Washington deputy marshal and almost kicked the officer down the steps. Judge Coleman then issued the bench warrant and adjourned the case until today.

It was learned last night from Baltimore sources that Miss Costello had been making a tour of Washington places where whisky is sold for several weeks, and had gained considerable information which is expected to result in raids in the next week or so. One of the places she is said to have investigated is one said to be frequented by members of Congress.

Despite the fact that Administrator Herbert told the Baltimore court that Miss Costello's connection with the dry unit had ceased last Thursday it was reported that she had continued her work of 'under cover' agent Saturday night almost up to the time she was arrested.

Whether the woman's connection with the prohibition bureau was severed as the result of her failure to appear in court could not be learned last night.

It was learned, however, that during her work with the prohibition unit here and in Baltimore the woman had changed her hair six times. She came here as a blonde and when arrested had dark hair, according to the officers. At one stage her hair was red, and it is as the "red-headed prohibition agent" that she is best known to local bootleggers, it is said.

MURDERER OF GIRL, INSANE, FLEES CELL

Philip 'Two-Gun' Bishop Saws Way to Freedom, Evading Asylum Sentence.

HAS LONG CRIME RECORD

New York, March 10 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Philip "Two-Gun" Bishop, one of the ugliest and most maniacal thugs the police have had to deal with in New York, got his liberty last night by sawing through two bars over a window in the observation ward of Kings County Hospital, and dropping 8 feet to the ground.

With a record running back to 1905, when he shot and killed a 19-year-old girl, Catherine Doran, shortly before his own twelfth birthday, Bishop was in the observation ward temporarily before being taken to the State Hospital for the Insane at Mattewan.

Last January 30 at about 6:20 o'clock in the morning, he drove into a garage at Bergen street and Utica avenue, Brooklyn, and ordered the attendant, Clinton Turner, a negro, to give him five gallons of gasoline. He refused to pay, became enraged because he could not get it for nothing, and set fire to a gallon of gasoline, which he threw upon the floor.

He was convicted of arson, but physicians said he was insane. In the Gates Avenue Police Court in Brooklyn he threw the room into great commotion by hitting a guard in the face and by seizing so tight a choke grip upon Turner that several men were required to pry him loose and hold him.

He has been arrested thirteen times and sentenced twice to the penitentiary. Police consider him to be exceptionally dangerous.

He was found to be missing from the observation ward at 8:20 tonight. George Robinson, a prisoner charged with burglary, said some one came to a window of the ward last Tuesday afternoon, sheared a hole through the wire screen, handed in a hacksaw to Bishop, and went away. Robinson admitted he helped Bishop get through the bars.

maintain the respect and support of the men under him.

"Any man under Maj. Hesse who shares the responsibility for the reign of lawlessness, bootlegging and gambling that has prevailed in Washington under constitutional prohibition, can be trusted to do a good job as his successor. The policy of this administration from the top down should be to put only known dry officers on the job of drying up the Nation's Capital."

Besides Representative Kelly, Miss Norma C. Brown, vice president of the Flying Squadron Foundation of Indianapolis, and Dr. Edwin C. Dinwiddie, national legislative representative of the squadron, spoke at Foundry. Miss Brown described the general progress of law enforcement agencies in the nine years since the passage of the eighteenth amendment. She called attention to the large number of liquor cases that are awaiting court action and urged more courts to handle them.

Dr. Dinwiddie explained the purposes of the new national prohibition promotion committee that is being formed along the lines of political parties.

CROWD QUITS CHURCH AT MOVIE SHOW FIRE

the only damage to the church besides that caused to the projection room.

Merle Foster and Crown Davis were projecting the picture when the fire broke out. They, together with Tate T. Hackney, who was sitting in the balcony of the church within a few feet of the projection room, obtained fire extinguishers and had the fire under control when the firemen arrived.

The firemen ran a small hose to the balcony and completed the work of putting out the blaze while the audience was still leaving the church. Davis lost his coat, which was consumed by the flames.

Dr. Pierce said afterward that neither the audience nor the church was endangered by the flames. The vents to the projection room close automatically when the heat melts the soldering around them, thereby cutting off the flames from the remainder of the building.

The movie was the twelve-reel feature, "The King of Kings." Dr. Pierce had prefaced the showing of the picture by a brief talk, as is his custom on Sunday nights.

The pastor said that the picture will be shown again tonight as scheduled and each night for the remainder of the week. The crowd that went to see the picture last night was so large that it was necessary to turn away about 300 persons, he said.

BERLIN MAY BLOCK REPARATIONS WORK

German and French Views Are Seen Incompatible; Paris Politics Enter Parley.

POINCARE PLANS SPEECH

Paris, March 10 (A.P.).—The discussion of the exports committee on reparations enters today upon a crucial week in the long-drawn-out negotiations. Injection of the political element into what has been more or less exclusively financial discussion is coming before the French parliament on Thursday.

Premier Poincare was reported to have decided to leave President Moreau of the Banque of France under no misapprehension as to what is the policy of the government of France.

On the other hand, Finance Minister Cheron has a little speech ready to deliver which mentions occupation of the left bank of the Rhine as an operation that might be dispensed with. The premier was said to be insistent upon guarantees for fulfilling German obligations.

Berlin May Dissent.

Dispatches from Berlin today revealed the possibility, already suspected, that the work of the experts committee may distintegrate into nothingness, because of a fundamental disagreement between the German delegates on one hand and the allied and associate experts on the other.

The atmosphere here held a tinge of doubt that the German viewpoint on annuities and transfers could ever be reconciled with what France has announced as her intended demands. It would appear Dr. Hjalmar Schacht has nothing to add to his original offer of 1,500,000,000 gold marks payable during 37 years, while the allies and associate counter proposition is for 3,000,000,000 marks over a period of 62 years.

The visit of Dr. Schacht to Germany over the week-end, while ostensibly to attend the wedding of a nephew, was regarded as significant from the possibility of determining the final attitude of the German experts, on which rests the success or failure of the conference. Despite the "cordial atmosphere" which official spokesmen declare covers the situation, it is a matter of fact that there is a difference of 1,000,000,000 marks annually between the proposals of the Germans and of the allies.

Bank Discussion Today.

While his evident deadlock continues the new project of an international bank to handle reparations will be discussed by the experts tomorrow morning. French financial writers describe this project as the most important in the history of international finance. The experts are ported resolved to do away with all war-born machinery, such as the reparations commission and control committees, and to substitute peace-time organizations.

Heir to Turkish Throne Begs Cafe Job in Vain

Budapest, Hungary, March 10 (A.P.).—Prince Abdel Kadir, favorite son of the last Sultan Abdul Hamid, who might be sitting on the throne of Turkey if the monarchy had endured, applied today, hat in hand, for a job as musician in a cafe here. His fortune of $50,000,000 was gone and he had been deserted by his six former wives.

The prince, who recently sold a priceless violin which had been a birthday gift from his royal father, was dismayed to find all doors to the Budapest musical world closed to him. Gypsy musicians, who have a virtual monopoly, have threatened to strike if foreign musicians are admitted. The prince decided to join an itinerant troupe which will tour villages to pick up what money they can from the peasants.

	Authorized
Common Stock (No Par Value)	10,000,000 shs.*

The number of shares of Common Stock presently to be outstanding will consist of the 2,000,000 shares being publicly offered and any shares presently issued in connection with the acquisition of interests in other companies.

*Including 1,250,000 shares reserved for sale at $20 per share under options, granted or to be granted to the organizers, bankers and management, exercisable January 1, 1930 to December 31, 1936, inclusive, the number of shares deliverable upon exercise of these options being subject to increase in case of stock dividends on outstanding Common Stock. A part of these options is to be reserved for executive and technical personnel not yet in the Corporation's employ.

The following is contained in a letter dated March 7, 1929 from Mr. Graham B. Grosvenor, President of the Corporation:

PURPOSE

"The Aviation Corporation has been organized primarily as a holding and development company for the aviation industry. The Corporation aims to make available to its subsidiary and affiliated companies technical and management cooperation, as well as financial resources beyond those which would be at the command of any single unit. While it is anticipated that its holdings will consist largely of the majority of the common stocks of other companies, it may also own interests in companies not controlled. In either case, such companies may be established concerns or new organizations created for experimentation, development, investment, manufacture, sales, or operation of aircraft.

TECHNICAL STAFF

Although commercial aviation is already a substantial industry and a factor in the transportation system of the country, experimental and developmental work is still of great importance. It is hoped that this Corporation will play a significant part in the technical and commercial advancement of aviation in this country. It intends therefore to maintain a staff of experts versed in all important aspects of the industry. This staff will cooperate with the active managements of the companies in which the Corporation is interested as well as investigate aviation and related projects, and carry on experimental and development work directly for the Corporation. A part of the options on Common Stock will be reserved for the members of this technical division, which, it is expected, will be headed by Col. Thurman H. Bane, who served in a similar capacity as Chief of the Engineering Division of the Army Air Service, and will include, among others, at the outset Col. V. E. Clark, formerly Chief Aeronautical Engineer, U. S. Army, and C. Fayette Taylor, M.E., (in consulting capacity).

ORGANIZATION

The Aviation Corporation is at present negotiating for substantial interests in several large established companies in the field representing various phases of the industry. These acquisitions, it is expected, will be effected in the near future largely through the issuance of Common Stock of the Corporation and, in some instances, options to purchase Common Stock. The Corporation will receive $35,000,000 in cash as the proceeds of the present financing.

The officers of the Corporation will include W. A. Harriman as Chairman of the Board of Directors, Graham B. Grosvenor as President, Robert Lehman as Chairman of the Executive Committee, and George R. Hann as Vice Chairman of the Executive Committee.

In addition to the above officers it is expected that the Board of Directors will include, upon completion of the present financing, the following: Frank Andrews, Attorney, Houston, Tex.; L. W. Baldwin, Pres., Missouri Pacific Railroad Company; Harold O. Barker, Jesup & Lamont; William G. Beckers, Director, Allied Chemical & Dye Corporation; C. K. Boettcher, Boettcher & Co., Denver; D. K. HAZARDS OF INDUSTRY

Although the future of aviation as a manufacturing and transportation industry appears assured, there is no doubt that it will experience many vicissitudes before becoming thoroughly established and stabilized. Many individual companies will probably fail to fulfil the promise now held out for them, whereas new organizations, as yet obscure or not yet in existence, will become strong units in the industry. Moreover, many aviation companies are at present sacrificing the opportunity for immediate profits to the endeavor to prepare their organizations, in personnel, equipment and product, for what they may regard as the future demands to be met. It is believed that a company, such as The Aviation Corporation, with large resources of capital and personnel, will be able to be of constructive assistance to many aviation enterprises in developing their strength and earning power. However, any investment in the industry is hazardous, and must be regarded in the light of a speculation."

Cumulative Sinking Fund Will Operate to Redeem Entire Issue by Drawings at Par.

Interest payable September 1, and March 1. Coupon Bonds in denominations of $1,000 and $500, registerable as to principal only. Principal and interest payable in New York City in United States gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness, without deduction for any present or future Chilean taxes, at the Head Office of Interest shall also be collectible, at the option of the holders, in London, England, either at the City Office of The National City Bank of New York or at the Office of N. M. Rothschild & Sons, in pounds sterling, at the fixed rate of $4.8665 per pound sterling, or at Pierson & Co., in Amsterdam, The Netherlands, in guilders, or at the Stockholms Enskilda Bank, Stockholm, Sweden, in Swedish kronor, in each case at the then current buying rate of the respective banks for sight exchange on New York City.

THE NATIONAL CITY BANK OF NEW YORK, Fiscal Agent.

The Bonds of this Loan, authorized by Laws 4303 and 4495 of the Chilean Congress, dated February 16, 1928 and December 7, 1928, respectively, will be direct obligations of the Republic of Chile, which agrees that if, in the future, it shall sell, offer for public subscription or in any manner dispose of any bonds or contract or create any loan, internal or external, secured by lien or charge on any revenue or asset of the Republic, the Bonds of this Loan shall be secured equally and ratably therewith.

The Republic reserves the right to increase the semi-annual Sinking Fund payments.

The following is taken from a letter of Señor Don Pablo Ramirez, Minister of Finance of the Republic of Chile, addressed to The National City Company:

The proceeds of the present Loan, as well as of the £2,000,000 being offered simultaneously in the London market by Messrs. N. M. Rothschild & Sons, will be applied to the construction of public works, such as railways, irrigation works, port works, sewage and water works, and public buildings. The Government of Chile is now carrying out a comprehensive plan of public works, as authorized under law No. 4303, which provides for an expenditure of 225,000,000 pesos ($27,374,062) in 1929, which is to be provided for in part from the proceeds of the present dollar and sterling issues.

Chile with a population now estimated at over 4,200,000, has an area of 290,000 square miles. The leading industries are agriculture and mining. Agriculturally the country is self-supporting and its mineral output averages approximately $250,000,000 per annum. American capital invested is estimated at over $550,000,000, and British at over $500,000,000.

The Chilean Government is carrying out, with modifications, a program of administrative reform outlined by the Kemmerer Financial Commission in 1925. This has resulted in the stabilization of the currency on a gold basis, the establishment of a central bank of issue, a general budget law with a balanced budget, and the installation of an independent Comptroller-General. Various measures have been passed to stimulate the economic development of the country, taxation has been reorganized and economies effected by a reduction of personnel and control of expenditures.

The gold and gold exchange held by the Banco Central de Chile on February 15, 1929 was $59,995,622, providing a ratio of gold cover to notes outstanding and deposits of 97.67%.

The ordinary revenues for 1927, excluding loans, as reported by the Comptroller-General totalled $110,607,000, as compared with ordinary expenditures of $110,185,555. The corresponding figures for 1928 are $124,222,449 and $119,561,829, giving a surplus of revenues over expenditures of $4,660,620. The budgetary estimates for 1929 place ordinary revenues at $136,662,452 and ordinary expenditures at $130,374,019.

The total funded debt as of December 31, 1928, including all guaranteed obligations, was $416,037,654, of which $291,429,555 was a direct debt of the Government.

The foreign trade in 1928 included imports totalling $142,303,079 and exports totalling $239,181,687, of which $40,360,606 consisted of imports from the United States and $75,159,582 of exports to that country. Nitrate exports during the year ended December 31, 1928, totalled 2,798,900 metric tons compared with 2,375,500 metric tons exported during the preceding year. Copper production during the year ended December 31, 1928, totaled 277,419 metric tons compared with 239,325 metric tons produced during the preceding year.

Application will be made to list these Bonds on the New York Stock Exchange.

Price 93½ and interest, to yield 6.48% to maturity

$1,000,000 of this issue will be publicly offered in The Netherlands by Pierson & Co., Nederlandsche Handel-Maatschappij, Mendelssohn & Co., Proehl & Gutmann and Vermeer & Co., Amsterdam, and $600,000 will be publicly offered in Sweden by the Stockholms Enskilda Bank, Stockholm.

We offer these Bonds if, as and when issued to and received by us, subject to the approval of our counsel, Messrs. Shearman and Sterling, New York City, and Señor Don Hector Bocardo and Señor Don Gabriel Palma, Santiago, Chile. Delivery in temporary form is expected on or about March 28, 1929.

Representative John Newton Tillman, 70, Democratic member of Congress from 1915 to 1929 and former president of the University of Arkansas, died at his home here at midnight last night following a nine months' illness. He announced his voluntary retirement last summer and did not seek reelection.

Representative Tillman came to his home on a visit last June and illness prevented his return to Washington. He suffered a paralytic stroke on July 4 and since that time had been confined to his home. His condition took a serious turn about a week ago and a crisis set in yesterday from which he failed to rally.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Tempy Tillman; two sons, John and Fred, of Pawhuska, Okla., and a daughter, Mrs. L. R. Shavers, of Benton, Tex.

Burial will be tomorrow afternoon, following services at the First Baptist Church. A long list of men prominent in political and educational circles are among the honorary pallbearers.

From 1905 to 1912 Prof. Tillman served as president of the University of Arkansas, the school from which he received his A.B. degree in 1880. In 1914 he was elected to Congress and began his term in 1915, serving as a member of the House until shortly before his death. After the stroke last summer the veteran congressman announced he would not be a candidate for reelection and voluntarily retired. He was succeeded by Claude Fuller, of Eureka Springs.

During his career in Congress Representative Tillman gained national prominence by the long fight he had waged for the payment of Confederate pensions by the Federal Government.

Boy in River Saved By One-Armed Man

Watchman Plunges Into Icy Water Four Times to Rescue Youth.

Pittsburgh, March 10 (A.P.).—Herbert Langsdorf, 12, son of Patrolman Clark Langsdorf, of McKeesport, owes his life to the bravery of a one-armed negro watchman, David Jenkins, who dived four times among swirling ice cakes to rescue the lad when he fell into the Youghiogheny River yesterday afternoon.

The boy had gone to the river and was playing on a sandbar, witnesses said. Suddenly the edge of the sandbar crumbled, as the boy was testing the water's depth with a pole, throwing him into the stream.

Jenkins, seeing the boy's plight, sprinted 100 yards and plunged into the icy water. Failing to reach the boy at first, he dived four times before grasping the boy's clothing and pulling him to safety.

1,500 FLEE AS FLOOD SWEEPS OVER TOWN

Ice-Blocked River in Wyoming Overflows; Boy Is Victim of Frightened Autoist.

REFUGEES TAKE TO HILLS

Greybull, Wyo., March 10 (A.P.).—Forced by rampaging flood waters from the Big Horn River to abandon their homes in the dead of night, hundreds of citizens of this little oil town today returned to take toll of their property damage, after spending the night in the refuge of the nearby mountains.

One life was lost and property damage amounting to approximately $200,000 was left in the wake of the "flash flood," which rolled over the sleeping city last night when an 8-mile ice gorge in the river backed the water into the streets and inundated homes.

A Japanese boy was struck down and killed by a motorist who was making a hasty exit from the town to the hills to escape the rushing waters.

Late last night the dam formed south of Greybull in Sheep Canyon, near the junction of the Greybull and Big Horn Rivers. Gradually the water backed up, until more than 4 feet of water flooded the town streets.

The residents had not been caught fully unawares. Flood conditions were expected and an alarm was sounded, which caused the 1,500 inhabitants to start a hurried exodus to the hills. Many went to Basin, the nearest town, 8 miles away, where they received accommodations in homes and hotels. More than 200 were cared for in the Midwest oil refinery and hundreds of others spent the night in automobiles on the mountains overlooking the city.

"Fighting Woman Mayor" Stays.

One of the few to remain in Greybull, besides the telephone operators, was Elizabeth Wiley, known as the "fighting woman mayor" of Greybull. She refused to leave the city even when conditions were apparently serious.

When it became evident there was no possibility of immediate relief, an airplane was sent from Cody, Wyo., with explosives to be dropped on the ice jam. The plane traveled over the entire 8-mile stretch, dropping several bombs, and succeeded in breaking it up. Within two hours the water receded from Greybull's streets.

While the Greybull fire department was flood-bound in its building, several fires broke out and a number of dwellings burned to the ground. Most of the houses in the northern part of Greybull were carried from their foundations by the flood waters. Every dwelling in both the residential and business district was flooded. Railroad tracks north were washed out. An appeal was made for Rde Cross assistance.

Curtis Goes to Florida For Few Days' Vacation

(Associated Press.)

Vice President Charles Curtis left Washington late yesterday for a brief vacation in Florida, the first he has taken since the strenuous campaign last fall.

Hoping to remain in seclusion to get the full benefit of the opportunity for rest, Mr Curtis did not divulge his destination before leaving. While in the best of health, the Vice President told friends he was very tired. He continued at his post in the Senate until two days before his inauguration as Vice President. Mr. Curtis expects to return to Washington in a short time.

ence the President listened to the views of all three, but did not commit himself definitely.

The hope of the court supporters is that he will include in his message to the extra session that coonvenes next month a recommendation for the withdrawal of the Swanson reservation and the substitution of Root's proposal. This, roughly, provides that in the event of the President of the United States notifying the court that it claims an interest in any moot question, its objection shall have the same effect as an objection by any member nation in the league, and that if it is determined, notwithstanding, to go ahead with the advisory opinion, the United States may withdraw from the court, and any decision shall not be binding upon it.

Senator Swanson is represented as being agreeable to the change.

Walsh, who, like most of the Democrats, was willing to go into the court, even with only the reservations formed by the then Secretary of State, Charles Evans Hughes, sees no difficulty or surrender of principles in accepting the Root modification.

The big question is Borah, who, with sixteen other senators, fought to the last against our going into the court, and was not mollified even by the Swanson reservation. Borah and the progressive Republican group all voted against it, and were joined by Moses, of New Hampshire; Watson and Robinson, of Indian, and Williams, of Missouri. Blease, of South Carolina, and Reed, of Missouri, were the only Democrats on his list. The vote was 76 to 17 in favor of our joining the court.

Victory Seen in Senate.

There has been an attempt to sound the opinion of the Senate and the advocates of the court say there will be hardly a defection among the 36 Democrats who voted for it two years ago, and that only a handful of the 40 Republicans who voted with them will stand out. If that estimate is accurate, this country is as good as in the court now.

Borah's position is that the advisory function of the permanent court is responsible for most of the trouble. Moreover, he does not regard Root's solution as a workable expedient, inasmuch as it puts the court in a position of having to wait on politics and diplomacy before it knows whether it will take up a question or not.

As between the Root proposal and the Swanson reservation, Borah sees little difference—both are unacceptable to him. During the conference at the White House he is said to have made it clear that he maintained the same position he always held about our going into the court.

Coolidges' Sunday Is Passed Quietly

Former President and Wife Attend Church, Scene of Rites for Son.

Northampton, Mass., March 10 (A.P.) Calvin Coolidge's first Sunday at home was just like any other New Englander's Sunday. Church services in the morning and a drowsy afternoon at home with the newspapers comprised the day's program.

Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge attended services in the Edwards Congregational Church. It was the first time the former President had passed through its portals since July, 1924, when, grief-laden, he attended a funeral service for his son Calvin, jr.

A small group gathered outside the church to see them enter, and among these were friends to whom Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge smiled greetings. The Rev. James N. Armstrong, pastor, had chosen as a title for his sermon one that seemed peculiarly adaptable. It was "The Appeal of Religion to the Cautious and Contemplative." After services, the Coolidges tarried for a few minutes outside to shake hands with friends.

Explosives Carried Without Accidents

Railroads of the United States and Canada carried half a billion pounds of dangerous explosives during 1928, largely for commercial purposes, without death or injury to any person and with property loss of only $77, according to the Bureau of Explosives of the American Railway Association.

This property loss was equivalent to an average of less than one-tenth of a cent per car.

Indian Suit to Test Pocket-Veto Right

$13,000,000 Action on Muscle Shoals Lease Opens in Capital Today.

(United Press.)

A $13,000,000 Indian case, the principle of which involves also the fate of a bill passed by Congress directing continued Government operation of Muscle Shoals, will be argued before the Supreme Court today.

The case is the celebrated "pocket-veto" appeal of the Okanogan Indian tribe. The question is whether Congress adjourns or recesses when it ends its first session.

If it adjourn, then presidential pocket vetoes kill the bills. If it merely recesses, and the second session of the same Congress is regarded as a mere continuation of the first, then the bills become law at the end of ten legislative days without presidential action.

Attorney General Mitchell will argue the White House side of the appeal, which results from a bill authorizing the Okanogan and other tribes to bring suit for about $13,000,000 alleged due under old treaties between the Indians and the Government.

THE WORLD COURT PROPOSAL.

The hollow pretense that the court set up by the League of Nations is really an independent world court of justice is still maintained, in the face of absurdities that expose the humbug. The league council, for example, has just unanimously approved of Elihu Root's formula which seeks to harmonize the court statute with the Senate's reservations. What has the council of the league to do with this matter, if the court is independent of the league?

The United States would have supported the court long ago, if the court had been independent of the league. It was because of the attempt to keep the court an agency of the political mechanism called the League of Nations that the Senate made its reservations.

In some quarters it is now confidently assumed that the Senate will readily approve the Root formula, under which the league retains the right to use the court for political purposes. The fact is, however, that a two-thirds vote for approval of the court statute could not have been obtained in the Senate except by attaching reservations which divorced the court from the league so far as American interests were concerned. The Root formula in its essence provides that if the league insists upon using the court to obtain politico-legal opinions against the wish of the United States, this Government can withdraw its adherence to the court statute without having its action regarded as unfriendly. In other words, the Root formula says to the United States, "Try it, and if you don't like it you can withdraw." Thus it is proposed that the great barrier set up by the Senate against the use of the court for political purposes shall be thrown down, but that the United States shall have the right to withdraw if the arrangement does not work.

The United States was offered the same right of withdrawal from the League of Nations, but it preferred not to enter into the entanglement, and this decision was favorably commented upon by Mr. Hoover in his inaugural address. The Senate may be asked soon to agree to enter into an entanglement with an agency of the league, with the soothing assurance that the tie can be severed if it proves unsatisfactory.

This is not the arrangement that the Senate provided for when it adopted the fifth reservation. It may be that public sentiment and the sentiment of the Senate have changed, but if so the change has not been manifested. The record stands as a vote of 76 to 16 against entering into an arrangement that permits the League of Nations to manipulate the so-called World Court for political purposes in matters affecting the United States.

RADIO-WIRE MERGER.

The so-called White act makes unlawful the acquisition, ownership or control by any person, firm, company or corporation engaged in the business of communications by radio, of any part of the stock or any interest in the physical property or other assets of any other cable, wire, telegraph or telephone line or system if the purpose is to lessen competition or restrain commerce. The provisions of this act have stood in the way of the highly desirable and much discussed radio-cable merger. They also served to bring to an end discussions that were under way up to several months ago relative to a merger between the Western Union and the Radio Corporation. It is rumored now, however, that the discussions have been resumed and that the merger is practically at hand.

The Radio Corporation is most anxious to tie in with a telegraph system. It has offered for years a highly satisfactory communications service with Europe and other points, but it has had no domestic network of wires through which it could gather and deliver its transoceanic traffic. Western Union, too, would benefit by a merger with the Radio Corporation. Radio offers competition to its cable services and it would earn an additional profit if messages directed "via radio" were all gathered over its land wires, and if messages coming in by radio were distributed over its wires. Merger of Western Union and the Radio Corporation communications services seems to be entirely natural nor does it seem that it would serve to cut in on the volume of cable traffic.

To make possible the merger in the face of the White act, it is understood that Western Union will form a new company in order to separate its cable business from its land telegraph lines. Radio Corporation and the land lines then would merge, leaving the cable service to be operated independently. Whether such an arrangement would meet the approval of the Government remains to be seen.

From every standpoint it seems that the time has arrived for a critical study of the White act. The recent merger of British radio and cable interests is bound to affect American communications companies, and it seems vitally necessary, if the Americans are to meet the new competition, that the way be cleared for similar combinations in the United States. The Radio-Western Union merger would be highly beneficial to the companies and probably would result in an improved service to the public at reduced rates. A way may have been found to comply with the provisions of the White act while accomplishing the object desired.

THE POCKET VETO.

The United States Supreme Court is to take up today the question whether or not a bill left unsigned by the President at the adjournment of a midterm session of Congress becomes a law notwithstanding his failure to approve it. The theory advanced by the parties who deny the validity of the "pocket veto" is that Congress does not actually adjourn until its term expires, but merely recesses from one session to another. They hold that the President has an opportunity to return a bill with his objections at a succeeding session of the same Congress, and that if he does not do so it has become a law, as if the Congress had been continuously in session.

This theory runs counter to the plain and accepted meaning of the word "adjournment" as used in the Constitution and as understood by the Presidents from Washington to Coolidge. When a session ends Congress has invariably "adjourned." In the old days some Presidents at succeeding sessions returned bills which reached them too late for action before the preceding adjournment, but the Presidents as a rule have either signed bills within ten days or left them to die unsigned following an adjournment of Congress. Bills left unsigned have not been regarded as laws.

If the Supreme Court should now hold that a bill not signed within ten days of its receipt by the President becomes a law anyhow unless he returns it to Congress, either at the session when the bill was enacted or at a succeeding session of the same Congress, then a lot of forgotten bills are now valid law. Pensions subjected to pocket veto by President Cleveland and other Presidents are valid claims and must be paid, if the proposed new rule is to go into effect. Some of the bills left unsigned by Presidents at the adjournment of Congress were of a general nature, affecting all the people. Attorney General Mitchell, in his brief opposing the attempt to destroy the validity of the pocket veto, states that 120 measures which through a long course of years have been regarded as dead will have to be placed upon the statute books if the new theory is upheld. The confusion resulting from this resurrection of dead legislation might be compared with the restoration of resurrected husbands and wives to the arms of spouses who remarried long ago. The remedy, of course, would be to repeal the revived legislation; but Congress might take it into its head to recoil against this legislative murder, just as a married couple might be reluctant to murder their suddenly resurrected former mates.

The Constitution evidently intended that the President should have ten days in which to consider a bill, and that no bill should become law unless this ten days' consideration could be given to it. But if the constitutional provision should be construed as is now proposed, a majority in Congress could postpone a bill to the last days of a session and then send it to the President and make it a law by adjourning before he could return it with his objections.

FEES FROM BROADCASTERS.

When Commissioner Robinson, chairman of the Federal Radio Commission, told a Senate committee that it was his personal view that "a reasonable license fee comparable to the class of the station" might be imposed upon broadcasting licenses, the statement went generally unnoticed. Now it has bobbed suddenly to the forefront by reason of a resolution passed in the closing days of Congress requesting the commission to "formulate a schedule of fees to be recommended to Congress as the charges that should be made for the different kinds of licenses issued by the commission." Commissioner Robinson's statement was made in response to questioning regarding the $364,000 appropriation for the commission. It was his idea that this expense might be properly passed on to broadcasters, especially in view of the fact that commercial broadcasting has a money-making side.

In connection with a broadcasting license fee, a question of principle is involved that demands discussion. The Radio Commission was set up in the public interest, just as was the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Radio Commission preserves and protects the interest of broadcasters. The Interstate Commerce Commission functions similarly in behalf of the railroads. It might be desirable to charge broadcasters for the expenses of the Radio Commission, but if that be true, why should not Congress require the railroads to support the Interstate Commerce Commission?

In view of the simple language of the Senate resolution, it would seem that the Radio Commission has no choice but to formulate a scale of suggested license fees for broadcasters.

KEEPING POLITICS ALIVE.

In January, Gov. Roosevelt, of New York, publicly considered the state of the Democratic party. "Never before in its history, he said, has there been shown so clearly a militant, aroused and aggressive determination to continue actively to fight not only with a view to the national election four years hence, but for the congressional elections of 1930 as well. To wage this fight Gov. Roosevelt counseled a departure from the previous practice of "laying the national committee carefully away in cotton wool after each election." The national committee was to be made a permanent year-round body to keep Democratic sentiment alive and to weld the party into a homogeneous unit.

A similar suggestion was advanced by Dr. Work, chairman of the Republican national committee, at its meeting on Tuesday. There exists at the present moment an organization that demonstrated its efficiency by the overwhelming majority for President Hoover. This organization, he said, should be maintained, at least in skeleton form. "I earnestly hope," he added, "that State headquarters may be kept open continuously. They can, within themselves, demonstrate the necessity for their existence. The hurry, confusion and misdirected energy incident to hastily organizing, operating and demobilizing national headquarters, with their thousands of helpers, in four months, is only partially effective and unnecessarily expensive."

The wisdom of making a party a continuous working force is apparent. In the United States political parties are moribund except during campaigns, and they have been formed then only in the most loosely knit fashion. A man may call himself a Republican or a Democrat, but the affiliation has little practical effect. It would be most beneficial to the American political system were party affiliations made to have actual, permanent meaning.

VARIATION OF SPECIES.

The biological phenomenon known as the variation of species, in the study of which Charles Darwin was the pioneer and master mind, has puzzled scientists for years. Simple individual variations, or those arising in certain of the individuals of one parentage, were looked upon by Darwin as fortuitous, due to chance, or subject to the operation of natural selection. In other words, it was considered that divergence in the character of offspring from that of the parents resulted by slow degrees as the result of environmental changes. Variation frequently has been regarded as opposed to heredity, and greater understanding of its workings is one of the chief problems in the study of evolution.

Dr. F. K. Richtmyer, professor of physics at Cornell University, recently advanced a new theory as to the underlying cause of the variation of species. By exposing the eggs of the small fruit flies known as Drosophila to X-rays, he has found it possible to produce manifold and extreme variations instantaneously. If rays of the penetrating powers of X-rays are able to produce startling variations in fruit flies, he reasons that other rays of greater penetrating power, such as the newly discovered cosmic rays of Dr. Millikan, which come upon the earth constantly from outer space, should exert a much greater effect.

The theory is interesting, not only because it may serve to shed further light upon the problem of variation, but because, if it can be proved, of its possible practical effect. If, through the centuries, variation has been caused by the effect of undiscovered rays, their discovery and control may enable man to guide variations toward continual improvement. Fantastic as this may seem, it is no more so than was the idea, before the discovery and harnessing of the X-ray, that man could peer beneath the surface of the skin.

THE WHITE HOUSE BABY

From the Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Against the background of rather somber dignity set by the change of administration, it is good to catch the lively figures of Peggy Ann and Herbert Hoover, jr., grandchildren of the new President, who for the time at least will be members of the White House family.

Not since the regime of Theodore Roosevelt, we are reminded, have there been children in the White House, and of those only Quentin was small enough to have gushing visitors speak to him in baby talk. One must go back to Cleveland to find real babies romping in the White House corridors.

From what the correspondents write about her, Peggy Ann can be depended upon to keep the White House atmosphere from becoming too sedate. Peggy looks like the type of little baggage who would not hesitate to climb up on her granddad's knee when a Cabinet meeting was in progress, if she could slip past the guards. She is, in fact, as thoroughly delightful a little imp, believing the reports, as ever broke into the spotlight, and liked it.

That is quite as it should be. She is exactly the age to get the utmost fun out of living in the White House. No matter how long her grandfather stays there Peggy, who is only 3, can hardly be old enough to break champagne bottles on the bows of new ships or to have new fashions named after her.

She will never have to be dignified; she can pull the tail of the White House cat and strut around with the President's silk hat on her head and take Herbert, jr.'s, candy away from him to her heart's content. The country sadly needs some real youngsters in the White House to get excited about, and of course they are a godsend to the camera men.

Here's hoping Peggy Ann and Herbert, jr., have a successful administration. It may be their last chance to get into print until they write their "recollections" of the White House, half a century or so hence.

From the Ohio State Journal.

There's a baby in the White House, Herbert Hoover 3d, grandson of the President. When the Hoovers were moving in the baby's crib and perambulator were conspicuous on top of the first van load of effects. There has been no announcement made about the time the baby may spend in the White House, but it will be pleasant to many men and women if the President decides to keep his grandson with him as long as he stays. A baby would be an important resident in the White House. The Nation would enjoy the picture.

Not often has there been a baby in the family of the President. The White House has been given over largely to the grownups. And because youngsters have not been there the official residence of the President has lacked something, has failed to be a complete picture of the American home. Much of the time during the last half century there has been little of children or young people in the life there. The Roosevelt children were youngsters when their father was President. Baby McKee was there during a part of the Harrison administration. Nellie Grant won the hearts of the Nation as a young lady when her father was President, and history gives a conspicuous place to the Lincoln boy who was his father's special companion during some of the dark days of the Civil War.

President Hoover, more than any other of all the Presidents, is associated with home life and children because of his work as food administrator and as director of the Belgian relief fund. With that background the Nation would rejoice if the Hoover administration has, among other appealing features, a lively, healthy baby in the White House. We hope the youngster locates there for the full term. It will make the big official residence more nearly representative of the home life of the Nation.

Sincerity Itself. —Detroit News

LETTERE TO THE EDITOR.

Regulate the Stock Exchange.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is time this country got wise to the fact that it is just as necessary to regulate stock exchanges by law as any other business to inflate values on false earnings. Why should this country permit a few irresponsible gamblers to get all the credit they want in banks? Large corporations should also be curbed from loaning money for stock gambling as they now do. We can not permit the country's welfare to be destroyed by a lot of criminals who ought to be in prison instead of using the country's money for swindling the public by inflation of values.

JOHN WILSON.

What About the Youth?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: There is one problem which confronts the American people today which is far more important to the future than tariff revision, farm relief, the World Court, or even the Kellogg peace pact. It is one upon which all the future of the country hangs. Other problems are only temporary, while the problem to which I refer is one of present and of permanent danger. I mean the increasing prevalence of crime among the youth.

It is an alarming situation. The future of the country must and will depend upon the youth of the country, yet that youth is rapidly drifting into crime. There must be some cause for it. Is there a remedy? Can that remedy be found and applied? It must be found, and it must be applied if America is to continue as it is today—the head of the nations. The crime that is so prevalent is of every phase, of every degree. It ranges from petty stealing to highway robbery and murder. The most horrible part of it is that it is not confined to one sex, but girls as well as boys are listed among the perpetrators.

To find the cause and apply the remedy is the great duty of the church, of legislators, of social organizations. Some time ago an association in New York propounded to a selected number of prominent citizens, including clergymen, lawyers, doctors, merchants, manufacturers, a series of questions as to the cause of so great an increase in youthful criminals. They all placed "bad companionship" as one of the causes. Seven of the ten classes questioned placed it at the head of the list.

Bad companionship! Who is most to blame if their children fall into bad company? Is the blame to rest on society, on the system of education, on the church, or on the parents? In one of his many remarkable speeches the late President Benjamin Harrison told his audience that the future of American independence depended upon American homes; that if there was no real home life, there would cease to be good citizens, and without good citizens no government could long survive. If idleness leads to vice, and then to crime, as all history proves to be so, then industry must lead in the other direction, to virtue and honesty. When Congress adopted that wonderful ordinance of 1787, organizing the Northwest Territory, it declared that "Religion, morality and education are necessary to good citizenship." That statement is as true today as it was in 1787.

Good citizenship in the future depends upon the youth of the present time. They must be saved from shifting into crime. How? That is for society to solve, and it must be speedily solved.

E. P. CHAMBERLAIN.

Senator Jones on Prohibition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Senator Jones has earned and won the blessings of the bootleggers through his authorship of that act of legalized lawlessness known as the Jones law, which so directly tends to the increase and briskness of the present enormous and ever increasing liquor traffic, with its ever increasing evils of the drink evil; but this gives him no excuse for the indulgence in silly twaddle attributed to him by the press reports.

The press reports Senator Jones as saying "* * * it should be possible to enforce the prohibition laws effectively. * * *"

No one better than Senator Jones knows that the Senate aided in enacting prohibition laws, the enforcement of which absolutely precludes the enforcement of prohibition laws.

No one better than Senator Jones knows that the Coolidge administration was forced by the occurrence of events to choose between attempting to enforce the eighteenth amendment of the Constitution and the Volstead law and attempting to enforce the prohibition treaty laws, which, according to the finding of the Supreme Court, legalize acts in nullification of the eighteenth amendment and in violation of the Volstead law.

No one, better than Senator Jones knows that the Coolidge administration chose to enforce the prohibition treaty laws and thereby required Mrs. Willebrandt and Dr. Doran to nullify the eighteenth amendment and violate the Volstead law every day of the week, Sundays and holidays included.

No one, better than Senator Jones, knows that the Hoover administration must follow the lead of the Coolidge administration as to the enforcement of prohibition laws which absolutely prevent enforcement of prohibition laws.

It would be quite right and proper for Senator Jones to join in the chorus raised by prominent persons, some senators and others who, while utterly incapable of assimilating even the littlest kind of thinks, continuously can emit resounding emotional sounds and in that chorus warble about the enforcement of prohibition.

Theoretically the practically impossible prohibition can be enforced, but prohibition laws never during the prevalence of the present legal condition which require the enforcement of prohibition laws to prevent the enforcement of prohibition laws.

WILLIAM W. KIMBALL.

To Serve Justice.

Minneapolis Tribune: When the person who perjures himself on the witness stand is made to pay the penalty he should, then Justice will receive her greatest support. Today 999 out of 1,000 can lie, if they want to, on the witness stand and get by with it. The worst part of this is that the witness knows it. Justice will never come until we recognize the importance of honest testimony. Until then court proceedings will continue to be depressing to the averse law-abiding, liberty-loving citizen. At times it requires the finest command of language to keep silent.

A Sheep Killed by a Dog Is Just as Dead as One Killed by a Wolf.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

ONCE upon a time, in a land far away, a certain rich man owned a great flock of sheep and employed a herder to watch over them and protect them from the wolves.

The wolves were protected by the law, and the herder could neither shoot nor trap them. They prowled in the underbrush day and night; and despite the herder's efforts to frighten them away, they killed more and more sheep every year.

At last the despairing herder appealed to his master. "It is a great folly," said he, "to protect the wolves that kill the sheep. We must change the law and destroy them. While the law protects the wolves they will continue to destroy sheep in spite of all I can do. But if the wolves are outlawed, I can trap and shoot them and train dogs to kill them."

This seemed reasonable to the rich man and he used his influence to have the law changed.

The herder bought scores of dogs and set traps and used his gun; and before the moon had waxed and waned again, every wolf in the land was destroyed.

"Now," said the herder, "all will be well."

But he was mistaken. The killing of sheep continued. Each morning the herder found the mangled remains of some fat ewe or a helpless lamb, and as the days passed the number of slain sheep steadily increased.

"The wolves at their worst did less damage than this," said the herder. "If I didn't know better, I would think the wolves still here and killing without hindrance."

When the rich man discovered this new and greater destruction of his property, he made a hurried investigation and delivered an ultimatum.

"It's the dogs," said he; "kill them."

"But, no," cried the astonished herder. "The dogs are here to guard the sheep. It was the wolves that did the killing. These are good dogs, and it isn't right to question their honor."

"Darn their honor," said the rich man. "I know only this. The wolves are dead and still my sheep are slain. Your dogs are a failure. They do more harm than good."

"No, sir;" said the herder. "Dogs are righteous. It is wicked to accuse them."

"Worse than the wolves," growled the rich man.

"There," said the herder, "I knew something was wrong with you. You are on the side of the wolves. You want them back again."

"Great guns!" cried the exasperated rich man. "I'm not interested in dogs or wolves. What I'm thinking about is the sheep. Call your dogs righteous if you wish. Put a little tin halo on each one. Say they can do no wrong. But mark this: If you don't save my sheep, your precious dogs will go the way of the wolves and I'll find a herder who cares more for results than for labels."

PRESS COMMENT.

The Prophet Justified.

Detroit News: Just as we prophesied, the new Cabinet has ten members.

No Wonder.

Cincinnati Enquirer: No wonder the Aunty League didn't want that $34,000,000. Dry agents would never get sober enough to work.

Too Late, Too Late.

San Diego Union: The Governor of Florida has just decreed that all forms of gambling must stop at once. But, of course, this comes too ltae to help those who are already married.

In Washington.

Buffalo News: Some senators must be persuaded by the President, and some buy their own breakfasts.

No, Indeed.

Atlanta Constitution: If the country was as much concerned about the prevention of automobile accidents as about the prevention of flu, we wouldn't be so badly run down.

As Always.

Ohio State Journal: Another thing we seem to notice is that those members of the new Cabinet that the average editor never heard of before this thing came up are more highly praised by him than the ones he knows all about.

We'll Bet.

Minneapolis Journal: The way the snow has been suddenly cleared from all the State highways since that highway snowplow at Luverne dug up 80 one-gallon cans of moonshine liquor has been a caution to cats.

Charlie's Reservation.

Richmond Times Dispatch: As presiding officer of the Senate Charlie Curtis, who is part Indian, is on a reservation now where he can do the rest of the country no harm in the event he gets it into his head to go wild.

For Farm Relief.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle: One good way to stop overproduction of farm stuff would be for the farmers to adopt the efficiency experts' methods of holding daily conferences on business problems.

Or Something Else.

Boston Transcript: Americans in Rome stood with uplifted glasses while the band played the national anthem at the hour of Mr. Hoover's induction into office. Now, did the glasses contain tea or grapejuice?

Darrow's Farewells.

Philadelphia Inquirer: Since Clarence Darrow retired from criminal practice he has defended two persons accused of murder. Well, Darrow isn't the first good actor who has come back for another farewell appearance.

We Challenge 'Em.

New Orleans Times-Picayune: It has been asked: "Which is America's most literate city?" We give it up, but for the most littery city we will nominate New Orleans the morning after Mardi Gras.

Exactly.

That's That.

Wedding Is Hinted As King Journeys

Although court officials maintain that the unmarried and handsome king is journeying only to consult specialists in Vienna and Berlin for his ear trouble, the impression persists that the ultimate object is to perfect plans for his marraige with Princess Giovanna of Italy.

The departure of the king was a closely guarded secret. He left his palace in a closed limousine with drawn curtains and drove at top speed to the station. The only person to wish him Godspeed was his warm friend Premier Lia Ptcheff. The public was not aware of his departure.

Stinson and Page Drop Endurance Flight Plan

Bay City, Mich., March 10 (A.P.).—Eddie Stinson and Randolph G. Page today abandoned their third attempt within the last two weeks to better airplane endurance flight records. The plane, the Sally Sovereign, made a successful take-off from the ice of Saginaw Bay at 11:20 o'clock this morning but motor trouble forced a landing two hours later.

Stinson would not discuss his plans, but it was believed here no further attempt would be made by the Detroit aviators to better the record this winter.

Philippine Tariff Opposed by Quezon

Leader Is Against Levy on Island Goods Unless U. S. Grants Freedom.

(Associated Press.)

Denying reports that Philippine leaders had relinquished their claims for immediate independence, President Quezon of the Philippine senate, in a cablegram made public by the Philippine Press Bureau here yesterday, declared he was opposed to the imposition of a tariff by this country upon the islands' products only so long as the United States retains the Philippines.

The proposed tariff restriction, Quezon said, "has convinced us more than ever that immediate independence will not only be politically beneficial to us, but, in the long run, will have less injurious economic effect than the indefinite continuation of the present status, for the present economic relations between America and the Philippines are subject to change by Congress at any time.

"We are not opposed to the imposition of a tariff on our products," he continued. "On the contrary, we are in favor of it, if together with such imposition, we are granted independence, the tariff to take effect simultaneously with the inauguration of the Philippine republic."

THE LIFE UNDERWRITER
A Friend

The first impulse, often, when a life insurance representative calls, is to show him little courtesy—but pause a while and consider. Perhaps no one is better equipped than he to give you practical suggestions for increasing and conserving your estate and for providing for your family's welfare.

Life underwriting has become a profession for which the men and women aspiring to enter it are carefully educated and prepared. The experienced underwriters of well-established companies are well versed in business matters and fully qualified to advise regarding the best methods of estate conservation.

We believe in life insurance, for it is one of the best and easiest ways of replacing earning power, creating an estate and providing funds to liquidate taxes and debts.

We do not sell life insurance, but we do administer the proceeds for the benefit and protection of the beneficiaries under a life insurance trust.

IN THE PLAY HOUSE

By JOHN J. DALY

Kenneth MacGowan and Sidney Ross present Dorothy Gish in "Young Love," a comedy in three acts by Samson Raphaelson. Directed by George Cukor. Settings by Watson Barratt.

THE CAST:

Fay Hilary ..... Dorothy Gish
David Hallowell ..... Tom Douglas
Peter Bird ..... Murray Kennell
Nancy Bird ..... Catherine Willard

ACT I.
A veranda on the Birds' Long Island home. Dawn.

ACT II.
Peter Bird's Studio, New York. Morning, a week later.

ACT III.
Bird's Studio. Two-third the same day.

Samson Raphaelson, who wrote "Young Love," the play at the Belasco, went quite to some pains in preparing a defense of his work, and this appears as a preface to the book bearing the script.

'Twas a cold winter's night, in front of a fireplace, that the apologia and the play were read. Last night, seeing "Young Love" enacted on the stage, with Dorothy Gish called back from movieland to play the central role, this thought occurred: Why the play? Ergo, Why the defense?

However, "Young Love," in play form, does need a defender—and the counsel for defense should not, of course, be its author, Mr. Raphaelson; for Mr. Raphaelson, prejudiced, might be trying to fool somebody—probably is—and that is no role for a defender.

It is undoubtedly true that we live in a strange age—one in which anything can happen, and usually does—and that, it would seem, is the only defense for "Young Love," if not its real excuse for existence.

All this—unfortunately—sounds as if "Young Love" is being taken seriously. It shouldn't be, although such eminent personages as the official censors of the City of Brotherly Love, which is Philadelphia—from the Greek derivation of the word—went so far as to bar the play from those precincts. Rumor hath it, too, that the Smoky City, Pittsburgh, wanted to keep its skies clear to the extent of smothering the smoldering flames of youth as they burn in "Young Love." Just what Washington's guardians of public morals and hygiene will have to say, when all these things are called to their attention, remains to be heard. Since the holy spirit is sweeping the land, from the East Coast to the West, there will probably be some mention of this at the next Cabinet meeting. The drama is an influence; but, to the play itself:

It seems that there is about to be a wedding. At least, Fay Hillery is engaged to David Hallowell, about to take his consular post in far-off Africa, from whence he can send reports to Washington. Before going that far Fay would like to be sure that she and David are really in love. In her day, she has witnessed many an unhappy marriage. In fact, both these youngsters are even then house guests of a couple they suspect. So, in the helter-skelter of thoughts as they surge through Fay's mind, she conceives some sort of an arrangement whereby her boy friend should seduce the wife of their host and she the husband of the hostess.

A nice party this. If Mr. Raphaelson is serious; but——

Mr. Raphaelson must have been spoofing—else he would not have devoted so much valuable time to such a silly creature as Fay Hillery.

As plays have the impudence, sometimes, of taking on the complexion of their central character, so "Young Love," in the process of presentation, comes out rather ridiculous; which is probably a very high compliment to young Mr. Raphaelson who undoubtedly sees in this namby-pamby era a throw-back to the early chaos of the world; about the time of the Neolithic, following the Paleolithic Age.

Only four persons in the cast, the play construction is marvelous not to have audiences bored to death with conversation; since in the very nature of the play there are usually never more than two characters on stage at a time, two-way traffic. The wit flies fast, and the humor—such as it is—evokes laughter upon the slightest provocation. Sinners all, how the world giggles at the virtuous; and, vice versa. There should be, really, another amendment to the Constitution.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

THE CHILDREN - - - By EDITH WHARTON

A sparkling serial story by one of America's foremost novelists at the gleaming heights of her power.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

Martin Boyne, a civil engineer, who has been kept busy on projects in all parts of the world, is taking an ocean trip. He is looking forward to another fortnight of solitude, when the steward places a chair next to his tagged "Mrs. Cliffe Wheater." Cliffe Wheater was a schoolmate of his at Harvard. His wife was a friend of those days. Boyne is puzzled by the varied types of children in the entourage and further mystified by its leader. He is told by the gray-haired woman called "Scopy" her name is Judith. She is the oldest child of the Wheaters. The oldest boy's name is Terry, and his health is poor. "Scopy" recounts the tangled love affairs of the Wheaters to explain the group for Boyne. Boyne begins to mull over his own affairs, particularly with a Mrs. Sellars. Hitherto "unattainable," he recalls her husband has died. Terry, the heir-apparent to the Wheater fortune, asks Boyne to intercede in his behalf with his parents to obtain a tutor. Complying with the Wheaters' request, he hires a young Englishman. Boyne leaves the Wheaters with their new yacht and their retinue at Venice and journeys to the chalet of Mrs. Sellars. She agrees to marry him but refuses to set a day. They are interrupted by a visit from Judith Wheater, who announces that they have fled the Wheaters because another break seems imminent and the children refuse to be again parted. Boyne journeys back to Venice and after countless interruptions finally gets the Wheaters to agree that the children can go along as they are with Boyne as a "trial guardian." Mrs. Sellars arranges a picnic for the children and takes along Mr. Dobree, an attorney who settled her husband's estate to her advantage. Mr. Dobree proposes while on the picnic and is refused. Afterwards Mrs. Sellars agrees to hasten her wedding to Boyne, who is in a quandary because of the children. Mrs. Sellars goes to Paris to meet a rich, old aunt.

HE FLUNG open his door, and saw a large shrouded object in the middle of the floor; an object of odd uncertain shape, imperfectly wrapped in torn newspapers tied with string. The wrappings yielded to a pull, and an ancient walnut cradle with primitive carven ornaments revealed itself to his petrified gaze. A cradle! He threw himself into a chair and stared at it incredulously, as if he knew it must be an hallucination. At length he remembered the porter's having mentioned a letter, and his glance strayed to his chest of drawers. There, perched on the pincushion, was an envelope addressed in a precise familiar hand—the hand of Terry Wheater, always the scribe of the other children when their letters were to be subjected to grown up criticism. Boyne tore the envelope open and read:

"Darling Martin:

"We are all of us sending you this lovely cradle for your wedding present because we suppose you are going to be married very soon, as we think Mrs. Sellars has gone to Paris to order her trousseau. And because you have been like a father to us we hope and pray you will soon be a real father to a lot of lovely little children of your own, and they will all sleep in this cradle, and then you will think of

"Your loving Judith, Terry Blanca—"

Under the last of the rudimentary signatures Chipstone had scrawled his mark; and below it was a scribbled postscript from Judith: "Darling, I open this while Terry's not looking to say he said we oughternt to call the cradle lovely, but it is lovely and we wanted you to know it was. Judith."

In the midnight silence Boyne sat and laughed and laughed until a nervous spinster in the next room banged on the wall and called out venomously: "I can hear every word you're both saying."

CHAPTER XXV.

Boyne had been wrong in imagining that Mrs. Sellers might come back unannounced to assure herself of the effect of her letter. She did not do so; and after two days he decided that he could no longer put off sending some kind of answer.

Only, what could he say?

Being with the children all day and every day, sharing their meals, their games and scrambles, had gradually detached his thoughts from Mrs. Sellers, reducing her once more to the lovely shadow she had so long been; with the difference that she was now a shadow irrevocably, whereas before he had always believed she might become substantial. Finally he girt himself to the task; and at once his irritation, his impatience, seemed to materialize her again, as if she were fated to grow real only when she thwarted or opposed him. He wondered if that were another of the peculiarities of being in love. "People get too close to each other—they can't see each other for the nearness, I suppose," he reflected, not altogether satisfied with this explanation. He wrote: "And as to what you propose about the children, do please believe that I don't mean to be unreasonable—but, unless I'm a little mad, your suggestion apparently amounts to this: that I should shove them straight back into the hell I've temporarily got them out of. For them that hell, at least the worst of it, is being separated from each other; and you ask me to separate them, when to keep them together is the one thing that they and I have been fighting for. I make no comment on your proposal to hand over the younger ones to Lady Wrench and Buondelmonte; women like you are what they are at the price of not being able even to picture such people as those two. But I know what they are, and never, as long as I can help it, will I be a party to giving back into such hands these children who have trusted me. And when you say that Judith, thanks to whom the younger ones have developed a sense of solidarity and mutual trust in a world which is the very negation of such feelings—that Judith should be asked to see her work deliberately wrecked, and all the feelings she has cultivated in the others trampled on——" He broke off, flung down the pen, and sat hopelessly staring at what he had written. "Oh, hell—that's no use," he groaned.

The truth was that, even in his most rebellious moments, he could not trick himself into the idea that he had a grievance against Mrs. Sellars. In reality it was the other way round. When he had gone to Venice to negotiate with the Wheaters about the future of their mutinous family he had gone as an affianced man. In pledging himself to his strange guardianship he had virtually pledged Mrs. Sellars also, and without even making his promise depend on her consent. He had simply assumed that because she loved him she would approve of whatever he did, would accept any situation he chose to put her in. He had behaved, in short, like a romantic boy betrothed to a dreamer of his own age. All this was true, and it was true also that Mrs. Sellars had never reproached him with it. The sense of her magnanimity deprived his argument of all its force, and benumbed his angry pen. He pushed away the letter, pulled out another sheet and scrawled on it: "Awfully sorry but can not undo what I have done do try to understand me dearest."

Yes, a telegram was better; easier to write, at any rate * * * He tore up the letter, put on his hat, and walked down to the postoffice with his message.

For its answer he had only twenty-four hours to wait; and when Mrs. Sellar's telegram came it merely said: "I do understand your letter follows. * * *" Well, that was not unsatisfactory, as far as it went; but when two days more had elapsed, it was not a letter but a small registered packet which the postman put into Boyne's hands. Even in the act of signing the receipt, at his very first glance, he had guessed what the packet contained. He went up to his room, a little dizzy with the abruptness of the event, and angrily ripped off seal and string revealing the morocco box he had expected to find there. For a minute or two he sat looking at the box, almost as unconscious of what he was feeling as a man in the first minute or two after being stabbed or shot. "So that's that," he said aloud. But what "that" was going to be he had as yet no notion. It was a wound, of course—but was it mortal? He didn't know. Suddenly, with a mumbled curse at his own plight, he snapped the box open and saw a thin slip of paper twisted about the sapphire ring. On the paper he read: "I shall always remember; I shall never resent; and that is why I want you to give this to some woman who can make you as happy as you have made me." He pitched the box and the paper aside, and hid his face in his hands. After all he must have loved her, he supposed—or at least the vision of her which their long separation had created. * * *

Violin Solos By Spalding To Be Heard

WMAL Will Broadcast Feature Tonight; Opera by Mozart Scheduled Over WRC; Services for Lent to Be Heard.

Albert Spalding, violinist, will be the star of the Vitaphone Jubilee Hour from WMAL at 9:30 o'clock tonight. He needs no introduction to any music lover. Born in Chicago, he left there at an early age to study with the greatest violin masters of New York, Florence and Bellona. His first public appearance was in Paris at the age of 18. He was paired in a concert with Adeline Patti.

Since that time he has been heard in practically every musical center in the world. He was paid the honor of being selected as the soloist with the New York Symphony Orchestra in their European tour, the first time that an American symphony orchestra had ever been heard across the water.

The Ceco Couriers, featuring Henry Burbig in a burlesque of Poe's "The Raven," the Panatela Pageant, and the United Choral Singers are other evening features from WMAL.

The Swanee Syncopators will present an hour of dance music at 11 o'clock.

Mozart's opera, "The Marriage of Figaro," will be broadcast in tabloid form over the N. B. C. System, including WRC, at 11 o'clock tonight. Leading singers of the National Grand Opera Company will present the most familiar scenes under direction of Maestro Cesare Sodero.

The cast includes the following soloists: Susanna, Gitla Erstinn; La Contessa, Rosalie Wolfe; Cherubino, Marjorie Horton; Marcellina, Katherine Palmer; Don Basilio, Julian Oliver; Don Curzio, Harold Branch; Figaro, Ferruccio Corradetti; Dr. Bartolo, Arturo Imparato; Il Conte, Edward Wolter, and Antonio, Emil Cote.

The second anniversary of the opening of the Roxy Theater in New York City, from which emanate radio programs under direction of S. L. Rothafel, will be celebrated in a gala broadcast by Roxy and His Gang at 7:30 o'clock tonight.

One of the first voices lifted in St. Patrick's day greetings will be the "Voice of Firestone," when that theme occupies the opening minutes of the weekly broadcast from WRC at 8 o'clock tonight. In this St. Patrick's group, the Firestone Concert Orchestra, directed by Hugo Mariani, will play Herbert's "Irish Medley;" Franklyn Baur, tenor, will sing "Kathleen Mavourneen," and the choristers will sing the old Irish traditional song "Killarney." The "Blue Danube Waltz," of Strauss, is the classical feature.

A symphonic version of Rimsky-Korsakow's "Song of India" will be heard during the weekly broadcast by the Gypsies at 8:30 o'clock. Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in G Minor," a selection from "The Vagabond King" and Yradier's "La Paloma" also will be included.

Dr. Frederic Brown Harris will be the speaker in the noonday Lenten service at 12:20 o'clock today. A short program entitled "American Foundation for the Blind," is scheduled for 3:30 o'clock.

Capt. Taylor Branson will conduct the Marine Band in a concert at 4 o'clock. This feature is broadcast direct from the Marine Barracks.

Station WJSV will present Miss Jo Purcell, soprano, at 8:15 o'clock tonight. She will be remembered as one of the regular features from WGN, Chicago. Miss Purcell sings both blues and classical numbers, varied with popular songs of the day.

The S. E. trio from WJSV are at present conducting a contest for the radio listeners of their programs, offering $15 for a new name. They offer the fact that all three members of the trio are Virginia born, raised on farms and specialize in old familiar numbers.

Other features include the Awgwan Orchestra, the Massanutten Baby Chick Troubadours and Woodville Brown, Southern troubadour.

Station WOL will present a talk on the Associated Charities by Mr. Walter S. Ufford, at 6:20 o'clock tonight. A recital by Warner Kennedy, the Annapolis Hotel Orchestra and "Amos 'n' Andy" are early features.

Two hours of dance music will be presented at 10 o'clock.

WORK'S BRIDGE

A FINESSE is possible when a high card is forked by a tenace on its left. If West holds the King of a suit and North its Ace and Queen, a successful finesse can be made by leading the suit from the South hand. If West plays King, Ace wins and Queen is good; if West plays low, Queen wins and Ace is good for the second trick. Of course no finesse will succeed if East holds King over North's Ace-Queen.

Leading once toward North's Ace-Queen will capture West's King or King-x, but not his King-x-x; but with Ace-Queen-Jack in the North hand, two leads from the South hand would yield two finesses and West's King would be captured even if it had two guards. When Ace-Queen-Jack-Ten is held in one hand, or these four honors are distributed in any way between two partners, it is easy to finesse by leading from the hand that does not contain the Ace, and the finesse will succeed whenever the adverse King is on the right of the Ace. When the Queen is in one hand and Ace-Jack in the other, or Jack in one hand and the Ace-Queen in the other, with the Ten missing, more skill is required in handling the finesse. The lead should be small from the hand containing the single honor, toward the hand containing the Ace and either Queen or Jack. Suppose North holds Ace-Jack and three small and South holds Queen and two small. If West holds King-x, every trick in the suit can be made if South leads small.

Novices are apt to lead a Queen whenever the Ace is in the other hand, regardless of what the other cards may be. With the above combination, if the Queen were led, the King would cover and the adverse Ten would be made good for the third trick.

There are cases when playing No Trump, in which it is not advisable to lead even from Queen-Jack-x in one hand and Ace with two or three small in the other, neither Ten nor Nine being in either hand, lead small from the Ace toward the Queen-Jack. But this procedure would not be correct at a trump contract as the third round might be ruffed. Of course the Queen should not be led toward an Ace in the other hand when the Jack is not in either hand. With Queen-x-x in one hand and Ace-x-x in the other, the lead of the Queen would be the worst imaginable; it would limit Declarer to one trick in the suit, no matter in which adverse hand the King happened to be. Declarer can get two tricks by a small lead if the King is on the right of the Queen.

Roof Aerials Eliminated in New Hotels

R. C. A. Is Negotiating to Install Centralized System Also in Apartment Buildings to Be Constructed in Capital.

Negotiations are under way with several hotels and apartments under construction in Washington for a complete and entirely new system of radio installation.

"While we can not make public any names at this time, it is true that builders of several new hotels are actively considering installing our recently invented centralized radio systems," F. P. Guthrie, District manager of the Radio Corporation of America, said, when asked about the proposition yesterday. "One of these systems is specially designed for apartment houses and the other for hotels. In the apartment house equipment there is a central antenna with outlets in each apartment, where the tenants may attach their own sets.

"One antenna takes care of 80 sets. In the case of some of the larger apartment houses in Washington more than one antenna would have to be provided. This does away with the forest of wires, gets rid of unsightly poles and reduces the hazard for firemen, electricians and others who must have access to roofs."

Although improvised antenna systems have been provided on apartments here, it is said the new system of the R. C. A. is the first standardized equipment of this kind.

"Briefly, the centralized radio hotel installation comprises a central receiving unit, with one, two, three or four channels, each tuned to a different program, a powerful and highly efficient amplifying unit, and a number of automatic controls," Mr. Guthrie continued.

"There is the distribution system, which takes the programs to all parts of the hotel. Lastly, there is the listening-in equipment, which takes the form of headphones or loudspeakers, installed in each room. The loudspeaker is equipped with a manual volume control as well as with a channel selector switch, which permits the occupant of the room to enjoy a choice of programs. There is also a time switch, which starts and stops the programs automatically at any designated hour."

The first major hotel installation has just been made by the R. C. A. in the new Allerton House in Chicago, to guests in 887 of its 990 rooms. As in the case of electric lights, it is easier to make such an installation as the hotel or apartment house is being built, though the installation could be made later at more expense, Mr. Guthrie said.

"Chick" Godfrey's Radio Entertainers, including most of the featured artists from Station WJSV, will appear in person at Odd Fellows Hall, Clarendon, Va., at a radio revue and concert next Saturday at 8:15 p. m. Those attending will be given a peep into a radio studio and will see their favorite performer from WJSV as he or she appears before the "mike" in the studio. This show has appeared in Washington and vicinity on several occasions this season.

The featured artists will include "Chick" Godfrey, the "singing leatherneck," popular singer of ballads from Station WJSV on Wednesdays and Sundays; Woodville Brown, the Southern troubadour, whose guitar and old-time songs and yodel numbers are heard several times each week from WJSV; Ethel West, pianist and soprano soloist; the Hilo Boys, popular Hawaiian singers and instrumentalists; the Two Black Humming Birds, and, if possible, Old King Tut, otherwise Mr. Tom Robertson, of WJSV, will be the master of ceremonies and do the announcing. Mr. Robertson is a well-known banjoist and has a long list of radio entertainment periods to his credit.

Tickets may be obtained at the door the night of the show or at 339 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

The Story in a Tree.

IN the British Museum, London, there is a section of the trunk of a giant tree. It is 16 feet from side to side, and weighs about nine tons.

Section of a Big Tree, dated according to the rings.

There is an interesting story in that tree. It grew in California, and the part of the trunk was shipped to England after the cutting of the tree.

As you study this museum object, you find that it has hundreds of rings. Each ring is a sign of a new year of growth. There are 1341 rings, so we may place the first year of the tree back in the year 550.

Think of that! The tree started to grow soon after the Roman Empire was overrun by German tribes. Starting as a mere sapling, it rose to a height of more than 100 feet in the course of a few centuries.

The tree was growing well when Leif Ericson drifted to the North American coast about the year 1000.

Almost 500 years later—in 1492—Columbus sailed to the islands south of Florida. The tree was still standing still alive and growing larger.

Magellan made his famous voyage. Cartier, Champlain and LaSalle explored the New World. Still the big tree was growing in its mountain home in California.

Like the river in the poem, the big tree might have said: "Men may come and men may go, but I go on forever." That little piece is not true, because rivers do not go on forever—they dry up, sooner or later. Yet both rivers and big trees continue their lives while men are born and die. Trees live in a more complete sense than rivers.

The big tree I have described is not the oldest of known trees. I shall speak of still older ones in the story tomorrow.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

PRIDE

Some have money and some have not,
Some work harder than many others,
Yet all at the last are equal brothers
All shall wither and be forgot.
Rich man, poor man, both shall lie
Face upturned and folded hands,
Cold and rigid, when death commands;
Brothers both when they come to die
What does it matter now or then?
Why draw lines of place or birth?
Why not brother awhile on earth?
Why not say that we all are men?
Since at the grave we all shall meet,
Stripped of the pride by a common fate,
Paupers all at the Master's gate,
Why such pride on the city street?

Dare Interprets the Mode

A lovely spring ensemble showing a coat of gray woolen, trimmed with stitching and gray fur, and a dress of gray georgette, trimmed also with stitching and showing a very full circular panel in the front. (Courtesy of the Maison Redfern, Paris.)

New York, March 10, 1929.

THE enduring vogue of the scarf makes ever increasing demands upon the originality of their creators. One finds them of wool and of silk infinitely diverse in form.

With the sports dress of jersey, one inevitably finds the square of triangular scarf, knotted at the neck. With dressier ensembles, one finds the couturiers viewing with each other to find new and original way of making them a part of the costume. Often they are cut as a part of the bodice, falling at the back over one shoulder, lending to the silhouette.

The newest fancy in this line is the scarf, which is embroidered with the crest of Miladi's automobile. Thus for she who drives an Hispano, a graceful, modernistic stork adorns the end of the scarf. For the Peugeot, a lion; for the little Citreon, the military chevrons such as trademark the radiator; for the Lorraine Dietrich, the double cross of Lorraine; for the Ballot, an anchor.

And for the lovely lady who does not boast a car—— or of it——there is an ever increasing number of beautiful scarfs, some of brilliant Scotch plaid, some of modernistic designs encrusted in various colors of material, instead of being printed as in seasons past.

Now what do you think I'll tell you how to make in this week's leaflet, for which you may send a stamped envelope to the Dare Department of the Washington Post?

A spring cape-coat for a young girl! Using just two and a half yards of material, which isn't such a lot, now, is it? And quite easy to make——and truly ever so smart. It may be just the thing you want——better send for it and see!

With hint of spring in the air one's thoughts turn inevitably to ensembles ——since fashion has decreed that one's coat must have some definite connection with the gown with which it is worn.

So Redfern let us sketch for you this extremely smart ensemble, with its chic coat of gray woolen fabric trimmed with gray fox, and a triangular cloth cape of the material in the back, which follows the triangular point of the fur. The dress is of gray georgette, with a very interesting circular front panel held in place by stitching which is repeated in front and back and at the back of the coat.

Boite du Chapeau

Now we know what happens to old phonograph needles! They get gathered up secretly, and get put to a mysterious use by a clever Parisian modiste.

And then they appear in the form of a militant looking little band of shining, upstanding, rigidly flexible points, if you see what I mean——all around the crown of a smart felt hat!

I am positive that we will find a use for burnt-out radio tubes and used safety-razor blades next.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

Date-Breakers.

DEAR MISS M'DONALD: I have read your article and would like to get your opinion of men who make dates and then break them for the least little thing.

I have been "going" with a fellow for about six months and I like him better every time I see him, but he has broken my heart. He will make a date with me and then call up and say he can not keep it. I told him I did not care, but my heart just stopped beating. Every date he has made with me was what you would call a last-minute date, or, in other words, he would call up and want to come around right that minute. Of course, I would say "yes," because I was crazy about him.

He is not good-looking nor does he earn a large salary, like some of the fellows I could have dates with, but I would rather walk a mile with him than ride in the best car made with the best looking man in town. I have had the chance, but I guess I'm a fool to sit and wait for him night after night, hoping he will call.

I would not coax him to come up, because I have heard a boy friend laughing at a girl because he had to argue with her for almost an hour to break a date he had made with her. He said girls could not afford to be so particular about their dates, because they would be old maids if they got too particular, and a fellow could get a date from any girl and break it if he chose to do so.

Perhaps you will say I should excuse him if he gave me a good excuse, but how can I tell whether he is telling me the truth, as I have heard his friend telling of lies and excuses he gave his girl, and how foolish she was to believe him.

I'd do nothing but cry every night over him and keep thinking how foolish I am to care, but I can't help it.

I wouldn't let my mother or father know how much I care. That's why I would like to get your advice, for I can write and tell some one how I feel, but I would not have courage to express my feelings with words, for I would burst into tears, although I pretend I'm as carefree as any other flapper.

Please let me hear from you soon. I will look for my answer in the paper and will be ever so grateful for your advice. I am 20 and he is 24.

P. S.—They say flappers are gold-diggers and are hard-hearted, but I think most of them are just like myself—and that is, they have "soft spots" in their hearts for some fellow and have dreams. Those little homes and babies that they hope will be theirs some day.

What do you think? B. H. F.

Well we could pass a law against breaking dates, but that would only cause more dates to be broken. However, we can at least discipline the date-breaker. Why, for instance, do you make a second date with a man who calls up to cancel one? Why not exercise a little good old-fashioned will power and decline the invitation? And, by all means, if you can "date" the best-looking man in town, do it! It may not mean much to you the first time, but after a while you may discover that it is a lot more enjoyable to go riding with him than to sit home mooning over somebody else.

Never sit at home waiting for any man. Go out. Enjoy yourself. Be out when he calls and when he rings up. And in a month you won't care whether or not he ever does either. Try it.

What Today Means to You

MARCH 11

By MARY BLAKE

PISCES.

If March 11 is your birthday, the best hours for you today are from 2:15 p. m. to 4 p. m., from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. and from 9:30 p. m. to 10:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 9:30 a. m to 11 a. m. and from 12:10 p. m. to 1:30 p. m.

Nothing very startling will happen today, according to the planetary aspects, but it is an occasion when concentration will bring its reward in something worth-while accomplished and self-satisfaction. Impulsiveness should be avoided; deliberation is counseled.

Children born today will be kind-hearted, affable and very considerate of others and rather indifferent to their own interests. Their material success will be only mediocre, but they will be rich in friends and associations. They will always radiate happiness.

You are too fond of the good things of this life to make any outstanding success. This is regrettable, as it can not be gainsaid that you possess marked ability. When, however, you have to choose between pleasure and work—even though the reward of the latter may be apparent—you prefer the former.

You are a creature of enthusiasms, and are always seeking thrills and change. A steady life of regular habits is rank monotony to you. Your disposition is affectionate and your love of nature is well developed. You are attractive to the other sex, and, unless you are circumspect, you are liable to be caught in the toils of infatuation—and regret it.

You always endeavor to cut a good figure and evince more than ordinary interest in clothes. You show a preference for light and color, and hate to be alone, not finding any pleasure in your own society. You are rather dramatic, and a story loses none of its high spots when told by you.

If a man, you may be fortunate, but never will be wise, in business. If a woman, you should guard against flirtatious promptings. Men and women whose birthday it is today will only find domestic felicity if they defer marriage until they are of a mature age.

Successful people born on March 11:
Robert T. Paine, patriot.
Solomon Drowne, physician, botanist and educator.
Francis Wayland, educator.
Thomas Le Clear, portrait painter.
Henry J. Bigelow, surgeon and educator.
Thomas Hastings, architect.

YOUR BOY AND YOUR GIRL

By ARTHUR DEAN, Sc. D.
The Parent Counselor.

An Orchestra in Every Home.

THE happiest families are those where every one is busy at creative work. The dullest are those where all are stupidly slaving in the same old rut. The most unhappy families are those where each of its members goes his own way regardless of any common interest.

The happiest of my letters come from folks who send me pictures of their family orchestras. How I envy them! I, who long ago begged to "cut" the school music hour and earned the privilege of cleaning the faces of the school statuary—Franklin, Washington, Lincoln, Shakespeare and Byron!

Now music, through the radio, is entering your soul as it is mine. And it's because I want our boys and girls to get, early in life, that opportunity for musical expression which is in the soul of all of us that I am writing this series of articles about music for children.

The artist in concert halls may command fabulous sums. A broadcast of music may cost a small fortune. But character, through music, isn't built that way. Music presented in this fashion doesn't provide for emotional outlets. It is in the home where the greatest value of music can come through ensemble playing among those of the family circle.

But how are the children going to do any ensemble work until they have learned to do a little playing by arduous months of pounding, tooting or sawing out their "do, re, mi's?" That is where the homemade instruments I spoke of last week do their bit. They will be simple enough so that the youngsters can play tunes on them, and, equally important, play them together. We all remember how we craved to do things in gangs. Likewise when children can make their music in a group it becomes a joyous game. Try it.

A group of ingenious youngsters will build up quite an orchestra out of these odd instruments. Assume that Jack is the oldest and most expert at making things so he has a cheese-box banjo. Brother Frank has a marimba fashioned out of stray slabs of wood. And sister Nancy plays the musical glasses—merely ordinary tumblers tuned with water. Jack's chum, Ned, has some elderberry panpipes. Nancy's friend plays the cigar box zither. And of course they need a drum, so Ned's little brother pounds out the rhythm on one he has made from a candy pail. Then, just to give the orchestra foundation, maybe mother or big sister comes in and plays the piano. Can't you imagine the grand tunes they are able to make? Don't smile, folks. The heart of music is right here.

They learn the very simplest tunes at the start, maybe a melody of three notes only. After that, one of four, then five and so on till soon they are pounding out familiar tunes like veterans and even improvising their own. But they will always be playing tunes, not scales and exercises, but tunes, and always together. That's the thing to hold their interest. And fun, oh boy!

The book of Mrs. Coleman's which I mentioned last week, is the guide in making these homemade instruments. And what tunes children can play on them! Frankly the book is quite irresistible, even to a supposedly sedate grown-up like myself. I got safely through the chapters on rattle and drums. When I came to musical glasses I simply couldn't resist and presently I was rummaging around the pantry to find three glasses of the right tones so I might play "Hot Cross Buns."

Now I have designs on an empty cigar box. Now little Cigar Box, don't you cry—you'll be a banjo by-and-by.

OUR CONVERSATION CORNER.
A Good Sport.

If I take this boy as a steady I want him to quit his bad habits. If he refuses I do not think he seriously cares for me, do you?

Should we girls use cheap language and smoke just to hold our friendships? How can we be "good sports" and still keep our good reputations?

PATRICIA.

Answer—When a male is in love he promises much, and that is the time above all others when he is apt to keep his promises. If your "steady" will not promise to do better I should not think he seriously cared.

My idea of a "good sport" evidently differs from that of your gang. My definition has nothing to do with acquiring the habits of smoking or drinking or swearing.

I wonder if a good sport isn't one who is quick to admit an enemy's good points and the strong points of an argument on the other side; unafraid to apologize when in the wrong; able to laugh at his own mistakes; daring to do an unpopular thing when it is the right thing to do; sticking to training rules and being a good loser when one has to lose. I wonder if treating one's parents well isn't good sportsmanship? And whether doing well in school isn't a sign of sportsmanship?

Garden Plans Big Bout on June 27

Schmeling and Paulino Likely to Clash at Yankee Park.

Winner Would Meet Sharkey Next Fall, Under Plans.

NEW YORK, March 10 (A.P.).—If all goes well, the next big heavyweight battle will take place in the Yankee Stadium June 27, with Max Schmeling, of Germany, in one corner and Paulino Uzcudun, Spanish woodchopper, in the other.

Tom McArdle, matchmaker at Madison Square Garden, announced tentative plans for the fight today. No contracts have been signed nor has the Garden definitely committed itself to the bout. The directing heads of the corporation may attend to that at a meeting scheduled for tomorrow.

There is a big question of whether Schmeling can clear himself of a plethora of managers in time to go through the match. Herr Max, whose stock took a remarkable jump when he stopped Johnny Risko, now is in Germany. He is convinced that he has too many managers for his own good and he plans to cut down the number in some way even if it means listic idleness for a year or so.

Winner to Meet Jack Sharkey In September, Present Plan.

However, if Schmeling signs there seems to be little doubt that the Garden will be able to make the match without difficulty.

Under present plans the winner would be sent against Jack Sharkey in a big outdoor match in September. McArdle, however, is not so sure about that angle. He is waiting to see whether Otto Von Porat, the heavy punching Norwegian, can decisively beat Tom Heeney at Chicago Tuesday night. If Von Porat knocks out "Honest Tom" or beats him decisively he may get a match with the winner of the Schmeling-Paulino battle. The ultimate survivor then would meet Sharkey.

Stribling-Scott Bout Is Sought for London

New York, March 10 (United Press).—Young Stribling, of Georgia, defeated by Jack Sharkey at Miami Beach, is regarded highly nevertheless in British boxing circles. The Southern heavyweight has received a request from London to name his terms for a match with Phil Scott there this spring. Stribling will go over and fight the tall British champion for $50,000 and four round trip tickets, the Georgian's "pa" replied.

The British also want Mickey Walker again, but the middleweight champion's terms are three times those named by the Striblings.

Almost the Naked Truth

By JAMES S. COLLINS

NEW YORK, March 10.—When Bud Houser threw the discus 158 feet 1¾ inches for a new world's record it looked as if he was giving posterity something to shoot at. Now, only three years later, Eric Krenz, standing in the same spot in the Stanford Stadium, rids his system of a heave that makes Houser's effort seem feeble in comparison. His 163 feet 8¾ inches ought to stand for many years, but nobody knows punctuation well enough to put any periods in the record books.

Nothing Short of Death Is Accepted as Reason for Defaulting.

Usually when an athlete declines the issue, sudden death is about the only excuse that will find general acceptance. Paavo Nurmi's recent cold, so suddenly contracted on the eve of a race in which a competitor whom Nurmi had shown an unwillingness to meet had unexpectedly entered, was too convenient to satisfy the fans. Fighters are always falling over their dogs and hurting themselves on the eve of tough engagements and have a way of contracting all the miseries that afflict mankind in the shadow of a licking.

Wherefore, although unjustly sometimes, the sporting world always sniffs for the smell of "boloney" when an entry is withdrawn for any reason. Last week saw a conspicuous exception to the rule when Madge Miller, of Detroit, defaulted to Helen Hicks in the Florida East Coast championship golf tourney. Miss Miller was in almost vulgar good health, while Miss Hicks was so ill that she could not possibly have done herself anywhere near justice even if her doctor allowed her to go through with the match. Miss Miller would have been within her rights in forcing Miss Hicks to play or default, but she did the sporting thing and defaulted herself knowing that Miss Hicks, in normal health, is her golfing superior.

A day of rest and medical care thus gained enabled Miss Hicks to remain in the tournament, while all hands applauded the sportsmanship of Miss Miller.

Bike Riders Paired by Manager Must Accept Company, Good or Bad.

Among numerous other reasons for grumbling by six-day bike race riders is the fact that under present conditions in the cycling world a rider has to accept a partner chosen for him by the management. In the old days riders used as much care in selecting racing partners as they did in selecting wives, and in some cases probably more. Now the riders are paired by the management with an eye single to box office reactions. So ruthless is the management that it would not hesitate to pair a Corkonian with an Ulster man merely to be able to advertise an Irish team. In the race concluded Saturday night, the pairings made strange bunkfellows. In some cases the members of a team had so little affection and esteem for each other that it was a question whether an individual would rather win the race or lose it because of his partner's broken neck. Many a rider wheeled around the track with the milestone of an undesirable partner hanging from his neck.

Hudkins Forced to Build Up for Bout With Emanuel in April.

Ace Hudkins, who smokes 25 cigars a day when not in training, will have to cut down on his weed consumption and reach for a lot of sweets to meet the California commission's requirements that he weigh 166 pounds for his bout with Armand Emanuel April 15. In most of his bouts in the last two years Ace's problem has been reducing instead of building up. He now scales about 157.

Nurmi's Ban Served to Show Him A. A. U. Is Boss.

The circumstances surrounding the suspension and reinstatement of Paavo Nurmi recall the bridegroom who turned on his new life partner as soon as the clergyman had established the firm and floored her with a swing to the jaw. When she came to he admitted she had done nothing to displease him, but explained that he just wanted to let her know who was boss and to let her know what to expect if she proved delinquent at any time. When the A. A. U. recently suspended Nurmi for cutting a running class in the national indoor championships, it was clear that it had nothing on the Finn but suspicion that his alibi of a cold was phoney. Yet it suspended Nurmi "pending further investigation," presumably of the whereabouts of a postmarked envelope after leaving the A. A. U. waste basket.

The envelope had contained a letter dated the day before the meet, announcing Nurmi's withdrawal of his entry. Without the postmark to show when it had been mailed, the A. A. U. had to take Nurmi's word for the time, but did not do so until just before the Seventh Regiment Armory games Saturday night. Perhaps the A. A. U. officials thought the lost envelope might blow back through the office window, but it is more likely that they felt that a little left-handed discipline might have a wholesome effect on Nurmi's future behavior, besides letting him know who's boss in amateur athletics.

Barbuti, by refusing to prove or retract his charges, stands disqualified as a witness.

G. U. Nines Have Produced Many Big League Players

Hilltop Has Sent Stars to Major Leagues Since 90's; Three Now Under Big Tent; Devlin, of Giants, Was Georgetown Player.

By JACK ESPEY.

THERE have been reams written and much oratory sounded about the numerous big league baseball players produced by the University of Alabama. It has been said that Alabama holds the championship—if such the imagination can manufacture about the subject—for sending more baseball players to the major leagues than any other institution of higher learning in the country.

This is true concerning the modern era only. Today, Alabama boasts of five players who have either made good or are making good "on the big time." Joe Sewell, third baseman, and brother, Luke, catcher of the Cleveland Indians; Riggs Stephenson, outfielder of the Chicago Cubs; Grant Gillis, shortstop of the Boston Red Sox, and Jack Hayes, second baseman of the Washington Nationals, all were budding stars at the University of Alabama.

But if you will search your memory or ask dad, you probably will find out that a university of your own hometown — Georgetown — has turned out the largest number of intellectually inclined major leaguers. That appears to be the fact unearthed by considerable digging into the records.

Georgetown Has Three Players Now in Livery of Majors.

Including three who wear major league livery at present, there have been at least twelve former wearers of the Blue and Gray, who capitalized in the field of highest-grade baseball on the education they received at the Hilltop diamond.

Del Bissonette, Clyde Sukeforth and Tony Plansky are the trio now "up there." Bissonette is the heavy hitting regular first baseman for the Brooklyn Robins. Baseball writers have predicted he will shine even brighter this year than he did last, when he was one of the leading sluggers of the National League.

Sukeforth at present is bidding for the first-string catching assignment with the Cincinnati Reds, but he is having a hard time of it with old Val Picinich, former National, hanging around Plansky, the greatest all-around athlete ever graduated from Georgetown, is taking a fling at pitching for the Boston Braves, who signed him this winter on the recommendation of John D. O'Reilly, Georgetown's track coach, formerly mentor in all sports at the Hilltop.

Mahoney and Harley Made Grade As Big Leaguers in 90's.

Going back to the earliest days of the connection of Georgetown with major league baseball, you will find George ("Big Mike") Mahoney, pitcher for the old Boston Nationals, and Dick Harley, Cincinnati outfielder, who graduated in the early '90s and went directly into big league careers.

Following them was Arthur Devlin, renowned third baseman of the New York Giants, who played regularly for ten years. In his Georgetown days Devlin was better known for his football accomplishments, but soon after making baseball his profession he developed far more prowess on the diamond than he had on the gridiron.

Then there was Doc White, present athletic adviser of the Washington public high schools, who southpawed his way to fame with the Chicago White Sox at the time when the White Sox were known as the "Hitless Wonders." White threw a curve ball which few pitchers since have been able to imitate with the effectiveness that was his.

Charley Moran Once Performed At Short for Pittsburgh.

Of late years you have heard of Charley Moran, who coached baseball and directed athletics at Catholic University until last June. This same Moran was Georgetown's brilliant shortstop about twenty years ago and subsequently a successful member of the Pittsburgh Nationals' infield.

Jim Morgan, who held forth at third base from 1904 to 1906 at the Hilltop, went to the Boston Red Sox. Tom Cantwell, a pitcher, went directly from the Hilltop to the Cincinnati Reds and was marked for a fine career, but after two years he developed a sore arm and stepped down into the minors.

Pitching Staff Holds Fate Of Nats

Goslin, Judge, Jones Arrive; Latter Talks Terms 4 Hours.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

TAMPA, Fla., March 10.—The luck which Al Schacht declares has followed Walter Johnson for a scores of years in casino games seems to be sticking with the Old Master in his rookie days as a major league manager. Besides handling his charges in games throughout a season, one of the most important set of duties which a team pilot has is the separating of the sheep from the goats at the spring training camp.

When Walter's appointment was announced he apparently had quite a problem on his hands, with a vacancy at second base and another question mark in connection with the short field job, the two positions being the most important to fill of any, hardly had Johnson put his foot in the stirrups when Buddie Myer was acquired from Boston, assigned the third base job, and Ossie Bluege shifted to short. These were theoretical moves at the time but have become actual ones since the training season started.

Bluege's work at short suddenly has cleared the situation and Johnson himself admits that other conditions have since developed which make it almost impossible for him to make a mistake in the selection of his team.

The catching and outfield questions will take care of themselves, while it is a certainty that, from among so many rookie pitchers, Johnson will have no trouble eliminating two or three with no pangs of regret or fears that he is making mistakes.

Infield Problem Has Already Answered Itself at Tampa.

And the infield problem also has answered itself with the fine showing of Hayes, Cronin, Stewart and Gooch.

Despite the fact that he has shown exceptional ability, enough to make some other teams in the league, Elmer Yoter will be the last to go.

Retaining the four named above, in addition to Myer, Bluege and Judge, will give Johnson a banner infield with plenty of capable understudies. Should Hayes win the second base berth, Stewart will be right there to keep him hustling and to relieve him or any other slow man when additional speed is needed on the bases. Cronin is a first-class shortstop, while Gooch is a natural third sacker, who is showing up exceptionally well at first, making him available for use in three positions, as he also plays short. In addition he gives indication of being a hard hitter.

As pitchers and the mound staff will make or break the team, it is too early even to do any guessing, but several are showing enough to give Johnson hope that they will be of considerable help and he is rather optimistic, figuring, of course, that his holdovers, Jones, Braxton, Hadley and Marberry, will do as well as they did last year. The last two named are expected to do better.

Outfielder Goose Goslin and First Baseman Joe Judge arrived here this morning from Hot Springs. They reported plenty of cold weather, including a heavy snowstorm at the Spa, but despite this managed to get in considerable work.

Pitcher "Sad Sam" Jones arrived here just before supper tonight and immediately after eating he and President Clark Griffith went into a conference over salary terms. The sad one must be quite a debater, for late tonight, after a discussion lasting more than four hours, the Nat owner announced that the pitcher had not yet accepted terms.

Goslin Declares He Has Full Use of His Arm.

Goslin declares that his throwing arm, which was practically useless most of last season, will be O. K. during the coming one, and Judge backs him up.

"We did considerable catching at the springs," said Joe, "and the Goose, although not cutting loose, had plenty on the ball. Take it from me, he will be as good as ever this year."

A busy week faces the Nationals, with five games scheduled in addition to today's game with the Tampa Club. On Tuesday the Braves will be met at St. Petersburg, while the Cardinals will be played at Avon Park on Thursday and Friday. On Saturday and Sunday Johnson's men will act as hosts to the Braves here.

Giant Autos Try for Record Today; Storm Levels Beach

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., March 10 (A.P.).—Rain and northeast winds of almost gale proportions today prevented Maj. H. O. D. Segrave, of England, and J. M. White, of Philadelphia, from attempting to break the automobile speed record.

The rain subsided enough during the morning to permit inspection of the 9-mile ocean speedway by Maj. Segrave. The major said the pounding of the waves and rain had improved the beach 100 per cent and that ideal conditions should prevail for the trials tomorrow.

The major has in readiness his new Golden Arrow racer, with which he hopes to exceed the present record of 207.55 miles an hour, held by J. M. White's triplex. The triplex also is here, ready to protect its own record. Ray Keech, who piloted the car during its record-breaking run last year, is on the ground, but will not drive for White.

Segrave and White Delighted As Waves Pound Beach.

Despite the delay, the weather conditions delighted Maj. Seagrave and White. Meteorologists had pointed out to them that not until a heavy sea and a strong northeast wind ironed out the hard, wave-lapped course could they expect a beach suitable for the high speed they hope to attain.

White, who as a Philadelphia manufacturer, built the triplex as a hobby, had not selected a driver for the machine tonight. He said today if he did not drive the machine himself he probably would give the opportunity to Lee Bible, a mechanic at the garage where the triplex is housed here.

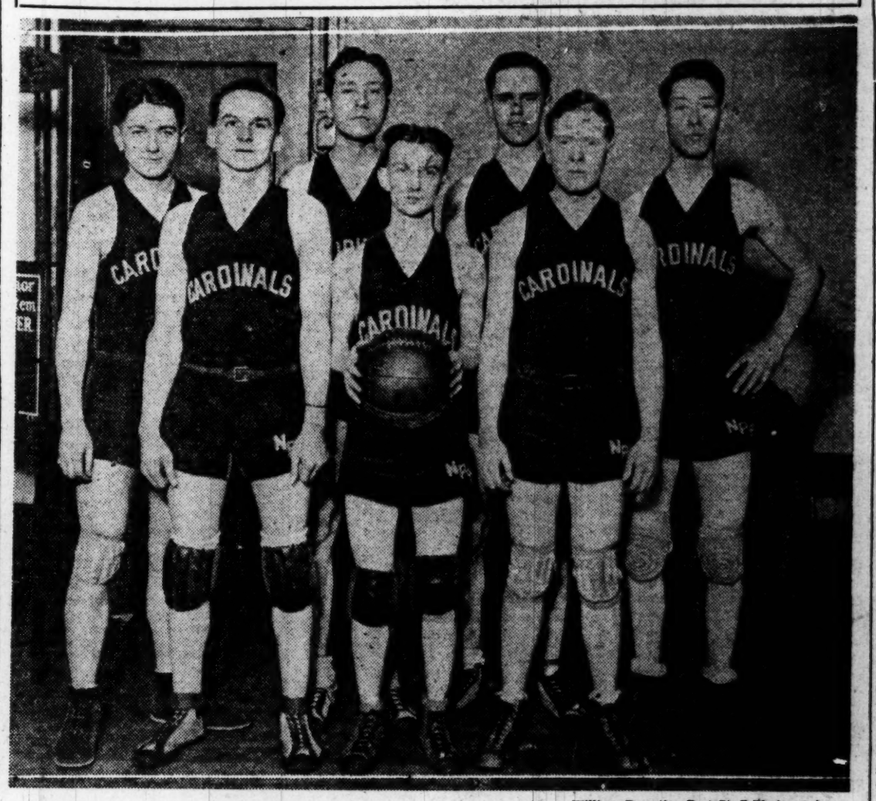
Bible Has Won White's Confidence And May Drive Triplex.

Bible, who never has driven racing machines except at a few dirt tracks in Florida, and on the beach, is an unkown figure in racing circles outside the State. He has done considerable mechanical work on the triplex for White and has won the Philadelphian's confidence as a driver of the record-holding car.

White said that at one time he had considered the engagement of such colorful figures in the racing world as Ralph de Palma and Bob McDonough, but that he had taken such a personal liking to Bible because of the latter's assistance in helping him condition the triplex that he may decide to let the mechanic have the opportunity of making a name for himself in the racing world.

On the day of the trials White first will try his own hand at the wheel, he said, and if he finds he can not handle the machine at high speed he will turn it over to Bible.

COMPETE IN SOUTH ATLANTIC TOURNAMENT



William Forsythe, Post Staff Photographer.

THE third annual South Atlantic tournament, staged here by The Washington Post, will start tonight on the regulation court of the George Washington University at 2010 H street northwest, starting at 5 o'clock. The opening whistle, which will send the Y. M. C. A. Aztecs and the St. John's Flashes into a struggle against elimination for the District championship and the right to represent Washington in the play-off with the Baltimore champions for South Atlantic A. A. U. honors and the team trophy and individual medals emblematic of the championship, will mark the start of the greatest basket ball event ever held in this section.

The 89 teams, which set a new record for the number of A. A. U. basket ball entries in one city, will compete in more than 78 games before the champions of the seven classes are determined. The George Washington Gymnasium promises to see a bedlam of action every night during the tournament.

There are a very few teams which are unknown to District fans in the tournament. With every game bound to be a struggle against elimination and with all of the best teams in the city entered, local court followers are offered the treat of the season.

Tournament Games Offered at Less Than 5 Cents Each.

The South Atlantic tournament committee has set a nominal fee of 25 cents for admission to the tournament, which gives fans a chance to witness six games at a cost of less than 5 cents a game.

The luck of the draw brought one of the best first-round programs for tonight. Included in the six-game program is one game in each of the male classes with two contests in which unlimited fives will fight it out.

While chief interest, especially among nonpartisan fans, is in the two unlimited games, there are several contests among the light clubs which promise as much if not more action than the heavyweight matches.

Hyattsville, which backed the Company F Guardsmen to the limit last year, will have another chance tonight to see its favorites in action in the first unlimited game of the tournament. The Guards are meeting another suburban club in the Remsens, of Takoma Park. The latter club, which graduated to the unlimited ranks this season, although it lacks the recognized stars of the Hyattsville team, is considered by its followers a worthy opponent for Company F.

The Guards will enter the tournament whirl minus one of their star players. Rufus Vincent, crack center, has a foot injury which will keep him on the side lines.

Potomac Boat Club Is Slight Favorite to Beat West Co.

The Potomac Boat Club will be a slight favorite to defeat the W. H. West Co. Quintet in the other unlimited contest. The Potomacs, who won the nautical championship last Saturday night by defeating the Old Dominion Boat Club, of Alexandria, is composed of former Clover A. C. players for the most part. They offer some of the most consistent scorers in this section in Esbaugh, Timmons and Canavin.

Carl MacCartee, a member of Tech's High School champions, will bear watching in the West Co. line-up. Like the Potomacs, the West Five has a strong record for the season.

Much interest has been manifested in the 145-pound clash between the Harriman & Co. and Stewart Bros. fives. The former team has a strong list of recognized stars, including Harry Lucas, Walter Morris, Bill Crouch, Jimmie Ryan, Bernie Jones and Morris Enright.

The Stewart Club, which hanged its name from the Stanley A. C. in midseason, has been a consiste t winner. Many court fans are of the opinion that the winner of this game will be the team to beat for the title.

Latona Leads Western Quintet Against Mardfeldt Five.

Western High will be unofficially represented in the opening clash of the 130-pound class, he Westerners, composed of the lightweight players from that school, will meet the Mardfeldts, who need no introduction in independent ranks. Little Tony Latona, who was a member of Western's Varsity Team last year, will lead the Westerns into action.

In the 115-pound class, the Fort Myer Juniors, now in a tie for the Boys Club League championship, will meet a formidable foe in the Aztecs, one of the three teams by that name entered. Carl Wolverton and Bill MacPherson are the scoring threats of the Fort Myer Club. The Aztecs have an array of boys who are labeled stars in independent ranks, including Louis Chatlin and Paul Joray.

The best record of the teams on the opening night's program belongs to the Y. M. C. A. Aztecs, winners of 22 straight games and favorites to win the 100-pound title. Their opponents will be the St. John's Flashes. The St. John's Victors, now in the 115-pound class, advanced to the District semifinals last year. The Flashes have retained some of those players and are backed by their school to win the title.

Each of the three men's officials will referee on tonight's program. They are Joe Mitchell, Orrel Mitchell and Tommy Ford.

Eagles Play Capitols in First Girls Contest Tomorrow.

Tomorrow night will mark the first girls' game of the tournament when the Eagles and the Capitol A. C. clash at 8 o'clock.

The officials that have been selected for the girls' games are among the best known referees in the District. During the tournament three will be used, namely, Jacquline Whiting, Abby Greene Flynn and Ruth Craig. Miss Whiting is the director of Iowa Avenue Playground, and has been associated with girl athletes for more than a decade, while Mrs. Flynn is the coach of the famous Georgetown Playground basketball champions. She is also director of the Northwest Recreation Field. Mrs. Craig has made her mark as a player and coach in privte and public schools of Washington, as well as being a former playground director.

All are conversant with the ideals of girls' athletics and The Post feels that it is fortunate in obtaining officials of their calibre. The mere mention of these names assures the A. A. U. girls' tourney of being conducted in a manner that will be satisfactory to all interested in sane sports for girls.

Bool's Homer, Gooch's Hit Win Game

First Sacker Singles With Bases Full to Climax Rally.

Minors Gain Lead in Third on Errors; Hopkins Stars.

By FRANK H. YOUNG

TAMPA, Fla., March 10.—Despite some weird fielding on the part of Pitcher Big Jim Weaver and Third Baseman Elmer Yoter in the third inning which, together with Weaver's ineffective pitching, netted the Tampa Southeastern Leaguers four runs and a three-run lead, the Nationals managed to eke out victory by the final score of 6 to 5 in their Grape Fruit League opener here this afternoon before a Sabbath crowd of about 2,500.

Among the heroes may be listed Paul Hopkins, who relieved Weaver in the third with none out and the bases loaded and, thanks to a fine catch by Sam Rice, pulled out of the hole unscathed.

Other stars were Al Bool, who started the Nats on their four-run and what proved to be their winning rally in the seventh, with a home run, and Charlie Gooch, whose single scored the tying and winning markers with the runways crowded and two out.

It was a thriller from the seventh on after the fans had just about decided that the game was over, with the minor leaguers having quits an edge over their big brothers. The Nats' rally in the seventh and the home team's threat in the ninth did much to wake up the cash customers, who shivered and shook from the effects of a chilly wind which swept over Plant Field and handicapped the outfielders no little.

Nats Open Attack With Two Runs in First Inning.

Each manager used a trio of pitchers, Weaver, Hopkins and Cantrell toiled for the Nats, and Andrews, Sackett and Brush for the home team. Only Weaver and Brush were ineffective, and the former contributed to his own downfall by making a wild heave over first which let two alien runners score.

With two dead in th second, a walk and Guerra's triple gave Tampa a run, and the home team added four more in the next frame with the need of only two hits, Granade's single and

$170,000 IN PURSES FOR BOWIE SPRING MEETING

Smith Points Extreme For Big Stakes

Gelding His Hope in $5,000 Inaugural Handicap.

Has Star 2-Year-Old in Knight's Star; Cost $3,000.

J. P. (SAMMY) SMITH will be sorely disappointed if he doesn't have Extreme ready with Sun Forward, Royal Stranger, Rubicon, The Worker, Prier Cliff and two or three smart 2-year-olds of Victor Emanuel's Dorwood stable ready for the April racing of the Southern Maryland Agricultural Association that will begin April 2, to run eleven days. Revivals of the Inaugural and Prince Georges spring handicaps, dashes of 6 furlongs and 1⅛ miles, respectively, for 3-year-olds and over; the Capital, a dash of 7 furlongs for 3-year-olds exclusively, and the Bowie Kindergarten, a sprint of 4 furlongs for 2-year-olds, will signalize this, the first meeting of the major season of 1929.

The Southern Maryland Agricultural Association has been daunching the big time in the East every spring since 1914. The Inaugural and Prince Georges will be $5,000 added money affairs, the Capital and Kindergarten $2,500 dashes. The purse distribution at Bowie will be about $170,000. A meeting of a fortnight at Havre de Grace that will be marked by revivals of the Aberdeen and Chesapeake stakes and the Harford and Philadelphia handicaps, $10,000 added money specials, will follow the Bowie session.

The Worker Winters Well and Is Named for Stake Races

Smith doesn't believe he will be disappointed in Extreme. The big Ultimatum gelding, which tried jumping last spring and without success, has wintered splendidly at Belmont Park and is ready to go on. He will be pointed particularly for the Inaugural, sprinting being his best game and if all goes well Royal Stranger and one of the three promising 3-year-olds, The Worker, Rubicon or Friar Cliff will go with him. The Inaugural will be run April 2. Smith still owns Royal Stranger. He couldn't get his price for that fine son of Friar Marcus last fall when he took over the Dorwood horses and sold Sun Forward to Emanuel.

The Worker, a son of Grome and Lydia A and a half-brother of both Extreme and Rockman, probably will develop more sprinting ability than either Friar Cliff or Rubicon. He was a good horse at Saratoga last August in a revival of the Adirondack handicap. Packing 107 pounds he licked Sun Worship, Hypoluxo, Chatover and Singlestep, galloping three-quarters of a mile through mud up to his fetlocks in 1:15 2-5. He went off after that and didn't race in Maryland in the fall. None of the other members of the Dorwood stable have wintered better than he, however, and he has been named for every stake for which Rubicon and Friar Cliff have been nominated.

Rubicon and Friar Cliff Both Won in Maryland Last Year

Rubicon and Friar Cliff, both winners in Maryland last fall, look coming distance runners. Not improbably one of them will be ready getaway day at Bowie to try his luck in the Prince Georges handicap with Royal Stranger and Sun Forward. Smith is sweet on these colts. He doesn't believe that there will be a better foreign-bred 3-year-old racing than Rubicon, unless it is Twink, and he thinks that Twink will have to step about to keep in front of the German colt, which is a son of Bachelors Double and Revelin.

One of the most promising of Smith's 2-year-olds is Knight's Star a bay daughter of Bright Knight and Lydia A, and a half-sister of Extreme, Rockman and The Worker. Reid Riley bred this miss at Montana Hall in the Virginia Piedmont, and Wood Garth, acting for Emanuel, got her for $3,000 at his yearling sale at Saratoga last August. The other American-bred youngsters of the establishment are Cowlitz, a bay son of Cataract and Amusement; Foxholt, a chestnut son of Thunderer and Blue Fox; Fire John, a brown son of Friar Rock and Alburn; Martis, a bay son of Sir Martin and Flying Jib; Swiveller, a brown son of Wrack and Marchioness, and Westward, a bay son of Westwick and Alice B.

Martis, Alone, Acquired at Private Sale; Others at Auction

All of these, barring Martis, which was acquired by private dicker, were bought at the auction block at Saratoga and reasonably. Swiveller cost $7,000; Fire John, $3,100; Foxholt, $1,500; Cowlitz, $900; Westward, $600. Westward is a half brother of Durle M. and Befords Dream. His sire (Westwick) had an amazingly fast colt out last year in Calwick. Westwick is a young son of Ultimus that didn't distinguish himself as a race horse, but, at that, accomplished as much as did High Time, another son of Ultimus, which went to the stud to sire Sarazen, High Strung, Time Exposure, Too High, &c. The mother of Cowlitz is a young mare bred like Sporting Blood, Festival, Filigrane, The Old Firearm, &c. Foxholt is bred on the distaff side like Ornament, Fire John is a half brother of Swope. Swiveller is bred like Broomspun, Tanya, Tangle, Sandy Hook, &c.; Martis is a half brother of Boom. Smith will try and have something ready for the Kindergarten, also for the Aberdeen. Generally, revivals of the Aberdeen, the most richly endowed of Maryland spring specials for 2-year-olds, are won by youngsters that have raced at Bowie. Rockman was a graduate of Bowie juvenile racing. So were Tippity Witchet and Singlefoot.

Emanuel's other youngsters are foreign breds, sons and daughters of Fantomas, Golden Sun, Putenden, Silvern and Silver Image. They came over last fall and may require some time for acclimatization.

Saints Have Regulars For Big Game Tonight

The St. John's Quintet will have all regulars in the line-up tonight when it brings its season to a close in meeting Strayer's Business College Five in the St. John's Gymnasium at 8:30 o'clock.

Strayer's Team defeated the Johnnies last week, but Schlegel, Gallagher and Morris were out of action. This trio will return to the line-up for the final game.

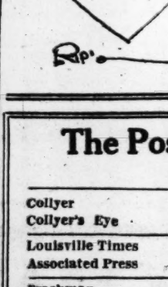
COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT S. COLLYER



PANCHIO.

One of the sweetest melons of the meeting, lads, and don't lose any time getting to your nearest corner store. Goes in the fourth spasm at Jefferson Park today. The last time out this trick ran a bang up second to the speedy BURNING SUN. Can't make it any stronger. WOOLORAC and MARSHALL SETH for what is left.

In the opening event, Sergt. Swenke has a fair hide in MARIE JOHNSTON and I look for her to repeat. WINDY ROSS, with a strong rider up may be troublesome. Ran a good third, the other day, though swerving all through the home stretch.

SCOTLAND FOREVER was dropped in a soft spot in the second. His previous race indicates he is ready to run the race of his life. BUNNYKINS is improving and is likely to be a keen contender. Look out for MATTHEW in the third. Understand a large sized commission is planted in Baltimore. REA won a good race last time and appears to be the runner-up. ROODLES is the hot one in the fifth. Worked by lantern light the other morning and the stable will be down, hook, line and sinker.

STAGE STRUCK appears a standout if he runs back to his race of last Friday. COPPERSHINE will be troublesome should the track become heavy.

KING CHARLES is the sweet parootie in the seventh. Commission planted here overnight for this plater. Over at Miami, Mose Goldblatt, the Cincinnati turfman, has a good chance of making it a double with THE BAT in the second and LATCH KEY in the fourth. Both stand out a mile according to my figures. In the opener, SPANISH PRINCESS seems to outclass her opposition. WRENCH is due for an awakening in the third. Chief clocker wires me the checks are down. TANNERY appears a standout in the fifth. Won like a good one the last time out. More anon.

Danger Signal Victor In Havana's Feature

Havana, March 10 (A.P.).—Danger Signal showed a return to her best form and, under a hustling stretch ride, was the winner of the "Hotel Telegrafo" Purse, which was featured as the Sunday program event at Oriental Park. Bramstar raced to the place, with Lactarius third. The winner was a lukewarm favorite, but the victory proved a popular one.

Danger Signal raced in close pursuit of the pace, assumed the lead in the stretch run and had speed in reserve. Bramstar went into command immediately, displayed good speed and saved ground, but was not good enough. Lactarius saved ground throughout and went well.

Ideal weather prevailed and, being next to the last Sunday of the meet, there was no abatement of the crowd. The racing, on the whole, was spirited, and the majority of the winners were forced to sustain drives.

BRITISH UNITED TEAM WINS POST'S SOCCER TROPHY

Turner Stars In 3-0 Win Over Clan

Veteran Booter Makes 3 Goals to Defeat MacLennans.

Arcadians Beat Fort Myer to Tie for League Title.

By RICHARD S. TENNYSON.

A VETERAN of more than 25 years of competitive soccer turned back the pages of time yesterday and used all of the canny experience gained in a quarter of a century of campaigning in soccer fields to enable the British United Soccer Club to win the Washington and Southeastern District Soccer Association cup tie title and The Washington Post cup which goes with the championship. The veteran, Jack Turner, scored the three goals amassed by the victors to none for the vanquished Clan MacLennan Eleven.

The Arcadian kickers finally drew up to an undisputed tie with Rockville for the Capital City League championship by defeating Fort Myer, 6 to 0. The Maryland lads and the Arcadia crowd now have 25 points each and a play-off for the league title will be staged next Sunday, probably on the Silver Spring Field.

Jack Turner, only here from England but a few months, not only converted all of his club's goals but also was demon on the attack throughout the entire 90 minutes of play against the Scotchmen. His first goal was the only shot that was in any way easy. The other two were from difficult angles.

British Pioneers of Soccer as Sport in Washington.

The British victory is a popular one in Washington since the representatives of England have been pioneers in the promotion of soccer in the District for more than 20 years, but until yesterday their only reward has been the sport derived from playing their favorite game and being defeated.

In 1925, when soccer was first put on an organized basis here, the British Embassy entered a team in the Washington Soccer League, the first here, but failed to gain more than a few unimportant victories. So it has been until this season, when the sturdy and determined Britons culminated their most successful year by winning the most coveted title in Washington.

At the start of the match yesterday it appeared that the Clan MacLennan kickers would romp away with the victory, as they pressed the British defense continuously for 30 minutes of the opening half, but Taylor, Life, Burton and D. Knight put up a stone wall defense that blocked the Scotchmen.

Time after time it appeared that the Clan forwards would crash a goal under the United's horizontal bar, but each time one of the above-named defenders halted the efforts.

British Defense Turns Back All Attempts of Clan Booters.

Even in the second period, when the victors scored all of their goals, the Clan was often on the offensive, but just when a goal seemed imminent the British backs would send the sphere to midfield and on three occasions Turner trapped and dribbled the leather to position and counted.

The Arcadians took the field against Fort Myer yesterday minus the services of Earl and Tom Clark, who are engaged at present in preparing for the forthcoming baseball campaign. Earl is at St. Petersburg, Fla., in camp with the Braves, while Tom is with the Providence Club on trial.

In the emergency Manager "Painter" Mann inserted himself in the line-up and aided his club considerably in its 6-to-0 victory that gives it a crack at the Capital City League title.

Wolf was the star of the Arcadian Club. His general play was a strong factor in the defeat of the Fort Myer team, while he proved to be an accurate booter by scoring three goals. Tomagni also tallied three times for the winning club.

McLarnin Yet to Sign For Bout With Fields

Detroit, March 10 (United Press.).—With Jackie Fields, Pacific Coast welterweight, signed to meet Jimmy McLarnin, of Vancouver, B. C. at the Olympia Athletic Club, here in April or May, Scotty Monteith, Olympia matchmaker, today awaited McLarnin's acceptance. Both fighters were offered $17,500.

McLarnon, who recently outgrew the lightweight ranks, is the only fighter who boasts a knockout over Fields. He turned the trick four years ago when both were featherweights.

Officials of the schools anticipate a record breaking crowd of 30,000 for the 1929 renewal.

Umpire Is Attacked By Manager of Cubs

Special to The Washington Post.

Los Angeles, Calif., March 10 (U.P.).—Manager Joe McCarthy flared into a fighting pitch yesterday when Umpire Chet Chadbourne called the Chicago-Los Angeles exhibition game at the end of the sixth inning on account of rain, with the Angels leading, 11 to 8.

The Cubs' manager jostled and shoved the arbiter and protested that the game should continue, since Chadbourne had not halted it at the end of the fifth inning when the Cubs were ahead.

MAR. 15 GAME IS FIRST FOR SCHOOLS

St. Alban's Coach Is Facing Task Before Battle With Tech.

A GAME with Tech High School on March 15 is the reason for undue activity in the way of baseball practice at St. Alban's these days. Faced with the task of getting his team into shape, Coach Henderson has had his candidates out in full force all this week.

Incidentally, this game with Tech will usher in the baseball campaign for the local schoolboy group and it will give supporters and fans something to think and talk about for the early season.

Coach Henderson faces a hard task this year in that he has no pitching material left over from last year's team. Only three letter-men are back. Henderson, however, plans to develop them into mound artists because of their tendencies toward the art. They are Galliher, outfielder; Crouch, shortstop, and Thompson, second baseman and former pitcher.

Development of Pitchers Coach's Chief Concern

There are four other players on the squad who could be termed fairly experienced men because they played on the reserve team last year or were substitutes on the varsity. They are Dilley, catcher; Weedon, second baseman, and Chesley and Hazard, outfielders.

Henderson feels that if he can develop Galliher, Crouch and Thompson into pitchers his team will get by the campaign in comfortable manner.

The Saints, although their schedule has not yet been completed, will engage in a strenuous set of games, many of them at home. Only two are listed away from home at present; those are part of a Southern trip which will include games with St. Christopher, of Richmond, and Christ Church of the same city, on successive days. Following is the schedule as it stands at this writing:

March 15, Tech.
May 4, Shenandoah Academy (here); 10, St. Christopher (away); 11, Christ Church (away).

Duray Enters 3 Racers In Indianapolis Test

Special to The Washington Post.

Indianapolis, March 10.—Leon Duray, husky racing star who holds the record for the fastest single lap ever driven on the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, has entered three cars in the annual 500-mile contest, which will be held here May 30.

The three car team, which is captained by the veteran Duray, will be the Packard Cable Specials, sponsored by an organization that manufactures ignition cables for automobiles.

Duray did not nominate the two drivers who will roll to the starting line under his supervision, but it is a certainty that he will have call on the services of the best free lance pilots in the business.

Since the last race at Indianapolis, in which he was an outstanding favorite, Duray has been working on his three car team. It is the realization of his dream of a racing lifetime.

Last May at Indianapolis, during the qualifying trials, he herded his black and white front wheel drive around the four quarter turns and long short straightaways of the tricky 2½-miles Indianapolis Speedway at a gait of 124.018 miles an hour, a record that is likely to stand for many a day.

RED STARS VICTORS.

Ted Otte's Kennedy Red Stars had little trouble defeating Tremont A. C. courtmen yesterday in the Silver Spring Armory, 35 to 12. Marks accounted for 5 baskets and 11 points for the winners. Otte's five led at the halfway mark, 12 to 5.

INOME TAX DAY WEATHER REPORT.

Ideal weather is the forecast for making your income tax return. Pressed by thousands of citizens for some statement indicating whether they would be able to figure out their taxes in sunshine or under cloudy skies, the Weather Bureau came to the front today with a prediction that everything would be lovely.

* * * *

"I expect that the weather for computing incomes taxes this March will be the best in years," said the weather observer, obviously very happy to reassure apprehensive taxpayers. I look for the bluest of blue skies between now and the 15th, and, best of all, there is every indication that the 15th will be one of those balmy spring days that make filing of a tax return such a pleasure.

* * * *

"It will not be a cold overcast March 15, such as we had for making tax returns in 1928, nor a wet one, such as we had in 1928, or was it 1927? Will you ever forget that damp, cheerless income tax filing day? It was terrible. Putting the finishing touches on the income tax blank in such cheerless atmosphere was a most discouraging task. Hundreds of taxpayers who are peculiarly sensitive to bad weather just couldn't go through with the job at all. They put it off until noon of the 15th, thinking it would clear off, but when the drizzle continued they found themselves utterly unable to get into the right mood for taxpaying, and let it slide.

* * * *

"That was the year, if you remember, when more than 56,789,325 persons just sent in their income blanks with no figures entered and the simple notation, 'Postponed on account of rain.'

* * * *

"It led to a lot of trouble with the Government, which contended, cruelly enough, that unfavorable weather was no excuse for failing to make an income tax return. The taxpayers carried the matter to the high courts, submitting Weather Bureau records showing that the temperature was as low as 28 degrees and that it rained all day March 15, and had not been warm or very clear for several days preceding.

"The high court, with two members golfing, one dissenting, one telling charades to the janitor, finally ruled that rain or snow did not free a man from the duty of figuring up his income tax (Schlitz vs. Bergenheimer), and that, of course, fog did not, as a tax blank itself could be held to constitute a fog. (Oppenheim vs. the Goose Creek Suspenders Corporation).

"The dissenting justice held that wet weather should be an excuse for nonpayment of income tax if it could be shown that defendant had no overshoes or umbrella.

* * * *

"However, since the court ruled the tax must be computed in weather fair or foul, I am glad to assure taxpayers that favorable conditions will prevail. Most people will put off their figuring until the 14th, anyhow, and that day will be fair and warm, with light westerly breezes. The 15th, national tax return day, will be warmer and with a cloudless sky."

FIGHT NEWS.

The attendance at the Rockefeller-Stewart fight was not so big, but the Barber-Childs battle was held before crowded calories.

Mr Childs now finds himself standing outside the window watching the girl turn the "wheats."

"All I ask is fair play," declared the aged restaurant magnate. Probably what he was afraid of was that he would be flapjacked out of it.

The DuPont interests are in control now and this leads Mr. Twitchell to suggest that perhaps this versatile company has found a way to make eggs.

Song by the Childs family, looking directly at Mr. Barber: "You're the Thumb in My Coffee."

"The new corset (a) tapers the thighs, (b) flattens the back and (c) suppresses the diaphragm."—Advertisement. But where does a corset find a job like that to do in these times?

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

GALL BLADDER AND DYSPEPSIA.

THE principal cause of dyspepsia, so-called, is a diseased gall bladder. In a study made by Dr. G. A. Dowling, the dyspepsias due to gall bladder disease exceeded by nearly 50 per cent those due to all forms of stomach disease. If a patient comes to a physician complaining of heartburn, acidity, belching and other symptoms of acidity, the chances are one out of five that his symptoms are due to some form of gall bladder disease. The other four-fifths of the cases are divided among ulcers and other forms of disease of the stomach or intestines, adhesions, constipation, worry, and perhaps appendicitis.

Dyspepsia is the most frequent symptom of gall bladder disease, outranking pain in this particular. Disease of the gall bladder is one of the most prevalent disorders. One of each twenty-five of Dr. Dowling's patients consulted him for symptoms which indicated gall bladder disease. Many cases of gall bladder disease require operation. For those who are not operated on, Dr Dowling advises the following rules of personal hygiene:

1. Avoidance of large meals. Overloading the stomach commonly causes distress. Many of the patients with dyspepsia due to gall bladder disease are already overweight.

2. Avoidance of roughage, especially uncooked fruits and vegetables, their seeds and skins, and tough meats.

3. Avoidance of fats, especially the fats of meats more or less burned in cooking. Butter and cream are less objectionable. Pastries, rich foods, greasy gravies and mayonnaise are usually objectionable.

4. Avoidance of condiments and alcoholic drinks (beer is probably most objectionable). Acids often cause distress.

5. Avoidance of constipation. Agar, mineral oil and bile salts help constipation. A large amount of fluid daily is required.

Analysis of gastric juice in persons who complain of acidity shows that there is less than the normal amount of acid in the secretion. Nevertheless, giving mineral acids does not help the symptom. Rather strangely, a dose of alkali is of more service. The reason for this is that the symptoms are due to reverse peristalsis and not to acidity. The wormlike motion of the digestive tract during the spells is working upward, carrying some of the intestinal content into the stomach; or, at any rate, interfering with the normal emptying of the stomach. A does of alkali is of some service in calming this troubled movement. A does of an aromatic tea or sucking an aromatic tablet is better. Taking an enema or using a suppository is quite effective in giving relief.

HUTCHINSON'S TEETH.

Mrs. O. S. writes: I am the mother of two sturdy boys, aged 2 years and 2 months. The doctor tells me I have Hutchinson's teeth. Can you give me some information about this? What causes it? What is it? Will it affect my health in the future? Will it affect my babies in any way? I have heard it may be a sign of some disease. What kind of diseases from this?

REPLY.

Hutchinson's teeth is a symptom of inherited syphilis. It was once thought to be an infallible sign. It is not so regarded now. Some other conditions may cause Hutchinson's teeth. Some abnormalities of the teeth, called Hutchinson's teeth are not such. Inherited syphilis may be passed on to the next generation, but it rarely is. Your children should escape the disease. The probability is that you will never have any other indication of it.

ELLA CINDERS—The John Smith Blues

OH, ELLA, IF YOU ONLY KNEW HOW MUCH I CARE FOR YOU! WHY MUST OUR LOVE BE SO DEFORMED? —IT'S ALL ONE-SIDED! I LOVED YOU BECAUSE YOU WERE DIFFERENT, BUT NOW YOU ARE ONLY INDIFFERENT!
ELLA CINDE
IF THIS LETTER DOESN'T TURN HER HEART IN MY FAVOR, I'LL TURN MY TOES IN THE DIRECTION OF HOME—HEART-BROKEN AND DISILLUSIONED!
Dearest Ella: I have sailed five thousand miles from South America just to see you, and now you treat me cruelly, but even that does not lessen my interest in you. Won't you consent to dine with me some evening and talk over old times? I trust that your answer will bring me untold happiness. Hopefully, John Smith.
PERHAPS I MIGHT HAVE HAD A BETTER CHANCE HAD I NEVER GONE AWAY! IT'S A TRUE SAYING: OUT OF SIGHT, OUT OF MIND, AND OUT OF MIND, OUT OF LUCK!

BURLINGAME TRIAL MAY CLOSE TODAY; ACCUSER IS ABSENT

Failure of Palmist to Come Back to Testify Again Not Alarming.

OTHER WITNESSES ARE UNDER SUBPENA

Policeman Staples to Appear, but May Not Take Stand Against Captain.

Trial of Capt. Guy H. Burlingame, which already has taken more than two weeks, is expected to come to a close today with the woman who has accused the veteran police officer still absent.

Despite reports that Mrs. Helen F. Blalock will return to testify again before the extraordinary trial board, to refute defense testimony, William W. Bride, corporation counsel, who is directing the prosecution, said last night that he had not heard from the former Seventh street palmist, who swore that she played "dream girl" to Burlingame's "heartsore daddy" in a fervid love affair.

Other reports that the woman left the Chicago train she boarded here after she had completed her story before the grand jury and was in hiding in Martinsburg, W. Va., or some other nearby city, were somewhat discounted yesterday when it was learned that the District tax collector last week received a request from her, mailed in Chicago, for her tax bill. In her letter Mrs. Blalock gave a Chicago address as the place to which she wanted the bills sent.

But officials connected with the trial are no more certain that "Miss Helen," as Burlingame says he always addressed her, will not appear at the last minute than they are certain that she will and plans for bringing the trial to a close do not take her into very definite consideration, either on the part of the prosecution or the defense.

Staples Is Summoned.

Former Policeman Orville Staples has been subpenaed by Bride and Walter L. Fowler, assistant corporation counsel, to appear at the trial at 10 o'clock this morning, but Staples will not be called unless the trial board expresses a desire to examine him itself.

The names of Staples and former Representative Tom Blanton, of Texas, both admitted enemies of Burlingame, have frequently been brought into the trial through the efforts of the defense to show the trial board that Mrs. Blalock was persuaded into an effort to frame the suspended commander of the Second Police Precinct.

Ten or twelve other policemen also have been summoned by Bride to be at the trial today, but whether these will be heard will depend on the desire of the trial board. They are men who have made statements at various times and to various persons, indicating they had knowledge of one kind or another of this or that phase of the tangled story the trial board will have to solve.

Charlie Green, colored expressman, also is expected to be recalled to the witness stand by Bride and Fowler. Green, a prosecution witness, swore that he had taken a galvanized iron washtub from Mrs. Blalock's apartment at 1504 Seventh street northwest to the home of Capt. Burlingame at 1419 Twenty-second street northwest.

Miller Hired Drayman.

Subsequently Robert I. Miller, attorney and race horse owner, called by the defense, swore that Charlie was the expressman he had hired himself to take a tub of household goods, mostly aluminum ware, to Burlingame for a former client, who went broke and left the city. The owner of the goods, Miller said, told him he wanted Burlingame to have them to repay him for a loan of $10 or $12 made him by the captain, but which he was unable to repay in cash.

Just how long the taking of testimony will last today is problematical. Bride has declared that he has no other interest than to present all the facts to the Trial Board. It is no secret, however, that he is somewhat irked by the whispering of many persons who profess to have definite knowledge of wrongdoing and he has made a roundup of policemen who have been talking and will give them an opportunity to speak their pieces under oath in public if the board wants to hear them.

William E. Leahy and Henry F. Woodard, defense counsel, are expected to call two or three witnesses when the proceedings are resumed. Leahy, closing the defense case Friday, did so under an agreement that he could present a few additional witnesses he wanted the board to hear if he could find them in time to have them before the board this morning.

How long the closing arguments of the prosecution and defense will take none of the attorneys would say, although it is thought certain that each of the four attorneys would take part in the summing up. All, however, insisted that the case would be ended today.

Man, 77, Is Arrested On $17 Theft Charge

William Swopes, 77 years old, of 2122 Eleventh street northwest, was arrested by Eighth Precinct police yesterday on a warrant charging theft of $17. Lawrence Kirby, of 1341 U street northwest, is the complainant.

No details are contained in the warrant. Swopes, in his cell at the Eighth Precinct station house, last night stated that he was at a loss to understand the charge. He stated that Kirby gave him $17 to pay rent on a house and that when he was unable to pay the rent he returned the money to Kirby. He denied emphatically that he had used the money.

Dog Bites Lip of Nurse, Pedestrian on Avenue

Miss Catherine Witt, 18-year-old student nurse at Emergency Hospital, was bitten on the lip yesterday afternoon by a dog, while passing in front of 909 Massachusetts avenue northwest.

She was taken to Emergency Hospital in a passing automobile and treated by Dr. W. Griebowski, who reported that the wound was not serious. The dog, which police say is owned by Clarence Lyons, of the Massachusetts avenue address, was sent to a veterinarian for examination.

Car Is Left in Street After Crash With Pole

Peter Lomax, colored, of Mayhill, Md., who was found asleep in the rear of the machine, was arrested and charged with being drunk. He was released on $10 collateral. The machine is being held by police.

Truck Laden With Rum Is Captured in Capital

Maryland State police yesterday chased a truck, which they say was loaded with whisky, from Silver Spring, Md., 12 miles through the District, finally capturing it in an alley in the rear of 1416 P street northwest, after the vehicle had been wrecked and it had half demolished a garage into which its driver tried to steer it. The driver escaped.

A search of the automobile revealed 36 cases of alleged whisky, which, together with the truck, was turned over to police of the Second Precinct.

The Maryland policemen, Charley Barnes and Joseph Nolte, reported that they started the chase at the police substation at Silver Spring and pursued it through Georgia avenue, Colorado avenue, Fourteenth street, Park road, Sixteenth street, Fifteenth street and P street, all in the Northwest.

8 CITIZENS' GROUPS WILL MEET TONIGHT

More Nominations Expected to Advisory Committee of Federation.

RESERVOIR TO BE TOPIC

Eight citizens' associations are scheduled for meetings tonight, at which a number of matters important to the District will be discussed.

Among these are nominations by the various associations for members of the citizens' advisory committee in the Federation of Citizens Associations. A number of associations meeting last week named their candidates and after tonight's series of meetings a more definite ticket will be available.

The Brookland Citizens Association, of which M. M. McLean is president and R. N. Ashmun secretary, will hear Dr. George C. Havenner, president of the federation.

According to Secretary Ashmun, the association will nominate A. F. E. Scheer, attorney and president of the Dahlgren Terrace Citizens Association, for the citizens' advisory committee. Mr. Ashmun said last night that he believed Mr. Scheer would be the choice of the majority of the citizens' associations in the Northeast section of the city.

Dr. Havenner will speak on the Cramton bill, providing additional park lands for the District. Committee reports, including one on a swimming pool project, will be heard.

Progress in an effort to have the old District reservoir on Sixteenth street northwest converted into a sunken garden will be reported tonight at a meeting of the Sixteenth Street Highlands Citizens Association, according to the president, Dr. L. J. Battle.

Committees have been working hard in pressing this proposed improvement, Dr. Battle said last night, and have been meeting with considerable success. The pleas of the association have been placed before several members of Congress, and indications point to quick action on the reservoir site. The District reservoir was abandoned about a year ago.

Other associations which will hold meetings tonight are those of Takoma Park, Manor Park, Stanton Park, Northeast Washington, Congress Heights and Piney Branch.

Five Belgian Hotel Men Are in Capital on Tour

Belgian hotel men who are inspecting the hotels of America and Canada arrived in Washington yesterday. They are stopping at the Willard. The delegation consists of five proprietors and managers of well-known hostelries. They will not only inspect local hotels while here, but will make several tours of the city and to nearby points of interest.

After being presented to the Belgian Ambassador this morning, they will leave this afternoon for Philadelphia, embarking Saturday from New York on the trip home. They are being escorted on their tour by George W. Sweeney, of New York, chairman of the reception committee.

PLANS ON BUILDING OF BUSINESS HIGH RUSHED BY HARRIS

Few Construction Details Await Decision Before the Work Goes Forward.

NEW CAPITAL SCHOOL WILL COST $1,500,000

$300,000 Congress Fund Will Be Available July 1; Conferences Held.

With but a few minor details of construction to be decided, A. L. Harris, municipal architect, today will go ahead with work on final plans for the new Business High School, to be built on the recently acquired site at Thirteenth and Upshur streets northwest.

The plans are expected to be completed within the next two months, at which time submission of bids will be asked.

The $300,000 Congress provided during its last session as the initial appropriation for the school, which, when completed, will cost approximately $1,500,000, will become available July 1, when construction will be begun.

Congress will be called upon to appropriate the remaining $1,200,000 necessary for completion of the building in December.

Harris, together with Allen Davis, principal of Business High School and Assistant Superintendent of Schools Stephen E. Kramer, have held a number of conferences during the last several weeks, in an effort to determine the type of building to be constructed. The new school is expected to be ready for occupancy within two years after construction begins.

The new building will relieve many of the inconveniences and hardships incident to overcrowding which students at the present Business High School must contend with. Although the new school will not be as large as the recently opened Technical High School, officials feel certain that it will be able to adequately care for the students who desire to take up a business education within the next five years.

Just what disposition will be made of the present Business High School following its abandonment is not known at this time. School authorities point out that abandonment of the present building is at least two years away and that they will have plenty of time in which to determine whether it would be devoted to use as an elementary school by the white, or colored divisions.

War Department Sells 1,300,000 Breeches

A total of 1,300,000 cotton breeches and all the Army's surplus cotton coats have been sold to the Breecol Co., New York City, represented by Silverman Bros., Assistant Secretary of War Robbins having approved the sale by the surplus property division, quartermaster general's office.

So far as War Department records show, this is a record sale for such a class of garments and it will result in an ultimate return to the Treasury of nearly $1,000,000 in cash. These garments have been on hand since the close of the World War and are in excess of the Army's needs for a number of years.

Remains of Still Found After Fire

100-Gallon Liquor Plant Is Discovered by Police in Maryland.

Remains of a 100-gallon still were found yesterday by Corpl. Roy Bodmer, of the Montgomery County police, when he made an investigation into the cause of a fire which partially destroyed a house near Buck Lodge, Md., Saturday night.

The house, police say, was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Burbage and their daughter. Mrs. Burbage and her daughter were at home when the fire was discovered, but have not been seen since. Neither has Burbage. Rockville and Gaithersburg fire companies reported they received no call to the fire, which burned itself out.

Corpl. Bodmer indicated no attempt would be made to locate the Burbages. He found a boiler, coils and melted glass on the upper floor of the house where the fire started. The house, police say, belongs to Darby Poole, of Washington.

Colored Elks Visit Alexandria Lodge

25th Anniversary Celebration of Virginia Order Is Held at Shiloh Church.

Lodges and temples of colored Elks from the District of Columbia and vicinity visited Alexandria yesterday afternoon to participate in the twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of Alexandria Lodge at Shiloh Baptist Church, at Duke and West streets. The ceremonies followed a parade through the city from the Elks' Home on Queen street.

The order of march included the Alexandria Elk Band, Columbia Lodge, Columbia Temple, Columbia Health Unit, W. Bruce Evans Lodge, Love Temple, Alexandria Lodge, Israel Temple, Mountain Run Lodge, of Culpeper; Arlington Lodge, Morning Star Lodge and Forest Temple.

The Elks were welcomed by the Rev. F. D. Hearnes, pastor of the Shiloh Church, the response being made on behalf of visiting lodges by Marie Madre Marshall, of Columbia Temple. P. R. Felton, exalted ruler of Alexandria Lodge, announced the intention of that body to build a new home on North Henry street. The lodge was eulogized by Herbert E. Jones, exalted ruler of Columbia Lodge. Russell Hackley recited the "Thanatopsis." The anniversary address was made by J. Finley Wilson, grand exalted ruler. Arthur Parker was master of ceremonies.

LIBRARY MEASURE EXPECTED TO PASS REGULAR CONGRESS

Gibson Plans to Reintroduce Bill for City; Failed by Error Last Session.

CREATES SIX BRANCHES AND BETTER FACILITIES

House Subcommittee Leader Will Write Report on Capital Government.

The bill to expand the Public Library system in the District, will be reintroduced at the next regular session of Congress, and it is expected it will be enacted into law.

Representative Gibson (Republican), Vermont, author of the library bill, was deeply disappointed because in the last session the measure was blocked by a legislative fluke. Just before he left here for Panama he announced that he would reintroduce the bill.

The bill was passed by the House and probably would have been passed by the Senate but for the fact that through a mistake it was left off the calendar.

Would Increase Facilities.

It would give the District six much-needed branch libraries and serve to raise the standard of library facilities, which now are held to be below those in several other cities.

While he is in Panama Representative Gibson plans to work on the report that his subcommittee has agreed to make on the situation here with regard to the Police Department and the general form of government. Just what the report will contain is not known, but the subcommittee frequently discussed the advisability of ordering changes in the personnel of the Police Department.

Favors City Manager.

Gibson is a strong advocate of the city manager form of government, but whether he will recommend a city manager for this city remains to be seen. If he does the Commissioners perhaps would continue to oversee the departments over which they now have jurisdiction, but the city manager would be supreme so far as the general government was concerned.

Gibson plans to have his report ready by July 1, but it probably will not be seen by the full District committee until Congress meets for its next regular session in December. It then will be up to the full committee to pass on proposals to carry out the recommendations in the subcommittee's report.

Representative Zihlman (Republican), of Maryland, chairman of the committee, is expected to have the Capital citizens' associations engage in a thorough discussion of the subcommittee's recommendations before taking any definite action.

Visiting Rabbi Visions Equal Racial Progress

Rabbi Alexander Lyons, of the Eighth Avenue Temple, New York, spokeyesterday at Rankin Memorial Chapel, Howard University, on the Hebraic version of unity, a sociological juxtaposition leading toward increasing cooperation of all races and creeds of humanity. The progress of civilization, he said, is not to be measured by architecture, swiftness of communication, or development of mechanism, but rather by "what we are going to do when we get there."

"Progress," he said, "is leading somewhere when it is the spirit of all races and creeds of mankind to come together and work toward a better mutual understanding. Today there is too much insistence on man-made denominational demarcation, too much stress on lineage rather than on service."

Wilkinson Sees Blue Law in Constitution

Dr. B. G. Wilkinson, dean of theology of Washington Missionary College, told a large audience at the Arcadia last night that a swarm of reformers is awaiting the assembling of the Seventy-first Congress imbued with the aim to force a drastic Sunday closing law upon the District of Columbia. He predicted that if such a law was foisted upon the District that the reformers then would seek to amend the Constitution to make blue laws Nationwide in scope.

"These reformers declare that this program will eventuate into the twentieth amendment to the Constitution," Dr. Wilkinson declared. He urged the country to awaken to avert the threatening menace.

Man Found Overcome By Gas From Open Jet

Edward Whalley, 54 years old, a roomer at 1218 Potomac avenue southeast, is in a serious condition at Casualty Hospital after having been overcome by illuminating gas yesterday afternoon in his room, police report.

Whalley, a carpenter, closed his door without locking it, turned on the gas and covered his head with a blanket after lying down, police say he told them after being revived at the hospital. Arthur Callahan, another carpenter and a roomer in the same building, discovered Whalley unconscious when he entered the room an hour later to tell Whalley of a job, according to police.

THE NEW WEEK'S BILLS

PALACE

"THE RESCUE." United Artists' sound-picture, starring Ronald Colman, supported by Lily Damita. Adapted from the Joseph Conrad novel and directed by Herbert Brenon. Reviewed Saturday night.

By NELSON B. BELL.

All of the discussion as to whether Samuel Goldwyn's picturization has done full justice to the Joseph Conrad novel selected as the first individual starring vehicle for Ronald Colman seems to me to be beside the point. The vital consideration to the theatergoer is that here for once is a film that becomes engrossing by leaving something to the imagination and more than ordinarily believable by sedulously avoiding the cheap melodramatics for the introduction of which the story offers such extraordinary opportunity.

A gun runner in the Java seas, commanding his own brig, meets a beautiful young woman aboard a foundered yacht under circumstances that promise almost certain death to her and her elderly husband's party. The freedom and daring of his life strike a responsive chord in Lady Travers' rebellious breast. Upon him, during a brief few days of terror, she bestows a love her husband had never known—causing him to forget friends, betray a trust and, most of all, himself. The savagery of the warring natives placated, the pleasure craft sails away with its party to the south and "King Tom" Lingard points the prow of his good ship Lightning straight into the north.

The plot is not altogether so simple and unadorned as that, but that is its gist. It moves evenly and interestingly against a background of well-simulated Javanese scenes that are extremely picturesque and superbly photographed, creating every essential effect of actuality. The musical score, arranged by Dr. Hugo Riesenfeld, and the exotic sound effects, including a plaintive death chant, add greatly to the realism.

Ronald Colman, as Lingard, contributes an intelligent and forceful portrayal of an adventurous romanticist cast under the spell of an inscrutable and determined woman. The characters of Conrad's women are anything but transparent, and it is, perhaps, therefore, all the more to the credit of Lily Damita that she should have visualized the complex Lady Travers so astonishingly well in her first American picture. It would be my guess that the personality of this fascinating young artiste is itself of stellar potentialities. Others of note in a long cast include Alfred Hickman, Theodore Von Eltz, Bernard Siegel, Harry Cording, Laska Winters, Sojin, the Chinese character actor, and Duke Kahanamoku, famous Hawaiian swimmer.

Dave Gould's "Harvest Time" revue is one of the season's best. Wesley Eddy, in addition to singing a chorus of his own, "Blue Moon," of which a special arrangement is played by the Palace Syncopators, introduces the Dave Gould girls in a variety of novel routines; the Varsity Four, an excellent male quartet; Ted Marks, an exceptional whistler; the Stanley Twins, acrobatic precision dancers, and Fauntleroy and Van, bucolic funsters and musicians. The entire group double and redouble in an adroitly devised and handsomely staged frolic.

The orchestral prelude, organ recessional, Fox Movietone News and M-G-M silent newsreel complete the bill, save for a flash of William Boyd and Fiery Lupe Velez in action in a talking-trailer for D. W. Griffith's "The Lady of the Pavements."

LITTLE THEATER

"SPIES." A Universum Film Aktiengesellschaft production, released through Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, featuring Rudolph Klein-Rogge, Gerda Maurus and Willy Fritsch. Directed by Fritz Lang from Thea von Harbou's story, "Spione." Reviewed Saturday night by W. A. Whitney.

Espionage, with all its craft, cunning and subtlety, is here portrayed in the American premiere of UFA's latest thriller, which gets off to a very dramatic start involving two thefts and two murders.

Those who desire their amusement in highly concentrated, laughless and melodramatic doses, without special regard to the explanation of all the dramatic allusions made and the interrelation of the various characters involved, will find "Spies" ideal entertainment.

In this photodrama, as in practically all UFA productions, the forte is photographic perfection, accurate character delineation and stark realism with a seeming disregard for such an apparent—to us—necessity as logical and eventually clarified continuity. For example, nothing is known of the countries involved in these surreptitious activities; of the nature of the secret treaty, other than that it is of post-war origin, or of how, why or when Haghi became identified as a secret service confidant and theatrical clown.

The subsidiaries include "Fishes in Love," a UFA novelty depicting the reproduction of oviparous and viviparous fish; "Soundefects," an all-subtitle comment on the talkies; "Prudence," an M-G-M comedy, and a release of Paramount News. Mendelssohn's "Song Without Words" by the Little Theater Trio completes the diversified bill.

EARLE

"STARK MAD." A Warner Bros. all-talking picture, featuring H. B Warner, Louise Fazenda, Claude Gillingwater and Jacqueline Logan. Directed by Lloyd Bacon. Reviewed Saturday afternoon.

While this sort of thing can not be said to represent the type of screen entertainment in which I personally revel, there can be no gainsaying its immediate and potent appeal to an audience. In fact, on Saturday afternoon I was considerably more startled by a young woman sitting two or three rows to the rear who shrieked at the top of her lungs at an unexpected episode than I was by anything that happened up there on the silver sheet. Everything that transpired struck me as being a bit palpable and to no tangible purpose, but for this particular picture I must have been a deficient auditor, because the rest of the packed house evidently reacted in wholly different fashion. The hazards of an expedition into the Caracas jungle of Central America in search of a wealthy man's lost son obviously struck them as very real dangers, fraught with suspense and evil consequences.

As a matter of fact, many of them were. My objection is not so much leveled at the intrinsic worth of the individual incident as that they should all have been without any justification that the plot made clear. The captain of Claud Gillingwater's yacht, impersonated by Henry B. Walthall, turned out to be an archconspirator and murderous criminal—although I have no notion why—a huge ape, suspected of all manner of atrocities, proved a thoroughly domesticated pet, and it was finally determined that Mr. Gillingwater's son was dead, but I must have been looking away when it was explained why arrows flew, trick doors revolved, floors collapsed, and all of the beautiful women in the party were briefly and mysteriously abducted, one at a time.

The dialogue is far better recorded than was the case in "The Terror," to which in large measure this subject is comparable. H. B. Warner, as the hero of the occasion, is easily the best of the notable cast, which includes Mr. Gillingwater, Louise Fazenda, Jacqueline Logan, Mr. Walthall, who, by the way, has a splendid microphone voice; Lionel Belmore, Andrew Beranger, who does a surprising bit as the madman of the jungles; Warner Richmond, whose voice here also records well, and a considerable number of others in less important roles.

A Vitaphone playlet, "A Bird in the Hand," affords a fine vehicle for the familiar talents of Lois Wilson, Jason Robards, Dot Farley and Roy D'Arcy, and two other Vitaphone short subjects and to the diversified excellence of the bill's auxiliary features. One is supplied by Bobby Folsom, singing comedienne, in "A Modern Priscilla," an extremely clever travesty; the other by Bobby Gillette, banjoist, assisted by Doris Walker, in an interval of enjoyable tunes.

The newsreel is distinguished by closeups of the Hoover Cabinet, Secretary Mellon coming in for a thundering round of applause that would have ruined Senator Couzens' entire afternoon. Mr. Breeskin's orchestra works a miracle with Hosmer's time-worn "Evolution of Dixie," rousingly played as an overture. N. B. B.

COLUMBIA

"THE DOCTOR'S SECRET." Paramount all-talking picture from the play "Half an Hour," by Sir James M. Barrie. Direction and adaptation by William C. De Mille. Ruth Chatterton, H. B. Warner, Robert Edeson and John Loder featured. Reviewed (second week) by Mary Porter Russell.

The fact that William C. DeMille is an able director has been recognized these many years. But who would have thought him capable of adapting a Barrie play to the screen, in addition to directing its making?

"The Doctor's Secret," as screened, is surprisingly true to the spirit of the play on which it is based. The characters have lost none of their sharpness of outline, and the dramatic undercurrent of suspense still swirls powerfully on, keeping the audience in a whirl of anxiety to the last, with the unhappy woman who has risked all. When it is considered that the Barrie text has been padded to run 60 minutes instead of the original half hour, the achievement seems all the more noteworthy. It took courage, not to mention skill, to effect an enlargement of Sir James's lines.

Although a portion of the extra half hour is taken up with the addition of a prologue and a new development in the ending, the script itself has been filled in to a degree that ought by all rights to make the action drag, but somehow doesn't. Barrie and DeMille take turns with the speeches. Often it is obvious whose turn it is, but the result is far less jarring than might have been expected. And the altered ending, by way of compensating for the prologue, which is rather strained, is a vivid piece of dramaturgy.

Ruth Chatterton is the pathetic, yet courageous, Lady Lillian, for whom a lifetime of tragedy is crowded into one brief space, when she leaves her husband of coarse fiber and brutal instincts to seek happiness with the man she loves, only to find herself back again in half an hour, crushed by the lover's sudden death and terrified by the arrival as a dinner guest in her home of the one man who shares her secret. She is effective and appealing in her great stress, and H. B. Warner, as her lower-bred husband, overcomes the handicap of an aristocratic nose with an expert characterization. Robert Edeson, little Nancy Price and John Loder are also excellent.

The supplementaries include a Max Davidson comedy, a Movietone Revue, an overture, Jan Garber's Band, an Aesop's fable, and the Newsreel.

President Is Praised At Greek Church Rites

Praise of the life and character of President Hoover was sounded both in Greek and English yesterday at the SS. Constantine and Helen Greek Orthodox Church, Sixth and C streets southwest. The address in Greek was delivered by the Rev. Thomas Daniels, pastor of the church, and that in English by Capt. Soterios Nicholson.

Both speakers told of the President's reputation for thoroughness. Capt. Nicholson stressed that after his graduation from college Hoover did not wait for work to find him, but went out and found work.

FOX

"THE GREYHOUND LIMITED." A Warner Bros. sound and dialogue picture, starring Monte Blue, supported by Grant Withers and Edna Murphy. Directed by Howard Bretherton. Reviewed Sunday afternoon.

While much of the action of the story has to do with the business of railroading, both Monte Blue and Grant Withers being cast as trainmen, I should hesitate to catalogue it as a drama of the rails. It begins as such, but soon goes through an open switch and becomes thereafter a play of crooks and an eleventh-hour reprieve from the gallows. The material, as you may have suspected, is not even so new as some of the 1926 wisecracks that have been woven into the conversations that are rendered audible by Vitaphone.

In "Conquest," Mr. Blue's reading of lines left me as cold as the Antarctic wastes in which much of the picture was laid, but here I find him wholly in character. His utter lack of polish in pronunciation and diction is easily reconciled with the rough-and-ready life of a young engineer piloting a heavy and important train. Still it seems to me that Grant Withers, Monte's fireman, who goes haywire, is accused of a murder and all but pays the supreme penalty for the crime he didn't commit—although too drunk to be sure of it—does the best work of any in the cast. Mr. Withers is a duplicate Bert Lytell in appearance and possesses a keen sense of dramatic values. His drunken scenes are particularly well done.

Edna Murphy is the blonde waitress who gives the susceptible young engineman his first nudge along the primrose path and the one who plays the most important part later in saving him from the noose. She, too, speaks in character with a voice that records distinctly.

There is a deal of humor as the developments progress and thrills no end in the last reel or two, but these virtues are dwarfed by the profoundly good judgment of Mr. Bretherton, the director, in fortifying his melodrama with a final "tag" line that plucks it deftly from the ruck of mediocrity and ends it with a laugh.

Quite worth the price of admission is the Clark and McCullough Movietone comedy playlet, "The Diplomats," in which these fabulous clowns save the throne of a mythical kingdom by most extraordinary methods. If you can not laugh at this one, you can not laugh.

In addition to presiding over the "Syncopation Revels" stage revue, Bert Frohman, master of ceremonies, this week sings a song about happy days and lonely nights that met with hearty approval yesterday. He also introduced the Foxettes, the twelve rapidly perfected line girl; Frank and Foreman, tap dancers; Muriel La France, coloratura soprano already firmly entrenched in local regard; Yvonne Davis, acrobatic dancer; Charles Brugge, eccentric acrobatic musician, and Mabel Alperson, in faithful impressions of Gertrude Lawrence and Fannie Brice.

The Movietone News rounds out the screen diversion and the orchestra scores decisively with "Naila," by Delibes, played in straight and syncopated arrangements that provide spotlighted bits for the drummers, who, in view of the hit they made, would probably prefer to be known as percussionist and tympanist, respectively. METROPOLITAN "WEARY RIVER." First National picture, with sound, talking sequences and songs, starring Richard Barthelmess, with Betty Compson leading the cast. Directed by Frank Lloyd. Reviewed Sunday afternoon (second week) by C. Ransom.

The generously repeated theme song of "Weary River," holding over at the Metropolitan, is a pleasing little sentimental piece, and the only possible objection to it is that theme songs and sentiments do not precisely hang well with the best that might be hoped from Richard Barthelmess. Just because he has one of the truest acting talents of the screen his career is wavering. The movies can not or will not produce enough really good stories to maintain his pace.

"Weary River" is a far better story than the average output. They can't all strike the pitch of "Tolable David," and the only point made here is that it would be great for Barthelmess if they could. Even if he could sing, as he appears to in this picture, it would be too bad to let him. What he ought to keep on doing is to act.

Barthelmess plays the part of a wilful young gangster who is terribly upset when they send him to prison, and only gradually comes to accept the discipline of the place and the kindly interest of the warden. He becomes leader of the prison orchestra and composes the little song that touches his sweetheart, listening by radio. Released, with a reputation gained by radio, he turns to vaudeville. The convict stigma clings to and embitters him, so he returns to the old gang and the racket. Sweetheart doesn't like that and rescues him with the aid of the warden. Betty Compson, as the sweetie, shines through the picture, rather incredibly fine and sympathetic for what she is supposed to be.

The picture is well directed and contains many interesting and well-acted passages. On the whole it is much too sentimental to carry conviction as a study in racketeering.

The Pathe sound news film is devoted almost wholly to excellent pictures of the inauguration ceremonies and parade. The one added Vitaphone number introduces Jack Goldie, blackface comedian and songster.

THE STRAND

Fred (Fails) Binder, the man who faws down and goes boom, heads the attraction at the Strand this week, "Speed Girls of 1929."

It would naturally be supposed, of course, that "Speed Girls of 1929" would have to be just that; this being the Jazz Age, and all that the word implies. Well, in that light, the show at the Strand is not a disappointment.

Binder, a Jewish comedian, knows how to put over his stuff—and he has a fair running mate, Nellie Nice, the leading woman, who is no novice in the entertainment field.

Others helping along the merriment are Jim Pearl, a singing and dancing Irish comedian; Millie Kennedy, an acrobatic dancer; Joan Tanya, helping out in many scenes and situations, and Guy Post, a vaudevillian. The straight man is Pat McCarthy.

Man, Held as Drunk, Injured in Fall in Cell

George Corder, 40 years old, of 204 Kentucky avenue southeast, arrested Saturday night by police on a charge of intoxication, fell from his cot in his cell at the Twelfth Precinct early yesterday morning, cutting his face.

He was taken to Casualty Hospital in the patrol of the Sixth Precinct and treated there by Dr. Louis Jimal for a laceration of his right eye. Later he was taken to the Sixth Precinct and released on collateral.

U. S. EXPERTS HELD TO FAVOR AIRPORT AT GRAVELLY POINT

Four Departments Expected to Start This Week to Prepare Reports.

HEARINGS TO DETERMINE COST RATIO OPEN APRIL 1

War, Navy and Commerce Heads on Record in Favor of Site Near City.

The Gravelly Point site undoubtedly will be recommended for Washington's proposed municipal airport when the experts of four Federal departments and the District government submit their reports to the joint congressional airport committee.

The experts probably will start work on their reports this week, so as to have them at the Capitol before the committee opens hearings on the airport question April 1. The four involved departments are War, Navy, Postoffice and Commerce.

Prospective Use Factor.

In asking officials of those departments to submit reports, Senator Lingham (Republican), of Connecticut, who heads the senators on the committee, asked that the officials outline the present and prospective needs of their departments with regard to a municipal airport here and also to make recommendations in connection with its size and location.

The committee was created primarily to determine how much the Federal and district governments should pay toward the cost of the airport, but if Gravelly Point is strongly recommended it is believed probable it will be selected.

The Department of Commerce already is on record as favoring the Gravelly Point site and so are the War and Navy Departments. Furthermore, there is reason to believe that the postoffice experts will select it on account of its proximity to the city.

Favored by District Heads.

The District Commissioners favor Gravelly Point. At their last session they indorsed the Stalker bill to establish the airport there, but it failed to pass because there was some doubt as to whether the Federal Government should pay 50 per cent of the cost.

The survey to be made by the joint congressional committee will determine definitely just how each department and the District government will use the airport, and therefore just how much of the cost the Federal and District governments should bear respectively.

Brailer immediately reported the occurrence to the police of the Twelfth Precinct. A number of policemen were dispatched to the house, but a search of the vicinity failed to reveal the masked mystery man.
